Very often farmers imagine that their grain is going to yield immensely, and as the crop is being harvested and stacked calculate on so many bushels and in many instances are lamentably surprised. We heard one farmer say the other day that he thought sure he would have 3000 bushels of wheat, but when threshed he only had 1200. A heavy crop of straw is no more the sign of a good yield of wheat than a paper collar is the sign of a shirt.

Fire in the Mountains.
Fire is now burning along the timber in the Cascade Mountains east of Eugene, says the Journal. Last Sunday the house of Mr. Bowerman, on the north side of the McKenzie River, 12 or 14 miles east of here was burned. His barn and buildings and about everything on his place were destroyed at the same time by the fire. On Tuesday Mr. B. F. Finn's barn on the south side of the McKenzie about 30 miles east of this place, was burned. We learn that this fire is burning in Camas Swale on this side of the Coast Fork, a few miles north of the house of Tom Bell near the head of the Swale in the edge of the mountains last Wednesday. Mr. Bell went into the house to try to get his money, about $175 in gold and silver, but failed to reach it, and was severely although not dangerously burned in making the effort. The money was melted and the gold and silver mixed together in fragments. No other damage has been reported in that neighborhood. The fire was still burning to some extent at last accounts.

Poisoned Cigarettes.
A very prominent San Francisco physician writes: "Leprosy is revealing itself about the lips and tongue of the boys who smoke cigarettes made by the Chinese. The disease though fatal, is slow in giving tokens of its first approach. He goes on to state further that no less than 100 cases of infection of the loathsome disease by cigarette smoking has come under his own notice. This new horror thus developed should prove a sufficient warning to parents and youths, especially on the Pacific Coast, where about all the cigarettes are manufactured by the Chinese. It is a disgusting habit at best, and when coupled with the now danger there is reason for the most vigorous efforts to suppress the vice into which the boys of this State are being dragged every day by evil companions. Boys say, 'I don't smoke Chinese-made cigarettes.' It is an easy thing for manufacturers and dealers to say their goods are made by white men. It is another thing to show beyond a shadow of a doubt that each particular cigarette is what is claimed for it.

The Female with the Fire-arm.
A complaint was lodged in Recorder's court last week and a warrant issued thereon against an individual of the female persuasion, who is said to live in town. The complaint charged that the accused had purposely assaulted the dwelling house of the complainant with a dangerous weapon, loaded with powder and ball and with the said fire-arm, into the said house, within the city limits, the said feminine did shoot. Our gallant Marshall with warrant in hand and bent on doing his duty, with head erect sought the whereabouts of the tender and greatly abused female, and with her appearing before our courteous and obliging Recorder, who proceeded to read to the accused the complaint. Whereupon she declared that she was handling the unfortunate weapon when it was accidentally discharged in her hand, culminating in the serious effect to complainant's habitation. Under circumstances of this kind the gallant Recorder discharged the poor down-trodden feminine, whereupon she turned to her accuser and accosted him with the tender and affectionate title of "Willie Darling" and at the same time referred to some of those tender reminiscences of a recent by gone day which caused the latter to blush with seeming agitation and bewilderment.

Funeral.
Chas. E. Miller of this place is sojourning on the Sound for the health and pleasure of himself and new wife. They arrived at New Tacoma a week ago last Sunday. Mr. Miller gives a glowing account of the present appearance and future prospect of the town. There is about two hundred new buildings going up among which are probably 25 new store buildings, four new churches and a new court house. More than as much again more building would have been done this summer but for the fact that lumber could not be had. The location of the town is on a hillside and quite rough. The main street is about a mile long, and the town has about 2000 inhabitants. They have no fire company except a Hook & Ladder Co.

The Circus.
The circus which appeared here last Tuesday night under the supervision of Mr. Sherman, was well attended. There must have been at least fifteen hundred spectators present, and the show from first to last must have taken in that many dollars. The horses in the way of performing tricks were very well trained indeed. The tumbling and performance on the bars were very well done. The clowns at the least calculation in drawing it mild, were about tenth rate. What riding was done was performed very well, but there was not enough of it in quantity or in variety to please the small boy and sometimes the larger ones who trust to luck for their next days rations and spend their last dollar to go to the circus in order to see what they call "circus riding." The performance was certainly a financial success for its managers.

Independence.
A trip to Independence last Friday most surprisingly brought to our notice the rapidity with which that town is improving. Not long ago several new bricks have been finished and there are now under process of construction four more new brick buildings to be occupied by stores. The town indicates a general appearance of thrift and activity. It is bound to continue to be a good town for trade as it has the advantages of both railroad and river transportation.

A Boy.

The contract to be made with his parents.

William Ballard of this county, about 27 years of age, was brought into town by his brother last Wednesday evening, and on yesterday he was taken before the county judge, J. R. Bryson, and examined as to his sanity and declared insane, with the expectation of starting with him to the asylum this morning. He exhibited symptoms of insanity about a month ago, since which time having varied to some extent some times appearing much worse than at others. He is of a family wherein there are several young men. He has always appeared to be quiet and peaceable and apparently one among the best of the family.

The Report of an autopsy held upon the body of Miss Annie Camaron, aged 43, died in Corvallis, Or., Sept 3, 1882.
This case presented a chain of symptoms that caused us to believe it to be a cancer of the liver and kidneys. Quite an enlargement showed itself in her right side extending from the lower line of the ribs to the top of the iliac bone (hip or rump bone) with the subject wonderfully emaciated. After death this enlargement showed a manifest increase in size, becoming very hard. By making a free incision from the pit of the stomach down, then two transverse incisions, one from the pit of the stomach following the line of ribs over the region of the liver, and the other from a point on the lower part of the bowels to the top of the ilium, and turning that part of the abdominal wall back, there was presented immediately to our view the object of so much conjecture. It was a large Carcinomatous Tumor (Cancerous) together with a very small atrophied liver. This tumor adhered closely to all the adjacent part, from about mid-way in the iliac bone up to the lower line of the ribs, completely consuming or engaging the right kidney with a large duct passing up into the very core of the liver. This tumor was filled with about a half-gallon of creamy matter frequently turned cancer-jelly. Being satisfied that this cancerous growth was the cause of death we dissected the body. But at the request of a brother of the deceased we proceeded to examine the lungs. Immediately the chest was laid open and there we found both lungs entirely whole; in a much better condition than expected by anyone, free from any ulcers or tubercular decay.

It was a large Carcinomatous Tumor (Cancerous) together with a very small atrophied liver. This tumor adhered closely to all the adjacent part, from about mid-way in the iliac bone up to the lower line of the ribs, completely consuming or engaging the right kidney with a large duct passing up into the very core of the liver. This tumor was filled with about a half-gallon of creamy matter frequently turned cancer-jelly. Being satisfied that this cancerous growth was the cause of death we dissected the body. But at the request of a brother of the deceased we proceeded to examine the lungs. Immediately the chest was laid open and there we found both lungs entirely whole; in a much better condition than expected by anyone, free from any ulcers or tubercular decay.
