THE "STAR" HAND GRENADE.

Some of the distinguishing features of this fire congueror are that there is no machinery, valves, pumps or hose to get out of order. They do not corrode. They do not wear out. They require no cleaning, charging or repairing from time to time. They do not or cannot be got out of order. They are always ready for instant use. To use them requires little or no skill; anybody can do it. They will stand an actual test of 20 to 25 degrees below zero without freezing, something no other extinguisher can do. Age does not affect them in the least, they are sealed up air-tight and will retain their virtue unimpared for generations. Unlike all other extinguishers, there is nothing about them with which meddlesome boys can "tinker." They will instantly extinguish a coal oil, alcohol or bensine fire. They are the most powerful extinguishers ever produced and the simplest and cheapest. With the Grenades, less than one-tenth the liquid is required that other extinguishers use. Their use prevents drenching the place with water, which often does more damage than the fire. They may, at small expense, be distributed throughout a building and thus be available for instant use at any point. Night watchmen can carry them in their pockets while making their rounds. They are the only extinguishers suited to family use. Woodcock & Baldwin have been appointed agents, and are prepared to furnish the same at $15 per case of one dozen.

Some "energetic scrub," with more brains for perpetrating an unpardonable joke than a sense of propriety, rang the fire bell last Wednesday evenidg, calling out the differ ent fire companies in less time than it takes us to write this. Before the bell had ceased ringing and people had time to give the matter a moment's thought some of the companies were all of two blocks away searching in vain for the fire, but all to no purpose. On returning to the hall it was found that the Young America hose cart axle was badly sprung, and it is well known them. that when an axle is once sprung, it is barely possible that it can be repaired as substantially as it was before, and all caused by the thoughtlessness of some light-brained person who should be hunted up and dealt with as he justly deserves.

Since the above was in type suspicion points strongly towards two members of the department as the parties who perpetrated the joke (?). It is earnestly hoped that if they are the guilty parties and can be proven such that they will be made to regret their rash act.

Officers' Reception

The newly elected Chief Engineer and Assistant of the Corvallis Fire Department, Mr. J. O. Wilson and A. R. Pygall took the oath of office last Wednesday, and in the evening were tendered a very pleasant reception at Young America hall. It was an impromptu affair, having been gotten up by some of the tiremen during the after noon, but fully demonstrated that Corvallis firemen are adopts at not only fighting the flames but also in arranging for a pleasant gathering on short notice. The Band were in attendance and discoursed a few airs in front of the ball, when all were invited in. David Osburn was called to the chair as presiding officer and who stated the object of the meeting was to ratify the election of the new officers. Speeches were next in order, and Hon. John Burnett being called upon addressed the assembled crowd at some length, giving a history of the Corvallis Fire Department from its infancy to the present time. The rounds of applause which greeted the speaker showed the firemen's appreciation of the Judge's remarks. Others were called upon for speeches, prominent among whom were Supt, E. A. Milner and J. W. Rayburn. Music by the band. the newly elected officers' best Havanas and other refreshments constituted the remainder be one of the firemens' most social affairs.

Silver Wedding

A very enjoyable social gathering oc curred at the residence of Mr and Mrs S A Hemphill in this place on last Friday evening. It was the twenty-fifth anniversar of their wedding day. A number of friend had been previously notified of the time and on that evening they gathered in on the wedded twain. In one room all who desired engaged in dancing to fine music dispense by Mr Bennett, on the violin, accompanie by the organ. Others participated in insocent amusement and conversational exercise until about 12 o'clock when all returned to their respective homes. The following were the presents offered on the oc-

There were also present Miss Cecil from California, a and Miss Ida Caton. Every body seemed to depart from this enjoyable occasion apparently feeling that they felt better for having attended. About ten o'clock a nice lunch was served which had bven previously prepared by Mrs. Hemphill. The party had been planned and arranged without the few minutes before the guests began to ap-

A Commendable Act. Last Saturday evening some parties living in the suburbs of the city on the Philomath road witnessed a very degrading scene. A drunken father, name unknown, was severely chastizing his little son, compelling him to unhitch an I rehitch the team and all the while administering heavy blows on the little fellow as his drunken fancy dictated. Some parties in that neighborhood started for the city marshal when they met Prof. E. A. Milner and Conductor Strond, who being informed of the intoxicated man's treatment of his little son, hastened to the spot and finding the situation as represented, Prof. Milner lost no time in putting a stop to the inhuman father's treatment of his son. Had it not been for the son's entreaties for his father's safety he would probably have received such a chastisement from the hands of Prof. Milner as would have sobered him up for many days, what he justly deserved.

Temperance.

The open meeting at 'Pitman's Hall on Monday evening last was addressed by Rev. J. W. Webb, the lecturer for the Good Templars. The hall was crowded and the andience very attentive and more responsive the lecturer told an amusing anecdote to lead to his next point the audience laughed with enjoyment, when the pathetic and earnest tones of the speaker reached them there was a quiet hush, and grave receptiveness. The main force o' the speech was devoted to the iniquities of the 'iquor traffic as affecting the public as well as the individual and the family. He showed that liquor business is intrinsically wrong on economic grounds, that its success means injury to the legitimate trade, and that the community is the poorer in pocket as well as in person for the nefarious profits the saloon keeper takes from his befuddled and foolish customers, to the detriment of the storekeeper who fails to sell and the family which loses the means to buy. He urged the citizens of Corvallis to be up and doing by electing none but temperance men. as well as temperate men, to the new City between these two classes. There was good music at which Mrs. Additon presided.

The lecture on Monday evening next will be delivered by the Rev. T. J. Wilson, of Halsey, for whom a patient hearing and a good audience is hereby bespoken.

The New Steamer.

The Albany Democrat has the following to say about the small new steamer which has been recently built to run daily trips between Albany and Corvallis. If it does not draw tee much water it may prove a success. "The new steamer, about which there has been so much talk in this city, arrived here in good condition last Sunday, Mrs. John Smith engineered a fishing and was immediately gazed at by many or party last Tuesday afternoon in the grove our citizens. People who imagined it was on the bank of Marys river above town. It a great Eastern, were, of course, disappoints needless to say that the speckled beauties ed, but those who looked for a neat little what they looked for. The steamer is about A new steam launch is being built in this thirty feet long, and will carry about thirty persons. It has a capacity for traveling at a good rate of speed. Just what the figures will be we are not prepared now to state; but they will probably be sufficient so that the steamer. It at least shows the enterprise of our young men."

THE BITER BITTEN.

How a Youthful Sharp "Done" Corvallis.

Jim Lewis, the gentlemanly stock dealer, has recently had a narrow escape from being victimized by a cunningly devised fraud. The circumstances as we are able to gather s as follows. Six weeks ago a youth named Frank Davis, 17 or 18 years of age, arrived from the old country with a letter from his father to an English resident of Corvallis, who gave Davis an introduction to som friends having a ranch near Corvallis. Here he staved about three weeks and in the neantime made the acquaintance of Mr. Lewis, which he cultivated with a view to naking a profitable use of it. Three weeks ago he left the ranch for Corvallis and threw nimself as much as possible into Lewis' company. He informed Lewis that his father was a wealthy Liverpool merchant, and that he had come to Oregon to learn the stock business with the intention of going into it on a large scale. Strange to say however just at that time he was a little short of eady money, as remittances seemed to be lelayed and he was compelled to borrow dollar or two from Lewis. This process of borrowing was repeated at judicious intervale during the week until the money loan ed exceeded $50. He also took a fancy to a valuable gold watch belonging to Lew's, which he insisted on buying. Lewis did not Kline, Mr A P Churchill, Messrs B Job and Davis seemed so anxious to possess it, he let him have it as a matter of friendship ter $66. considerably below its value. Sunday week Davis conclude that he had gone as far as possible with Lewis and prepared to seek other fields of conquest. He obtained a telegraph blank and wrote on it a message purporting to come from a Portland bank to the effect that they had a draft in his favor for guest of Mrs John Smith, Miss Ida Burnett $9000, and requested his presence in Portand to receive the money. This he showed to Lewis and also wrote a copy of it in Lewis' note book, in order to avoid exciting saspicion as to his departure. The next day, Monday, March 23, he left Corvallis by the boat. Some c'roumstances came to Lewis' knowledge which led him to think that knowledge of Mr. Hemphill until within a Davis was not strictly correct in his statements, and he therefore set the wires in motion with the result of Davis being met by an officer at Salem and returned to Corvallis. Davis now found that his game was up, and appealed for mercy, saying that it was his first offense and promising never again to leviate from the path of rectitude. Mr Lewis was placed in a difficult position, for though unwilling that such an offense against society should go unpunished, yet he was reluctant to consign the youth to imprisonment. In parenthesis we would remark that in our opinion the proper medicine for the youngster would be a thorough course in school of correction.

Considering all the points Mr. Lewis decided not to prosecute, and Davis' father being informed of the matter by telegraph, sent sufficient money to recoup Lewis for his loss.

It appears that the lesson has not been of my benefit to Davis, as the very morning he left Corvallis he attempted to carry away a gun belonging to Mr. Hodes, under pretense that he was going out for a week's shooting and would return the gun, but fortunately Mr. Hodes regained possession of his gun. We understand that Davis has started for St. Thomas, in the West Indies to take the position of cashier in a store there belonging to a relative, which will no doubt suit him admirably.

11 tory of Dyphtheria

The ravages of this disease in this country make it a subject of painful interest. By unprofessional persons it is generally R. Maxon has written a series of papers on the disease, which have appeared in the Boston Journal of Chemistry, from one of which we make the following extract:

"Diphtheria is believed to have originated in Egypt, more than two thousand years ago. It prevailed in Egypt and Asia Minor to which it extended, during the first five hundred years, and hence was early called Egyptian or Syriac disease. But upon its extending into the south of Europe, the Greek designation became the more general one; and though objectionable, as not indicating directly its pathology, it has been retained, together with the Egyptian or syriac. Having invaded Europe, the disease appeared at Rome A. D. 330; and being akin to the plague, of which it may be a remote modification, having had the same origin, with some similar characteristics, and being, like it and malignant typhus, highly contageous, the disease, in its fifteen hundred years' transit on the continent of Europe, affected mainly rual districts and garrisoned towns. It had extended to Holland, in which it was an epedemic, in 1337: to Paris, in 1576; and appeared in America in 1781; having prevailed more extensively in 1818 and 1835, and in England and the United States from 1856 to 1860, and more or less since."

Correction.

In our notice of attorneys from abroad in attendance upon the Circuit Court here last week we mentioned J. R. Baldwin as from Salem. This he informs us was wrong as he claims to be a citizen of Corvallis, and has been since last October. He was at Sa'em for several weeks employed in the office of the Secretary of State, which was only a temporary absence.
