AMERICAN EXPORTS.

The national grange which met at Topeka, Kansas, last year set in motion an investigation concerning the amount of American products exported to other countries and its relation to the whole supply at the sections to which our exports went.

The subject was placed in the hands of Statistician Dodge of the agricultural department. He has prepared and submitted an interesting report. It shows that of the 144,000,000 bushels of wheat which Europe imports to patch out its own production the United States furnishes 95,000,000 bushels. We also send about 2,500,000 bushels of oats and 3,000,000 bushels of rye to the markets of the old world. In the matter of corn the United States is a large exporter sending annually 68,000,000 bushels across the Atlantic. We also send 25,000,000 pounds of butter and 118,000,000 pounds of cheese to our cousins across the sea.

The greatest article of export from America to Europe is cotton. The total import of Europe is 2,636,000,000 pounds, of which 1,850,000,000, or over two-thirds, comes from the United States. It is no wonder that "cotton was king" in the free trade days before the war. Our wool export comes next to the cotton shipment, being 600,000,000 sent annually to Europe.

The conclusion reached from these figures and their comparison with the data of former years is that the United States is becoming more and more a self sustaining and exporting nation. About one-tenth of our agricultural products are exported. No other nation can show so large a proportion.

While our exports are yearly on the increase our imports are annually growing less in amount and variety. Every year new industries are springing up to supply our people with goods hitherto sent from the factories of the old world. This is a most flattering and hopeful condition of trade and production.

POSTAL CARD CONTRACT.

The contract for furnishing postal cards to the United States government for the four years beginning October 1st has been awarded by Acting Postmaster General Clarkson to Albert Doggett of New York, the lowest bidder. In addition to the present size two new sizes will be furnished to the public—one smaller than the card now in use and the other larger. Allowing for the difference in weight, the cards are about one-third cheaper in the new contract than in the old one. The average price of the cards is about 9 cents a pound in the old contract and about 6 cents a pound in the new one. The estimated number of cards to be required during the four years of the contract term is 2,000,000,000, at a cost of about $800,000. The reduction in cost for the four years will amount to fully $150,000, as compared with the price in the old contract.

CITIZENS, don't worry about Corvallis; it will take care of itself. Don't let your minds dwell one minute on the idea that it would be a good plan to clean her Main street. Improvement is good for the soul, the body and the mind, but in this case it is completely knocked out. We don't want those large rocks taken off the street, it wouldn't give you a chance to take your vehicle to the blacksmith so often; it might cause some eastern visitor to remark that this "is a beautiful city." No, don't for any length of time think that this improvement ought to be done.

MAY IMPEDE THE WORK.

An important decision has been rendered in Judge Deady's court in the case of Samuel Case vs. the U. S. government to restrain the construction of the government jetty in front of the Ocean House at Yaquina Bay. The decision, which is liable to result in an interference with the work on the north beach jetty, was rendered upon a demurrer filed by the defendants, and the gist of it is as follows:

"This suit is brought, to have the defendant enjoined from constructing a tramway along the northern shore of Yaquina bay, near its mouth, in front of certain property belonging to the plaintiff, where access to the bay from said property is hindered and prevented.

"It is alleged in the bill that the plaintiff is the owner of a tract of land in Benton county, Oregon, known as the Ocean House property and worth $15,000, with a tavern on it, which cost $6000; that said property abuts on the northern shore of said bay, into which the plaintiff has constructed a private wharf, to and from which, goods and passengers are transported across said shore between said bay and tavern; that Yaquina bay is navigable for all ordinary vessels and is within the ebb and flow of the ordinary tides of the Pacific ocean, whereby said shore is daily covered and uncovered for an average distance of 100 feet; that the defendant is wrongfully and unlawfully engaged in constructing a wooden tramway over and along said shore in front of said property, with intent to maintain the same there for at least three years, which will completely cut off and prevent access from said bay or wharf to said tavern and vice versa, to the great damage of the plaintiff.

The plaintiff is the owner of land abutting on the "shore" of Yaquina bay. How he acquired it does not appear, and it may not be material. But the title must be derived from the United States, under some of the acts of congress, providing for the disposition of public lands in Oregon. Be this as it may, as a littoral proprietor, he has a right of access from his premises to the water, and to erect and maintain a private wharf there, at which to land and embark, so long as he does not materially interfere with the rights of the public, and subject to the power of the legislature to regulate such use or privilege.

The defendant has no special right in the "shore" or to the use of it, beyond that of the general public, which does not include the right to construct or maintain a tramway or other structure upon or over it that would prevent or substantially impair the littoral proprietor's right or privilege of access to and from the water.

It does not appear from the bill that this tramway is in fact such a structure, or whether the rail or track is laid level with the sand or earth or not. Presumably it is so. But it was admitted on the argument that it is twelve or fifteen inches above the surface of the ground, and therefore cannot be crossed by a wheeled vehicle, unless it is bridged.

Prima facie, then, the tramway is a nuisance, which works a special injury to the plaintiff, and the defendant ought not to be allowed to maintain it; and an injunction is the proper remedy for the wrong.

It is to be regretted if the decision in this case results in an interruption of the work upon the north jetty; or impairs the fullest benefits from the work by causing the removal of the projection within the channel.

Further Great Cures of Skin Diseases by Cuticura.

Boy one year and a half old. Face and body in a terrible condition, being covered with sores. Sulphur springs fail. Cured by Cuticura Remedies.

I have used your CUTICURA REMEDIES in two cases where it proved to be successful. The first was in the case of a boy a year and a half old. His face and body were in a terrible condition, the former being completely covered with sores. I took him to the Massena Sulphur Springs, but he did not improve any. I was then advised to try the CUTICURA REMEDIES, which I did. He took one and one half bottles of CUTICURA RESOLVENT, when his skin was as smooth as could be, and is to-day. I used the CUTICURA on his sores and the CUTICURA SOAP in washing him. He is now five years of age, and all right. The other case was a disease of the scalp, which was cured by washing with the CUTICURA SOAP and rubbing in the CUTICURA, one bottle of CUTICURA RESOLVENT being used. They have proved successful in every case where I have advised the use of them. It is surprising how rapidly a child will improve under their treatment. I recommend them for any disease of the skin as being the best in the world. This is my experience, and I am ready to stand by my statement.

An Unbearable Skin Disease Cured.

I have been afflicted since last March with a skin disease the doctors called Eczema. My face was covered with sores, and the itching and burning were almost unbearable. Seeing your CUTICURA REMEDIES so highly recommended, concluded to give them a trial, using the CUTICURA and CUTICURA SOAP externally, and RESOLVENT internally for four months. I call myself cured, in gratitude for which I make this public statement.
