"He Went Away."

There is a vacant chair in our Sanctum. A highly burnished (?) pair of No. 12 brogans suspended from his pedal extremities no longer adorn the corner of the office deak Last Monday morning our corpulent editor surprised his friends at his early appearance on the streets, as by dint of great exertions he succeeded in reaching the West Side depot in time for the 8:30 A .M. train. On the way he displayed such wonderful athletic movements that it was thought he had been seized by the foot-racing mania, now prevalent in Corvallis. Uniter one arm he carried his beloved violin, Which probably accounts for the following pargaraph in Tuesday morning's Oregonian:

The newspaper business must be rather dull at Corvallis, as an editor of that town has started out with a violin under his arm. He may be going to join "dot leetle German Band," or perhaps he intends like a historical character to go fiddling through the town to dance away with the exciseman. He made things pleasant on the west side train vesterday.

New Livery Stable

Last Monday morning active operations were begun in preparing for the erection of a new livery stable on the lots formerly owned by Sol. King but lately purchased by Messrs Montgomery & Bogue. The build ing will be 50x100 feet deep, brick venered wall, substantial and first class in all respects, and it is expected that it will be completed enough to begin business in a few weeks. The firm consists of Mr. R. M. Montgomery and J. S. Bogue. Mr. Montgomery and family have taken up their residence in our city, and the building is superintended by Mr. Montgomery himself. Mr. Bogue has not yet moved to Corvallis being engaged in the warehouse business at Airlie, Polk county. These gentlemen will procure only first-class turnouts, and deserve success in this enterprise.

Thoroughbred Stock

Major James Bruce and G. B. Smith received last Saturday a car containing twenty head of the thoroughbred Angus cattle, consisting of one, two and three year olds, male and female. They came over the Northern Pacific Railroad from Indianapolargest three-year-olds were weighed and tipped the beam at 1630, 1620 and 1598 pounds respectively. They are pronounced by stock men the best breed of cattle for beef in the state, and their importation will no doubt prove a profitable investment to their owners.

TO MAUD.

From her Aunt Polly.

My DEAR NIECE:-With sincere affection I address you. You were tenderly raised and cared for, and provided with the necessary girlhood drill to insure a brilliant sucess. I ssure you I am more than pleased to see you gaining it. Nature has endowed ries us upward to purer, nobler and higher you with literary ability, when developed, will brilliantly outshine "the most deserv edly popular" Gail Hamilton. You are very fascinating, and it grieves me much to see you bidding for the fond attention of that modest young man of whose embraces you spoke last week, but if he is your affinanced, all well and good, for no nobler young man ever walked the streets of Co: rallis than B. W. Now, dear Maud, you know the great interest I feel in you, and while it pleases me to see you display "the most leser edly popular" expressions and society otice your biddings to young men.

Nature has given you a wonderful phy sique-plump in form and nimble as a aspen leaf, modest in manuer and as gentle as a dove, fastidious in manner and sweet as alstrawberry, fair in complexion and lengthy her father's residence in this city. as a crane. Now, dear Maud, cease to be the young man's evil genius, that you are.

I am happy to observe your advent into politics. Your success is assured. I am tilled with family pride, for I know you will show to the world that you are "the most deservedly popular" of the popular. Should you at any time be in need of funds to carry on your enterprise, check on Your affectionate Auntie.

well known in this section to need any praise from our pen. Prof. Campbell is not only well known in this section, but has almost a national reputation as a Chirstian scholar and as a public speaker. He has filled many important positions in this state in a manner that has enderred him to all and his name is one of the brighest and fairest upon the pages of Oregon History. In Miss Stump he has found a help-meet indeed; one that can appreciation his efforts and assist him in his grand educational works and enorts. The Oregon Exhibit.

The New Orleans Times-Democrat ci March 30, contains the following paragrapa relative to the recent a rival at the expesition of the last car load sent from Oregon, and the display from this state:

Among the new attractions to the Oregon exhibit is the arrival of a new shipment of fruit and vegetables. Although coming a distance of about 4000 miles at this very March, it is in very good condition, which fact speaks volumes for the "keeping" qualities of the products of Oregon. The apples are of the varieties that ripen in the fall and winter in that state. The pears are of late kinds, and are a very fine and a very temptbeen increased by several varieties of large and beautiful specimens of this vegetable, a number of which weigh five pounds and are thirteen inches long. There is no denying the statument that Oregon has one of the best displays of fresh fruit and vegetables now on exhibition at the exposition. In addition to the above, the commissioner of mines, yeslerday opened five boxes of ores, comprising gold, silver, copper, iron and cinnibar, the richness of which should attract the attention of mining men. There are several thousand pounds of rich ores on the way that may be expected to arrive at any time, besides an additional car load of the varied products of the state.

Advertising.

The object of an advertisement is to bring business-to attract customers. One would suppose that this was a self-evident proposition that only needed to be stated to have its truth perceived. Yet, if we look upon the conduct of business men generally we see they act upon a converse rule. In dull sersons when merchants are doing little the time to advertise presents strelf. But business men generally at such seasons discontinue the advertisements they have and say, we shall advertise in the busy season when iness revives. There is nothing doing now, so we cant afford it." When the basy The sole object of an advertisement is to ed, woed, won. Men are at all times willing to buy, but there are occasions when that act on this rule, and the convequence tise only when during these rare seasons when business is naturally brisk. The consecuence is they practically throw away their money. All the rist of the year they move along in slow, hum-dram style. ! $ seems strange to us that intelligent marchants do not perceive the truth of the avposals to be filed with County Clerk on or iom that the time to advertise—the time to solicit business, is when business is dull.
