Annual Statement

From the annual statement made to the City Council at its last meeting, by Mayor Jacobs we glean the following facts:

There have been collected from all source es $5,940.64 during the past year, and there has been drawn on the treasurer $6,396.16. making a deficit of $455.52. This, together with the indebtedness of last year, makes the total indebtedness of the city $3421.67. The expense of maintaining order, such as making arrests, fees of officers, etc., has been a large drain on the funds. However this was caused by the building of R. R. in our midst and the natural disorders following all such improvements. Great credit is due our marshal and the extra officers who have been appointed, for the manner in which they have maintained order. He calls special attention of the council to the sidewalks of our city, and now that the office of marshal is salaried, he should devote a great portion of his time seeing that they are kept in proper conditon. Our alleys should be thoroughly cleaned, as the health of our city depends greatly on this. The volunteer fire department should have the most liberal consideration and cisterns should be kept in good repair. He recommends the establishment of uniform system of drainage, also that sidewalks on our principal streets should be eight feet wide.

Died From Drinking.

A very sad death occured in our city last Saturday from drinking, in which our citial custom; a day set apart for strewing the zens showed very little humanitarianism An old gentleman by the name of William H. Allen, who has seen the frosts of over sixty winters, has lived in our city for some time past, his avocation being that of a boot-black. He was addicted to drink and the few short "bits" he would earn with his brush soon tound their way to the sawith their families and loved ones on that loon-keeper's till. He had no relatives in the city and his friends were nearly as scarce dear to them, gather about the grassy as his kinsfolk. He was burried on Sunday, by less than a half dozen who volunteered a few moments to pay the "last sad rites." No tears were shed at his grave, nor no soft hands spread flowers on his coffin; no christains were there to offer a prayer and no sorrowing friends left the grave with a heavy hearthe was only a boot-black. Rest in peace.

The boot-black's gone to rest And those who know him best Don't seem to care. He was treated like a beast, Not respected in the least; Is it fair ?

From a Member of the Coffee Club.

EDS. GAZETTE:-In the last issue of the Leader, we find a "Query" signed by one "Fireman," in which he censures all the temperance workers of the city. Now as I am a charter member of the Coffee Club, I know that the accusation is unjust to at neath the mound that marks their resting least a few workers, and I would like to inform that "Fireman" something as to the formation of this club. Prior to its organtens the eye. Arrizslumber peacefully there, and to strew their ing at this conclusion, the Union lalies last resting place with spring's brightest asked all the ladies of the city to meet them at the Evangelical church to organize. Three good and brave hearted young ladies responded to the call. Not feeling satisfied to organize with so few, a committee was appointed to make another call and to see if the fireman's hall could be had for our meeting. At the next meeting, on May 28th, just nine ladies came, five who were members of the W. C. T. U., four who were not.

We organized and the good work began. At the "big fire," wnen all Corvallis seemed for a while, doomed, not only did soldiers to all our citizens, to join with but ladies of both the W. C. T. U. and the

A Pleasant Surprise.

OBSERVER.

On last Wednesday evening a number of friends of Leo. Stock gathered at the home of Miss Jessie Taylor, from whence they proceeded to the Stock mansion, determined to give Leo a grand surprise. The occasion was his 21st birthday, and those who had known Leo for years in his boyhood, wished to congratulate him on having arrived at that age at which the laws of our country permit him to be a man and manage his own affairs. The evening was enjoyably spent in dancing, singing and card playing, at at a late hour the gathering adjourned, wishing Leo long life and prosperity.

The steamboat City of Salem, which made regular trips to Corvallis during the winter months, was sunk last Thursday at put in the McKenzie river, preparatory to the lower end of Rock Island a few miles above Oregon City. When opposite Champoeg a shaft was broken and the steamer Isabel coming along took her in tow. When rounding the corner at Rock Island the Salem struck a sharp rock which was hidden by high water, and had a hole stove in amidship, about sixteen feet long. The vessel began sinking and the crew quickly made her fast to the shore. The vessel careened to one side and new floats have submerged. She had seventy-seven tons of freight, mostly flour from the Salem Mills, fifty tons of which were saved. She is valued at $16,000 and will probably be saved.
