Whatever is intended for publication must be authenticated by the name and address of the writer not necessary for publication, but as a guarantee of good faith.

We do not hold ourselves responsible for any views or opinions expressed in the communications of our correspondents. By a decision of the Post-office Department all persons receiving or taking papers from the postoffice—even when addressed to them—become responsible for the subscription price.

Advertisements, notices and communications intended for this paper, should be handed in as early as Wednesday morning, to insure their publication. Subscribers not receiving their paper regularly will order a favor by giving notice of the same at this office.

Subscribers will bear in mind that the subscription price is invariably $3.00, when not paid in advance.

Sawed the Bear off.

One of our popular jewelers, the "initials" of whose name is W. C. Crawford, for several weeks past has been doing some carpenter work and assisting in the construction of a building for himself. Everything had went smoothly with the building until last Monday, when Mr. Crawford undertook to saw a stick of timber in two which he did quite painfully. He secured one end of the stick to the building and climbed out on the end away from the building which had no support and began sawing between himself and the building. He had worked along in this measure for some time, when all at once he realized that the timber was sawed off, and that the bear was also sawed off, and Crawford himself had actually fell to the ground. The next time the bear will have to stand on the other end of the stick so that Mr. Crawford may not get hurt. Fortunate to say that Mr. Crawford only sprained his wrist, while the "bear" did not otherwise get hurt.

For the Exhibit.

Waggoner & Buford are still desirous of securing a few more samples of Oregon productions for the New Orleans exposition. Commissioner E. W. Allen was in the city the first of the week, and was well pleased with the samples already collected, one of which was a hollyhock standing 14 ft. high; another was that of a stock of wheat containing 110 straws all having a well filled head, the production of one grain. Some one counted the number of grains in one head and figured on the yield, making it a little more than 1000 bushels from one. The car for which these samples are being collected will start east about August 15th. Samples of grain in the straw, cut as close to the ground as possible, and also samples of all kinds of grain after threshed will be gladly received by Waggoner & Buford.

The Fish Ladder.

The Portland "News" has been a little too premature in its item about the letting of the contract for the construction of the ladder over the falls at Oregon City, and also that the contract had been secured by the Portland Iron Works. Commissioner Baldwin informs us that the contract has not as yet been secured by any one, but in all probability will be let in a few days, and that the San Francisco bridge company will be the successful competitors for the contract. From this it does not appear that the "Portland Iron Works secured the contract last Monday, and that the ladder would be built of iron."

Another Fatal Accident.

Word was received in this city last Monday of another fatal accident which happened in Linn county, but no particulars. It has since been learned that the victim was a son of ex-sheriff Rice, of that county, and that while riding a horse in the vicinity of Lebanon last Sunday was thrown and instantly killed. The boy was about 16 years of age, and a general favorite in the community where he lived. The parents and friends of the deceased have the sympathy of all in this their sad bereavement.

Officers Elected.

At the annual election of officers of Corvallis Hook and Ladder Co. last Monday evening, the following were elected to serve for the ensuing year: President B. R. Job; Vice president N. A. Thompson; recording secretary Sol Stock; financial secretary I. Harris; treasurer Z. Job; foreman O. C. McLagan; 1st assistant T. Whitehorn; 2nd assistant J. T. Barce. The company is in a healthy financial condition, there being now in the treasury $550.

Mose Kline went to Eugene City Monday for a ten days vacation, and will probably spend a portion of the time at the Foley Springs.

Judge Strahan and C. W. Watts, of Albany, were in the city Tuesday. We acknowledge a fraternal call from Watts, the printer.

It is said that a species of birds, evidently a cross between the native Oregon grouse and the Mongolian pheasant, are becoming quite numerous in parts of the state.

The regular meeting of the Coffee Club next Monday will be postponed until the next regular meeting. Members will take notice and govern themselves accordingly.

Nolan has returned from his summer vacation and is again in the lead with a new advertisement. His great semi-annual sale will commence next Saturday and continue for 30 days, and no humbug.

M. J. Monteith and T. J. Overman, two jolly knights of the yard stick of Albany, went to the Bay last Saturday, taking their noisless steeds for exercise on the beach. They will remain ten days or two weeks.

Wm. P. Wright, wife and daughter and Miss Sadie Angell, of Coquille city, passed through Corvallis Monday en route for Dallas. Mr. Wright is a deputy U. S. surveyor and has just finished quite an engagement at Coos Bay.

In many parts of Southern Oregon farmers are cutting their wheat for hay, as the dry weather of last spring lasted so long that the wheat became stunted, and though the late rains came in generous quantities the growth could not be regained.

Passengers on the O. P. train last Monday morning report seeing Nick Baesen at Caledonia, with coat thrown aside, sleeves rolled up and busily engaged with wheelbarrow and shovel. It is not known whether he was digging for clams or grading a lot for a residence.

Charley Fenton has entered the journalistic field, having associated himself with Westernfield Bros., in the purchase of the Lafayette Register. Here's our best Charley, hoping your will in due course of time discover the "millions there is in it."

The Oregon fever has extended to Pennsylvania, and movements are on foot looking to the formation of colonies. Fruit sent to that state by residents of Portland has done much to create favorable impressions of Oregon and discontent among the people of the old Keystone State.

It is singular how many people there are in every community who want the editor of a local paper to "air the matter up," who would shrink back in silence if called upon to write a communication on the same subject and sign their name in full to it. There are some such in Corvallis.

Two hunting parties from Corvallis one day this week succeeded in bagging over 100 grouse, according to reports. W. G. Campbell and Zeph Job were the champions of the different parties, they having killed nearly one half of the entire number of birds. If the Oregon legislature would protect the feathered tribe, it will do well at its next session to enact a law prohibiting such men from hunting.

An eastern Oregon exchange says: A Wing shipped the first car load of this year's wheat from Echo. The ball has commenced to roll and the jingle of the twenties will be a favorite tune after a while.

There is a disease raging among horses in Grant county, and there are but a few horse men who have not suffered a loss of colts. The disease is said to be similar to blackleg, and the animals generally die in a few hours after they manifest symptoms of the disease.

Among the passengers who left on the train Wednesday for a sojourn at the seaside we noticed Miss Ida and Mattie Burnett, Jessie and Allie Samuels, Messrs. Thos. Callahan, A. T. Keese, W. P. Kealy, C. C. Hogue, Thos. Graham and family and many others.

Prof. W. W. Bristow and family left for Pleasant Hill, Lane county, yesterday where they go to visit relatives and recreate for a few weeks. The Prof. will spend a portion of the time in hunting bear and other small game such as are to be found in the neighborhood of wheat fields.

Harvesting in all parts of the county is now in full blast. The present cool and cloudy weather is very favorable, and the farmer rejoiceth over the prospect of a bountiful crop and the possibility of a lively "set to" between the Russian bear and the British lion.

Bob Johnson and Wm. Edmonds were out among the birds Tuesday afternoon when they met an irate granger who invited them to "make themselves conspicuous by their absence" about his wheat field. The birds suffered little inconvenience. We always were of the opinion that Bob was more of a success at "setting red-hot nonpareil italics" than with the feathered tribe.

We have received the manual of the Oregon Humane Society, containing the state law for the prevention of cruelty to animals, and the constitution of the society, which has for its object the prevention of cruelty to every living creature, by all proper means including humane education. The law on this subject will be interesting matter to many of our readers, which we will give in full in some future issue.

The last number of the LaGrande "Gazette" contains the valedictory of the editor, Lon Cleaver. He has not been on the "ragged edge of despair" more than about ten months; and he steps "down and out" with considerable agility, taking with him breeches, boots and nice Baraside whiskers, as well as paste-pot and scissors and the fierce fowler that he so deftly shoved. He has had glory till he can't rest; he is perfectly satiated; and is now more than willing to pull and fill molars and bispapils for a living.—Ex.

Closing out Sale.

The closing out sale at C. H. Whitney's is attracting many buyers who are attracted by the very low prices—actual cost for goods. This is a genuine closing out sale and as the stock is a well selected one and first-class, the people should not fail to improve the opportunity.

Dissolution Notice.

Notice is hereby given that the firm heretofore known as Dillon Bros. & Stover is this day dissolved by mutual consent, Joel Stover retiring. The firm will hereafter be known as Dillon Bros., who are responsible for all outstanding accounts and will collect all due the old firm. DILLON BROS., JOEL STOVER, Corvallis, Or., July 15, 1885.

Fruit Raisers Attention.

The Economy fruit drier at Woodcock & Baldwin's, Corvallis, Or., utilizes the heat on a common cooking stove, which enables the drier to work successfully during the time when meals are being prepared for the family on the same stove, thus enabling the operator to dry rapidly and with no expense. It will dry four or five bushels of apples per day and other fruits and vegetables in proportion. Every family should have one in order to save without expense the fruit which goes to waste, thus making a clear gain of all dried. The price is a mere nothing and within the reach of all. Only twenty dollars for a machine complete and will do as good work as any of the high priced machines which cost ten times as much.

Yaquina as a Summer Resort.

At no other point on the coast of Oregon or Washington Territory, says the "Mail," can be found the many varied facilities and qualifications for a first-class summer resort, as are found on Yaquina Bay. Here we have a beautiful bay which can be utilized for sailing, rowing, fishing and bathing. An unrivalled ocean beach for driving amine surf bathing. Both salt and fresh water fish, crabs, clams; and two varieties of oysters, and for the hunter, deer, bear, cougar, and nearly all kinds of small game. In reality a regular sportsman's paradise. Parties who have been in the habit of going to the mountains or to Clatsop beach or Ilwaco, near the mouth of the Columbia, will find after visiting Yaquina, that the pleasures to be found at the latter place surpasses by far those of the first named places. Since the opening of the Oregon Pacific road for travel, even Portland people can get here as cheaply, and with much less trouble than to other seaside resorts. Come and see for yourselves, for we are satisfied that if you come once you will come again.

LIST OF LETTERS.

Remaining unclaimed in the Postoffice at Corvallis, Benton County, Oregon, Friday July 24th 1885. Persons calling for same will please say "advertised," giving date of advertisement: Brandon, E. Davis, W. A. Lahine, Thos. Miller, John A. 2 Palmer, C. M. Pierson, Dick. Sprague, Frank. Wiese, Rudolf.

What they Say.

The editor of the Montezuma Republican says: "After 2 hours ride Corvallis is reached and hundreds of her people stand waiting on the river's bank. We are escorted to the court house where several short addresses were made, after which we repaired to the large city hall where a most bountiful repast was prepared by the Coos Clubs of the place. These are simply temperance societies and the ladies having the matter in charge deserve the thanks of the fraternity for the very excellent treatment bestowed upon us. Corvallis is the county seat of Benton county, and is a bright thriving city of about 1,500 inhabitants. It is pleasantly situated on the west bank of the Willamette River, on a beautiful plateau, one and a half miles wide, entirely above high water. It is the head of navigation on the Willamette river, except at a very high stage of water. It is the present terminus of the Oregon and California Railroad. West Side Division being ninety-seven miles from Portland. It is also the present terminal point of the Oregon Pacific Railway, being constructed eastward from Yaquina Bay. Educational facilities are very good. The State Horticultural College, with a full complement of teachers, is situated at this place and in addition there are two district schools that are well sustained. The town is well supplied with churches and the morals of the community are good. The leading industries of the country are farming and stock raising. The yield of wheat is generally twenty-five bushels to the acre, that of oats about forty. The surplus of wheat shipped from the county last year was something like 300,000 bushels. This county is sixty miles wide and forty long, extending east and west from the Willamette river to the Pacific ocean. It contains 1,110 square miles of area, and has a population of about 9,000. Its eastern third is level, and the remainder is timbered high land, admirably adapted for pastures. The price of land varies from $1.25 per acre (Government price to $40, according to locality, but good farms well improved, can be bought at $10, $12, $15 and $20 per acre.

The Atlantic "Messenger" says: "So many people have asked our opinion in regard to moving to Oregon or Washington territory that we will give a general answer to that all may see it. If you want to go farming and have money to buy land, stock and improve it, and are looking up a location, we do not know of a more favorable country. You will have to pay a good price, but you will get rich land and have the advantage of as delightful and healthful a climate as the sun shines upon. You will find an intelligent and hospitable people, with plenty of schools, churches, etc. But you must have money—for if you don't you will have to go back and hunt up some valley among the mountains, where you are debarrated from all the social advantages you are used to in Iowa, and are also without means of transportation to market. The same may be said of business. There are plenty of openings for men with capital, and who are energetic. There is little room, however, for lawyers, doctors and other professionals. But if you have not money, with which to start we advise you to keep away. Do not go there to make a living by day's work, and by all means stay away if you have not got a trade, for in the latter case you will have to compete with the Chinese, and then it is doubtful whether you could find anything to do, for thousands of these people are out of employment on account of the stoppage of railway construction. The West needs capital much worse than it needs people. The man with money can do well—the man without had better stay in the East."

"Our readers should remember that in order to understand properly the advantages and disadvantages of the western coast they should keep in mind the fact that a description of, or comparison with, Iowa will answer. The country is cut up by ranges of mountains, between and among which are the most delightful of valleys. The former are heavily timbered, and the high peaks covered with snow, the latter fertile almost beyond belief and watered by numerous cold, clear streams. If there is any one particular spot in this country which presents almost every element that goes to make life pleasant, it is the famous Willamette Valley. In this favored locality the home seeker will find every advantage of climate, soil and society. He enjoys winters without cold and summers without heat. His land will produce amazingly and quantity of fruits is almost oppressive and of the finest quality. But he must have money with which to buy, for it would be absurd to believe that so highly favored a locality had so far escaped the knowledge of the world. The entire valley has been settled for many years. They are a highly intelligent class of people who know they have a good thing and who cannot sell out and "go west" for they have reached the verge. The land is, therefore, very valuable and it takes a great deal of money to get a farm.

"The boys of the Iowa press excursion are 'all broke up' over the girls of the Willamette Valley, Oregon. It is claimed by experts that that section produces better looking women on the average than any other in the United States."

Iowa Democrat Reporter: "2nd now we return and Saturday morning awake at Albany, from whence we are led by two bands of music, with a drum major to board a steamer and fill an invitation, 12 m., up the Willamette river, at Corvallis, where these kind people try to excel all before in their viands and kindness. Well, we are all good eaters and partook lustily, even our ladies seemed to have 'loosened a tuck,' so as to increase the storage."

Tipton Conservative: "Oregon is a vast domain possessed of resources that an empire might covet. Her valleys both in extent and productiveness, are unequalled. Her hills and mountain sides bear millions of acres of splendid timber, while myriads of them are ribbed with precious metals and valuable ores; her climate never made an honest enemy, and her fruit is unparalleled for size and flavor. Portland like nearly all the other towns in the extreme northwest, is overrun with Chinamen. Of her 35,000 inhabitants, 6,000 belong to this despised race. They own some of the best business blocks in the city, thus making it impossible to get rid of them. At Eugene, Ashland Grant's Pass, Albany and Corvallis, and at all the stations along the route, we were met by representative men of the press and people and were the recipients of one continued ovation.

One of the Iowa editors said: "During the entire western trip of nearly 3,000 miles we saw but two or three intoxicated men, and other members of the party say the same thing. And yet there were saloons on every side, all open and running at full blast. There were two or three fellows among the excursionists, however, who kept well picked all the way, and it was a common remark that the only drunkards to be seen in the west were those we had on our own train."

President Swalm of the Iowa Press association, in the Oskaloosa Herald concludes an account of his journeyings in the northwest, as follows: "These are not the mere tales of a traveler. It is a perilous business to be sure, to go into this sort of figure mysticism, and in the readers place we might not be able to coax ourselves to believe them. But these are the mildest things, the most casual facts, the meagerest results of ordinary observation, that came to us in that section of prodigious things. We have purposely refrained from telling of the really large things we saw, because we have to live among this people and we hope still to preserve a reputation for veracity."

DIED.

WARD.—At the home of his parents, in Kings valley, Polk county, on the 8th of July, in the 30th year of his age, Charles A. Ward, of blood poisoning, caused from erysipelas.

Death was quick in this case, as he celebrated the 4th of July and lay on his death bed the 8th. A young man full of promise, and with a golden future before him, is gone. He has left a vacancy in the same circle that this world can never fill. But we know he is happy, as the dying testimony proved to parents, brothers, sisters, and friends. And when the boatman pale had come for those still waiting on the shores of Time, may they be ready to emulate his departure, and go praising God.

MOORE.—In this city Thursday July 23, 1885, of consumption, Mrs. Amanda Moore, wife of Sidney Moore, aged 35 years.

That Wood.

Those parties who have threatened to surprise this office by bringing wood to pay their subscription to the GAZETTE will do so at once, or forever cease their threats, as it is desirable to get wood cut and put in the shed before harvest, and because parties who so carelessly threaten to deliver wood after harvest are always prevented from filling their engagements by the early rains and their fall work. Another very important thing for those who deliver wood is to come to the office before unloading the same and learn where it should be unloaded, and after it is nicely corded, come again to the office and see that they are credited on the books for the value of the wood. There is a correct and proper way for persons to do business—those who deliver wood for subscription as well as any other person.
