THE OBJECTOR'S ADVICE.

Representative Holman's Say to a New "M.C."

VETO SENSED SCAVENGERS.

Light steel on the way some objects are introduced.

It is related that a young man in a new term in Congress came up to that veteran of Congress, Representative Holman, for advice touching the peculiar duties of his new office, and received the following suggestions from him:

"All in beer in mind," said the Judge, "that you do not recognize the man who is seated about you and who occupies the same desk as you and the lobus in the middle of the hall. You will find them very congenial and polite gentlemen, and they will take very kindly to everything you make your stay here very pleasant for you. For voting for the private member of the House, you may vote for any of your fellow members as they come up, you will do them a favor which is most convenient for yourself, but you will receive such flattering aspersions that may be made in your own self-appreciation. If you take too many of the House's lights, and are found in the view of the members and the majority party, one of these very agreeable gentlemen whom it would delight to you to be set down and voting according to their wishes. These house bills can't vote for your, and at the next election it will matter little to you in your campaign whatever you have pleased them or not. Consider every proposition to be passed by the House, with the qualification stated: "Whatever reasonable and truthful explanation can I make to make the people at home to justify me to them for having voted on the measure?" The measure that cannot truthfully justify voting for the average man's insurance, in the harvest, or the harvest blacksmith at his forge, you had better vote against, unless you may find your self possessed by some infallible fact that day you can be heard by obliging your friends in and out of this House by voting for their little bills.

The average congressman is clock full of good intentions, and beers the downfuls with an abiding affection. There is no lie he can tell to his constituents to be half. No one of them can suggest to him a service to be performed but they would put their weights behind him and industry. There is nothing for you to do but to go on their behalf. Congressional stimulations, State rights, antiquated notions, and all other regiments as all relegated to the rear when Mulock comes to the executive to put public purposes first, things and being rights are paramount, and not regulated by the statutes of governmental policy.

Fortunately for Mulock, there are other and better guides and Thirgood's Jaffett and Bosch Creek. Much as they are carried on here by jargonists, their minds are kept clean, and they will never lose that invaluable aid in politics of the "Great Man" who is all that one can do for the house to become less of the common interest, interest- ing only to dwellers in the village.

LOCAL RULES.

"A new hotel was opened this season in Washington which is in the most peculiar way ever heard of. It is kept by a woman, she is noted here as a worker in the christian temperance union and other societies. The rule of her house prevents any one from having wine, beer or whisky under that roof. It goes without saying that some of the votaries of the "glory" is sold there. She will not even permit the use of tobacco on the premises. If a man should step into the office with a cigar in his mouth he is instantly commanded to take it out, and told that the "vile habit" of smoking is not tolerated there. A few days ago the pro-

The program may be read out for the convenience of the ladies and gentlemen who are present.
