SHAKEN OUT OF GEAR,

By malarial disease, the human machinery connot half perform its office. Digestion, secretion, evacuation are disordered, the blood becomes watery, the nerves feeble, the countenance ghastly, sleep disturbed and appetite capricious. Terrible is this disease, fell its consequences. There is, however, a known antidote to the miasmatic poison, and a certain safeguard against it. In malarious regions of our South and West, in South America, Guatemala and the Isthmus of Panama as well as in transmarine countries where the scourge exists, this inimitable preventative and remedy, Hostetter's Stomach Bitters, has during the last thirty-five years, been constantly widening the area of its usefulness, and demonstrating its sovereign value. Liver complaint, dyspepsia, constipation, kidney trouble, rheumatism and debility are all remedied by it.

A BUSINESS PROPOSITION.

A City Lady Who Required Proof Before Believing.

There recently appeared in the San Francisco Call, Chronicle, and Examiner, a proposition hitherto unheard of in similar business relaadvertisement in which the Edwin W. Joy Company, in proof of the curative properties of Joy's Vegetable Sarsaparilla, offered for a limited period to submit it to the terrific test of "no cure no pay." Many accepted, and their letters giving their experience are so convincing as to be almost beyond belief. Here is another, written under date January 6, 1830: -

DEAR SIRS: I accepted your offer to test the merits of your vegetable remedy in sick head-aches, and called for a bottle and got it. I had been troubled for a long time, and had tried nearly everything, with little or no effect; but Joy's Vegetable Sarsaparilla acted almost like magic, and the first bottle relieved me from one of the worst cases of sick headache one ever had.

A SPLENDID DISPLAY.

BENTON COUNTY COMES GALLANTLY TO THE FRONT. THE EXHIBIT ADMIRED BY ALL,

The Oregonian of Saturday comments as follows upon Benton county's exhibit at the Northwestern exposition now being held in

Some one of the early pioneers who brought with him "the plains across" pleasant memories of the days when he wrestled with moods, tenses, conjugations and declensions in the Latin tongue, having due regard to the geographical position of Benton county, named its shire town Corvallis, "The Heart of the Valley." The picturesque title is not misplaced. Benton county comprises within its ample teritorial area of square miles practically every variety of soil and climate known to the temperate zone. While its peculiar physical configuration makes the greater part of its eastern portion more accessible to the sea breezes than other localities in the valley, they bring with them, not discomfort, but "healing on their wings," and keep up a onstant supply of ozone in the atmosphere.

Benton county in common with the entire state, is feeling the impulse of the new and active life which is manifesting itself in movements looking to the encouragement of immigration in the shape of organizing boards of trade, local and state, immigration societies, etc. Corvallis has a board of trade, the members of which sometime ago resolved to lend its valuable aid in the direction of making the great Exposition of 1890 a success from an agricultural and horticultural standpoint at least. To this end they authorized W. H. Hartless and Corvallis Board of Trade, to make a collection of the grains, grasses, fruits and vegeattractive form for inspection by visitors to the Exposition. And right well have these gentlemen performed their task. Tables aggregating fifty feet in length and so arranged as to afford at least 200 feet of shelf room, are piled high with luscious fruits, toothsome vegetables and other products of farm and orehard. It is pleasant to note that among the twelve varieties of apples from Mackey's farm near Toledo there is in neither of them the slightest sign of damage, by codlin moth or other insect pest. It is not to be taken for granted, however, that the permanent exemtion of this particular locality from danger in this regard is an assured fact. It would be very gratifying to know that such is the case. General Varney, state inspector of fruit pests, whose atteution was called to the fact, advised the Benton county exhibitor to urge upon the people to take all proper precautions in the premises, and allow no old fruit boxes or other possible transmitters of pests to enter the charmed circle.

The exhibit of pears in this section comprises thirteen varieties, many of them very ine, but some of them, unfortunately, furnishing evidence, as some of the apples do, that the insect pest has been at work. Here is a good place, again to urge upon fruit-growers, the paramount importance of giving their hearty co-operation to the State Board of Horticulture in their already, in many places, successful efforts to exterminate the insect pests which have already done so much harm in this state, Private and public interests suggest such action. Benton county also makes a good display of Italian, German, Silver and Hungarian prones, and six varieties of peaches, among them Golden and Yellow chags.

Messrs. Hartless and Davisson, the committee, met with cheerful co-operation in their labors among the orchardists of Benton, among those contributing to the dis play being Thomas and James Cooper, Professor Tassel, E. C. Wyatt, Thomas Harris, William Mackey, Hugh Finlay and Another noticeable feature of this exhibit is an extensive and attractive display of grains and grasses, which form an admirable letters of credit for the county addressed to intending purchasers of land who "want their money's worth." Among the minor exhibits is the product of one hill of King's early potatoes weighing thirteen and one-half pounds, raised by L. M. Harrison, Toledo; a fine pot of seedling strawberries from B. F. Hyland's farm; the premium squash, 127 pounds, twenty-four inches in diameter, from J. L. L. Powell, Corvallis; wurtzels, from James Wilknfson; rutabagas, E. Hamer, Nashville; onions, Andrew Gelatley; squashes. Charles Horner; watermelons, Pete Record.

The Nashville apiaries, Nash & Sibrec, have an interesting display of bees and house, and Fred Bloomhart of glazing clay. Apart from the exhibit made by the Corvallis Board of Trade, Benton county is most admirably "shown up" by the managers of the State Agricultural college experiment station. The most notable feautures of their exhibit consists of 425 varieties of potatoes grown on a plot of a
