CORVALLIS, OR., AUG. 2, 1889.

THE GRAND OLD MAN.

One of the grandest figures of modern times is the great leader of the English Liberals, Gladstone. He is now nearly eighty years old, active, vigorous, intellectual and aggressive. His reading and study have been so general that he seems informed on almost any subject.

Chauncy M. Depew recently had an interview with Gladstone, and said that every subject talked about seemed to be his specialty, so wide and general is his information. He is one of the few very prominent men who has had the courage to change his attitude towards great public questions and acknowledge his mistakes in former opinions. He has finally confessed his mistakes of opinion about America, and now expresses his pleasure in knowing that he was mistaken. Intellectually he may not be superior to Bismarck, but his powers are used more in the interest of progress and the elevation of the oppressed than the great German who seems devoted to German imperialism. Both are great men whose places it will be very difficult to fill when they pass away.

SEVEN HUNDRED MILLIONAIRES.

In the number of men possessing most extraordinary wealth America takes the lead. In a recent French publication dealing with the subject twelve men are selected as the richest in the world, from a financial standpoint, of course. Of this number seven are Americans. Their names are Jay Gould, Mackay, C. Vanderbilt, J. P. Jones, Astor, Stewart and J. G. Bennett. The other five include the English Dukes, Westminster, Southernland, and Northumberland, Marquis Bute and Rothschild.

In all it is shown that the world contains but 700 men entitled to be called millionaires, and the distribution of this number over the face of the earth is of interest. England leads with 200 men possessed of $5,000,000 each; the United States takes second place with one even hundred; Germany and Austria, together have 100; France, 75; Russia and the Indies each 50; and all the rest of the world 125.

No doubt we all think it is a shame, as indeed it is, that so much of the riches of the world should be held by so few, and yet, how many of us are there that would not like to be one of the 700!

THE OREGON PACIFIC.

The Oregonian of the 27th inst., editorially says: The statement made by some one, who was either too careless to become informed or who intentionally falsified, that work had been stopped on the Oregon Pacific railroad, which statement was quickly denounced as untrue and without any foundation whatever, has again called no inconsiderable attention to this road. From its very location alone it cannot be otherwise than a great factor in the development of Oregon, and, more especially, of that portion lying east of the Cascade range. It will dissect the state, and for a great portion of the distance across this commonwealth it will be without a competitor for the business which already awaits its completion, and for that vastly greater volume which will accrue when sections now isolated are, by means of transportation facilities, opened up to settlement. Not much has been said of the renewed activity in the building of the extension across the mountains and through eastern Oregon; but the preliminary surveys have been completed, a contract of some magnitude has been awarded upon which work is now being pushed with all possible energy, and representatives of two or three other contracting firms are now at the front figuring upon many more miles of cuts, fills, bridges, etc., which still remain to be built. All this is evidence sufficient that the $5,000,000 raised last spring by the company upon its bonds in New York, have been made available for immediate construction. The future of the Oregon Pacific is no longer a matter of conjecture. Its success is assured beyond peradventure. For several years its management has struggled against failures and disappointments, never losing faith in the greatness of the enterprise which it was fostering, and now comes the keen satisfaction of being able to show to the most pessimistic doubter the great possibilities which are plainly before it.

A great section of the country already too long isolated from the paths of commerce, though possessing vast resources, lies between the Columbia river and the California line, and the Cascades and the O. R. & N. road. With the exception of the branch line into Heppner built by the last mentioned company, this vast area of our state, embracing many thousand square miles, is without transportation facilities other than those of the most primitive character, at the best only the pack saddle or the lumber wagon. It is scarcely possible to realize the wealth of this isolated inland country. The hardy pioneers who so far from its population have little time to spread before the outer world a knowledge of their valuable surroundings. For from the marts of trade it requires unceasing labor on their part to establish themselves in comfortable competencies.

Occasionally we read of great mineral deposits too far away from a railroad to be developed, sections of land which would yield fine crops which it were no use to raise for lack of a market, and also of greatness of the two principal industries of this region, wool growing and stock raising, in both of which money can be made despite the obstacles which we have noted.

How much more prosperous then will be the people of this region, how much more extensive will become their present resources and how rapidly will they increase in number, when a railroad pierces the very heart of this unknown land, so unknown, indeed, that but recently so great a paper as the Scientific American characterizes it as "a vast, sterile, unproductive plain." Every benefit which should accrue to the railroad which does so much for this country will be reaped by the Oregon Pacific. If there were no other aim in its construction than to develop central Oregon, the road would be a financial success, as well as a public benefit. But we do not lose sight of the fact that the bonds of this road, upon which the $5,000,000 for further construction were raised, were guaranteed by men well known in the financial world, men whose names are prominently connected with the Chicago & Northwestern, a road that has aspirations to be a transcontinental line, and whose connection with the Oregon Pacific at Boise City will accomplish the desired end.

The improvement of Yaquina bay, for which congress has been so ardently and so successfully importuned in the past, will also accrue to the benefit equally of the people of the state and of the stockholders of these two railroads. The management of the Oregon Pacific has worked continually for this improvement, and pending its completion has not pushed the construction of the extension of the road so rapidly as otherwise it would have done. To make the operation of this road a complete success requires a harbor at the western terminus of the road, where deep sea vessels can come and go without delay of any kind. By the time this is accomplished the railroad will be built, and Oregon will have another shipping point for her rapidly increasing productions.

"A gentleman from Iowa with $50,000 in his pocket, visited Pendleton the other day and intimated that he would have engaged in business there had the town not looked so ragged and out of order, and so he held onto his wallet and invested it at Walla Walla. Take warning, old ye ragged towns!" says an ex. Will this apply to Corvallis.

Barrum & Bailey's circus and menagerie will sail for England in October for a winter season at the Olympia, London, which seats 30,000 persons. Three steamers will be required, and the cost of voyage to and from will be about $500,000.

A large fire is reported burning in the Blodgett's valley. Probably this accounts for the smoky weather just now.

MOTHERS!

Castoria is recommended by physicians for children teething. It is a purely vegetable preparation, its ingredients are published around each bottle. It is pleasant to the taste and absolutely harmless. It relieves constipation, regulates the bowels, quiets pain, cures diarrhoea and wind colic, allays feverishness, destroys worms, and prevents convulsions, soothes the child and gives it refreshing and natural sleep. Castoria is the children's panacea—the mothers' friend. 35 doses, 35 cents. 3:16-2y.

A list of canned goods carried by E. E. Paddock, "The People's Grocer," who makes it a point to secure anything new in this line that may present itself in the market: Chipped beef, corned beef, clams, deviled chicken, deviled ham, two kinds, deviled lobster, deviled tongue, deviled turkey, lunch ham, lunch tongue, lobsters, oysters, pig feet, roast chicken, salmon, Shrimp, plum pudding, condensed milk. Besides a full and complete stock of all kinds of canned fruits and vegetables. Campers and picnic parties will do well to bear this fact in mind.

Jack Davison, a first-class bricklayer, was placed in jail yesterday on account of being too drunk to be orderly. He created quite a disturbance Wednesday evening on the streets and tried to force an entrance into Mr. Emerick's residence on First street yesterday morning.

A corn stalk measuring thirteen feet is displayed in front of Hartless & Davison's real estate office. They also have some grain stalks which are over six feet high. E. C. Pentland, of the West Side, at Independence, was in Corvallis on Saturday going to the bay to spend Sunday catching an ocean breeze.

Hon. Ed. Belknap and Miss Ida Booth were married last Sunday, July 28th, by Rev. S. P. Wilson, at the Simpson chapel in Monroe.

New school books will be exchanged for old ones at Allen & Woodward's drug store on Main street. Bear this in mind, every one.

The galvanized iron front of Avery's new brick is quite fancy. It is the work of J. D. Clark's employees.

When Baby was sick, we gave her Castoria,
When she was a Child, she cried for Castoria,
When she became Miss, she clung to Castoria,
When she had Children, she gave them Castoria.

Masons are now rushing the brickwork on L. G. Kline's new building.

ITCHING AGONIES.

Every Night I Scratched until the skin was raw.

Body covered with scales like spots of mortar. An awful spectacle. Doctors useless. Cure hopeless. Entirely cured by the CUTICURA Remedies in five weeks.

I am going to tell you of the extraordinary chance your CUTICURA REMEDIES performed on me. About the 1st of April last I noticed some red pimples like coming out all over my body, but thought nothing of it until some time later, when it began to look like spots of mortar spotted on, and which came off in layers, accompanied with itching. I would scratch every night until I was raw, then the next night the scales, being formed meanwhile, were scratched off again. In vain did I consult all the doctors in the country, but without aid. After giving up all hopes of recovery, I happened to see an advertisement in the newspaper about your CUTICURA REMEDIES, and purchased them from my druggist, and obtained almost immediate relief. I began to notice that the scaly eruptions gradually dropped off and disappeared one by one, and have been fully cured. I had the disease thirteen months before I began taking the CUTICURA REMEDIES, and in four or five weeks was entirely cured. My disease was eczema and psoriasis. I recommended the CUTICURA REMEDIES to all in my vicinity, and I know of a great many who have taken them, and thank me for the knowledge of them, especially mothers who have babies with scaly eruptions on their heads and bodies. I cannot express in words the thanks to you for what the CUTICURA REMEDIES have been to me. My body was covered with scales, and I was an awful spectacle to behold. Now my skin is as nice and clear as a baby's.
