Weekly Corvallis Gazette
FRIDAY MORNING, JAN. 5, 1883.

Subbins From Monroe.

Christmas was kept at Monroe in the usual time honored style. Evergreens, toys and best of all a Santa Clause made glad the hearts of the little ones.

Our Christmas festivities were somewhat saddened, however, by sickness and death. On Christmas day the chased remains of Frank Leonard and George Blake, the two unfortunate men who perished in the burning building at Inman's mill, were deposited in the graveyard at Monroe. A third one Shepard, was seriously perhaps fatally burned. The burning occurred on Saturday December 23, whiskey is supposed to be the immediate cause of the disaster.

On the day following Christmas the thanks of Mr. T. D. Hinton father-in-law of our fellowtownsmen, West Hinton, was laid to rest in our burying ground. The Masons took charge of the obsequies, thus showing respect for the deceased and family.

There are several cases of lung fever and erysipelas in town, but they are mostly improving I believe.

On Wednesday night nearly all the young folks of our town armed with amply refreshments made their way up to Mrs. Rebecca Reader's. They found that estimable lady and her daughter not like "Josiah Allen" "who would not be surprised," but perfectly willing to be surprised so the evening was spent very pleasantly with music, conversation and refreshments.

ESSICA.
One Item of Expense
Brooklyn Eagle.

"What do you charge for a death notice in this paper?" snapped a diamond pointed nosed woman at the advertising desk of the Eagle last night.

"Half a dollar ma'am," replied the clerk.

"Folks can't die without paying for it, I suppose," snarled the woman.

"Oh, they can die," responded the clerk, "but it costs that to publish the fact."

"Twenty dollars for a coffin, $15 for the grave, $10 for hacks, and only $500 for my mourning, and now I've got to pay fifty cents to draw a crowd! Think I'm made of money?"

"I don't know ma'am," returned the clerk, scratching his head.

"Mean to say you won't print this notice less than 50 cents?"

"That's the regular price, ma'am."

"Then I suppose I've got to pay it, or there won't be a soul to see my new hat and veil. Take your money but you bet it will come out of the coffin. I won't knock a cent off my mourning, if I have to mince him up and plant him in a seidlitz powder box!"

"Is this woman your wife?" asked the judge of a colored man, and pointing to a woman.

"Is what my wife?"

"Is that woman your wife?"

"I don't see no 'oman, I see a lady and de lady am my wife."

"Is that man your husband?"

"Dat gentlemann is my husband."

"Well ladies and gentlemen, I have investigated this case, and have decided to send this lady and gentleman to jail for six months."—Arkansas Traveler.

A short time ago a young lawyer asked Senator David Davis permission to say court to a young lady of wealth, his ward. Senator Davis took the case under consideration for a day, and rendered the following decision: "I can not give my consent," it ran, "not because you are poor and dependent upon your profession, but because you are in the habit of incurring needless debts, without knowing or caring how you are to pay them."

A book is called, "How to keep a store." It is a work of several hundred pages, and life is to short to read it. The best way to keep a store is to advertise judiciously, and by this means do business and prevent it from falling into the hands of the sheriff.

A Chicago chap advertises for several steady girls to help on pantaloons. "And an evngins scrip says that a fellow who can't help on his own pantaloons ought to be ashamed to want girls to do it."

A Christmas suggestion: Give the little girl something pretty and nice that she can keep a long time. Give the boy something that he can eat quick or make a noise with.

Resolutions and Names of Teachers.

The following are the resolutions adopted by the late teachers institute:

1. That the thanks of the institute are hereby tendered to the Board of Trustees of Corvallis College for the use of the College Chapel.

2. To the ladies and gentlemen who so kindly took part in the Literary Entertainment.

3. To Prof. W. E. Yates of the Oregon Normal School, to Supt. Frank Rigler of Polk County for their instructive lectures, and for the interest manifested by them; to the teachers of Linn and Polk counties for attendance and assistance. To the faculties of the Oregon State Agricultural College, and Philomath College for their able addresses.

4. To the ladies and gentlemen of the Quartette Club for the excellent music furnished by them.

5. And to the Rev. Dr. J. R. N. Bell for his eloquent efforts on various occasions, and for his other valuable services.

6. Resolved, finally, that the thanks of this Institute are due to Superintendent E. A. Milner for his assiduous labors during the Institute. That he should have the hearty cooperation of all the teachers of Benton County for his efforts in organizing the education forces of this county.

BY THE COMMITTEE.

The number of summer and autumn visitors during 1871 was about 75,000; last year the number was about 139,000.

The streets of Paris are lighted by 43,000 gas lamps and 429 lamps which burn petroleum and coal oil. There are in addition 25,000 jets of gas in the buildings, which belong to the municipality, and the total cost of lighting them is estimated for the current year at 41,300,000.

The coyotes have been a great source of annoyance and loss this year to the sheep-owners of Montana. Heretofore the shepherd dogs have chased them away without difficulty, but the coyotes have reversed this order, and now frequently chase the dogs away. A large drove of them will come at night and, literally taking the dogs prisoner, will force them far away from the ranch, while the confederates attack the defenseless sheep.

W. C. T. U. COLUMN.

Strong Drinks.
Why are those drinks called strong drinks?"

"Not because they make people strong, for they make them weak, but because they are strong to make honest men thieves; strong to make good people wicked; strong to make industrious people idle; strong to make men reel about in the streets; strong to make healthy people sick; strong to make kings beggars; strong to make men commit murder and suicide; strong to make sailors steer vessels on rocks; strong to make wise men foolish; strong to make people forget God; and sometimes they are so strong as to make people see two things when there is only one.

ONE ITEM IN THE BILL.

The annual drink-bill of the United States is estimated to be seven hundred millions of dollars! In Great Britain, with a population of 6,000,000 less than ours, the drink-bill is $785,000,000. What an enormous sum for alcoholic stimulants in a single year—$700,000,000! In twenty years the annual compound interest on this sum would amount to more than 25,000,000,000. Here is the startling result of twenty years national indulgence in intoxicating liquors—over twenty-five billions of dollars! The cost of drunkenness is amazing. The aggregate of money represented by these worse than useless beverages is indeed fearful, appalling, and beyond the manner of expression in words or figures. The wheat and corn which God gives for bread is perverted into a poison for the multitude, destroying brain, body and soul. And yet men wonder why we have hard times. As Neal Dow says, "The wonder is, rather, that we have any times at all."

THE SCARS OF INTEMPERANCE.

You know very well that a scar will not wash out or grow out. Absolutely, there is no doubt of this. But how vast and fathomless practical are the applications of the simple truth that scars are ineradicable! A two-edged sword, this, and of keener edge than Damascus steel. The dull icarbonate, who scars his brain by the habit of intemperance, thinks that after his reformation his nervous system will slowly recover all the soundness it once had. But on your finger a scar will not grow out. Scars, however the body may change are absolutely unchangeable in the changing flesh. We carry into our graves the marks of our boyhood's sports; and this is as true of the spots that scar the brain as of those that gash the fingers. That the most scorching blessings are good habits, the most penetrating curses are bad habits, is found in the one fact that the automatic nervous mechanism is such, that when a habit—good or bad—is scarred into the brain, the soul pours forth the result of the habit almost spontaneously. And just so, friends your tendency or mine to profane speech, to ribald jest, to the incertinate's thirst, or the sensualist's lecherous thoughts, scar the nervous system in its automatic action. When you, thus scarred by habit (and it may be, alas!—by inheritance), pass the place of temptation, you are seized—you know not with what power. You feel that there is a necessity upon you, and that mystery is simply that scars are ineradicable. You have scarred your nervous system with an evil habit; and now the terrific power of the automatic mechanism stands behind your will.
