A DESIRABLE FARM

Situated two miles above Mehama, Marion county, Or., and three miles from the line of the Oregon Pacific railroad.

—THIS PLACE—

Consists of 452 acres of both hill and level land, containing rich, black soil for meadow purposes. There are about 200 acres that are covered mostly by small underbrush such as hazel, willow, and small firs, which can easily be grubbed up fixing it ready for the plow; the other portion is partly mountain sides and heavy timber but is splendid pasture; eighty acres of this has had the first slashed and burnt off and is now covered with nice orchard and timothy grass, the seed having been sown five years ago.

A GOOD HOUSE, with the necessary outbuildings, is already erected on the farm close to a running brook; and a barn suitable for most any farmer, is also built; also sheep sheds, etc.

THE ORCHARD consists of about 200 trees of choice varieties—prunes, apples, cherries, etc.; they are now 8 years old and will soon furnish large quantities of fruit. Quite an amount of small fruit also.

There is about fifteen acres seeded to Timothy grass for hay and about THIRTY acres ready for plowing purposes.

THE FENCES are all substantial, ranging from seven to nine rails high; a county road passes along by the place. The north side for over 2 miles is bounded by the clear, running waters of the Little North Fork of the Santiam river, in which is an abundance of mountain trout, and in April and September salmon inhabit the river.

THE PRICE asked is a very reasonable one, and will be made known to any person, desiring to purchase, upon application to F. S. CRAIG, at the office of THE CORVALLIS GAZETTE, Corvallis, Benton County, Oregon.

AN ECONOMICAL MILLIONAIRE.

John I. Blair, of Blairstown, N. J., is reputed to be worth $50,000,000, yet such is his strong sense of merely holding his wealth in trust for the benefit of his fellow men that he spends upon himself less than is paid to his humblest workman. When Mr. Blair stops at the hotel, if he intends to stay over night, he usually asks for a small inside room on the parlor floor. If it is in the winter and too cold to sit without a fire, he sits in the public lobby. If he intends to leave before midnight, he does not take a room at all, but occupies the public room down stairs, and if he wishes to change his shirt, he slips into the little washroom behind the offices. "I never offer or refuse," he said jokingly to a gentleman who offered him a cigar.—Pittsburg Commercial.

In 1881 the number of suicides throughout the country was 605, and since that time there has been a steady annual increase. Last year the number reached 1487.

PIMPLES TO SCROFULA.

A Positive Cure for every Skin, and Blood Diseases except Ichthyosis.

Psooriasis 8 years. Head, arms, and breast solid scabs. Back covered with sores. Best doctors and medicine fail. Cured by the Cuticura Remedies at a cost of $3.75.

I have used the CUTICURA REMEDIES with the best results. I used two bottles of the CUTICURA RESOLVENT, three boxes of CUTICURA, and one cake of CUTICURA SOAP, and am cured of a terrible skin and scap disease known as psoriasis. I had it for eight years. It would get better and worse at times. Sometimes my head would be a solid scab, and was at the time I began the use of the CUTICURA REMEDIES. My arms were covered with scabs from my elbows to shoulders, my breast was almost one solid scab, and my back covered with sores varying in size from a penny to a dollar. I had doctored with all the best doctors with no relief, and used many different medicines without effect. My case was hereditary, and I began to think, incurable, but it began to heal from the first application of CUTICURA.

Skin Disease 6 Years Cured.

I am thankful to say that I have used the CUTICURA REMEDIES for about eight months and great success, and consider myself entirely cured of salt rheum, from which I have suffered for six years. I tried a number of medicines and two of the best doctors in the country, but found nothing that would effect a cure until I used your remedies.

THE FARMER FEEDETH ALL.

My lord rides through his palace gate My lady sweeps along in state, The sage thinks long on many a thing, And the maiden muses on marrying The minstrel harpeth merrily, The sailor ploughs the foaming sea, The huntsman kills the good red deer, And the soldier wars without a fear; But fall to each what'er befall, The farmer he must feed them all.

Smith hammereth cheerily the sword, Priest preaches pure and holy word, Dame Alice worketh broidery well, Clerk Richard tales of love can tell, The tapwife sells her foaming beer, Dan Fisher fisheth in the mere And courtiers ruffle, strut and shine, While pages bring the Gascon wine; But fall to each what'er befall, The farmer he must feed them all.

Man buildeth his castles fair and high, Whatever river runneth by; Great cities rise in every land, Great churches show the builder's hand, Great arches, monuments, and towers, Fair palaces and pleasing bowers, Great work is done, be't here and there, And well man worketh every where. But work or rest, what'er befall, The farmer he must feed them all.

Found Out.

When Lieut. Markham returned after a long cruise to claim his bride, and found a rival had won her love, he sought to console himself by plunging into dissipation.

It was late in the morning that he stumbled into his rooms and found his brother George there waiting for him.

Partly to explain his condition, Harry told his brother how he had returned to find the girl he loved engaged to marry a young man named Pollard from Texas.

George Markham seemed to recognize the name and description of the man, and then said:

"Harry, if you will promise never to drink again, I will promise to break off this engagement and restore Miss Danforth to you."

"But if she still loves him?" "I will undertake to cure that love," said the brother decidedly.

They clasped hands in silence and both knew the compact would never be broken.

The next day was Sunday, and Mr. Danforth remained with his family. They were seated in their private parlor, and Ralph Pollard was there talking with Lucy, when George Markham knocked at the door.

On his entrance Pollard changed color, and slipping a ring off his finger, put it in his pocket. The action was only noticed by Markham.

After a few words of hearty welcome had been spoken, Mr. Danforth turned to introduce Pollard to the new-comer.

"No introduction is necessary," said George, quietly. "I know Mr. Pollard well."

The younger man seemed confused, but advanced, holding out his hand, of which Markham took no notice.

"I come on an unpleasant errand," said George, speaking slowly and distinctly. "It is to request Mr. Pollard to withdraw his suit for your daughter's hand, and to tell her that he is unworthy of her love."

"Bless my soul, George," said Mr. Danforth, "what do you mean?"

"Mr. Pollard knows," said

Pitcher's Castoria.

George. "Will you do this, sir?" he continued speaking to Pollard, who had grown white.

Lucy spoke up indignantly: "Mr. Markham, this is outrageous. Ralph, tell him he is wrong. He has made some terrible mistake."

For she knew George Markham to be an honorable man, and even at such a moment thought he must be mistaken.

Thus incited, Pollard said: "You are certainly mad to talk so, sir. I will not do any such thing."

"Then take the consequences," said Markham. "Give me my ring which you have in your pocket, and which you stole from my room, together with my purse, when I was a guest in your father's house. You did not think I saw you; but I was awake. I kept silent for the sake of your father, who was my valued friend. But I regretted my leniency afterward, when I learned of some other villainy which you will hardly care to have me disclose."

"It is false!" said Pollard. But as he looked around he saw in the faces of those around him that his bluster was useless. Even Lucy shrank from his side.

"Very well then, I will go on with the recital," said George. "Shall I?"

"No. It's no use. Here's your ring. And I suppose you want your money back?" said Pollard, with a curse, throwing down the ring and pulling out his pocket-book.

"I do. I want twelve hundred dollars, with interest for four years," said George, quietly.

Pollard counted out the money, and started to leave the room. Before he went, George said:

"I will take no further steps in this matter unless some fresh villainy come to my knowledge. But remember that there is a woman who is entitled to your name, although she was deceived by a mock marriage. See that a genuine marriage is performed or you may hear from me again."

The villain, thoroughly conquered, answered only with a bow, and was gone.

"I am sorry to have been obliged to do this," George began; but Mr. Danforth interrupted him: "Don't think of being sorry. You have done us an estimable service."

Lucy had left the room and George soon made his exit; and seeking Harry, again told him what he had done.

And in the fullness of time he had the pleasure of dancing at his brother's wedding and of being assured by that brother that Lucy declared her love for Pollard to have been nothing but a fancy, which was entirely destroyed when she learned his true character.—N. Y. Morning Journal.

Inventor Edison, together with Hon. Thos. Lowry of Minneapolis, patented a steam "lingagraph."

This "lingagraph" is designed to be used on locomotives in place of the steam whistle. The machine talks instead of shrieks. Instead of whistling down breaks, it bellows the word "breaks." It is all a question of pipes, valves and key board, and when the thing is finally perfected it will toot the names of all the stations along the line.

Oregon has 535 postoffices, Washington, 462; Montana, 299; Idaho, 216. Alaska boasts an even dozen.

With no state debt and a very low rate of taxation, Oregon offers exceptional inducements to Eastern people contemplating emigration westward. The property owners of Portland may consider themselves remarkably fortunate when they learn that in such cities as Omaha the rate of taxation is $7 on the $100, and in Los Angeles, Cal., $2.70 on the $100. Considering that Portland's assessment is $3 on the $100, and the property being assessed at only one-fourth of the value, which will bring the tax down to less than $1 on the $100, persons owning property in the city are indeed fortunate. The state rate of taxation is low, because there is no debt to meet, which is not the case in many less fortunate states. Besides Oregon, according to the Cincinnati Commercial Gazette, the states so fortunate as to be out of debt are Illinois, Wisconsin, Delaware, West Virginia and Colorado. West Virginia is prohibited by her constitution from going into debt. California and Iowa have no debt to settle, though paying interest on a school fund. Kentucky is nearly free from debt. New York owes $7,000,000, Ohio, and Minnesota less than $4,000,000, and New Jersey and Kansas less than $2,000,000. Virginia is the most heavily burdened, having a funded debt of over $23,000,000, and an unfunded debt of over $8,000,000. Massachusetts carries the next heaviest debt, over $31,000,000. Next comes Tennessee, $17,000,000; Pennsylvania, $15,000,000; North Carolina, $13,000,000; Louisiana, $12,000,000, and Maryland, $11,000,000. The total indebtedness of all the states is $220,000,000, which is less than 1 per cent. of their aggregate taxable property. The rate of taxation is heaviest in Nevada, Nebraska and Louisiana. And, though Massachusetts stands second in the size of her debt, she has the lowest rate of taxation in the Union—less than 12 cents per $100.

AN OSTRICH FARM.

Sells Brothers recently bought all the ostriches on the famous Santa Ana, Cal., ostrich farm and will carry the full flock of ostriches with their big show this season, after which it is their intention of establishing an ostrich farm either at Columbus, Ohio, or Topeka, Kansas, at both of which cities they have vast real estate possessions.

An experienced keeper travels with the birds and will explain the details of ostrich breeding. The feathers of these birds last year were sold to a New York firm for $15,000, but this year they were not plucked and their beautiful plumage will attract the admiration of all who see them.

COUNTRY AND CITY LUNGS.

A few days ago a New York specialist in pathology showed the writer two bottles. One contained a section of a healthy lung of a man who had lived in the country, and the other the lung of a man who had lived and died in New York. The country lung showed a clear pink color; the city lung was almost black, and it was impossible to trace the veins through the smut and dirt. The experiment proved, of course, that the air in New York is so impregnated with dust and dirt that the lungs become in as much need of a bath as if they were laid in a bed of charcoal.—Hartford Courant.
