THE SILETZ INDIANS—The present session of the Oregon legislature will be asked to adopt a resolution urging congress to throw open the lands of the Siletz Indian reservation, near Yaquina bay. The Indians are anxious to take their lands in severalty and let the remaining lands be sold for their benefit. If the Indians are to be given a chance to make their own way in the world the opportunities should be given them. A strong point in their favor is that while the Indians elsewhere were indulging in ghost dances and bearing arms against the government, these Indians at the Siletz were contributing $500 toward the erection of a church. They should be given lands in severalty, as asked for.—Herald.

HE WAS ASHAMED

To Ask Again, but His Frank Letter Got It for Him.

A few months ago one of the unfortunate inmates in the San Francisco Alms house was inspired by the sensational statements in the newspapers with the belief that Joy's Vegetable Sanaparilla would help him. But without money, how to get it was the question. Finally he wrote to the Edwin W. Joy Co., appealing to their generosity, and it was not unheeded, the coveted preparation being sent by the next day's delivery. Its effect is best told in a subsequent letter, from which we quote the following:

"I suppose you know me by this writing, and my circumstances and condition. Although I am a doctor, I ask of your generosity for another bottle of your Joy's Vegetable Sanaparilla. The action of its laxative properties is perfectly understood to me in this way, but what shall I do? I thought I might not need any more, but I am now so anxious to keep it up; but you see how I do."

It was sent, and he can get more if he needs it.
THE TOLEDO DEPOT—As is usually the case, there are two sides to the Oregon Pacific Toledo depot matter. The citizens petitioned for a depot and called the railroad commissioners to their rescue, but the board was unable to accomplish anything. A conference was held with the Oregon Pacific company with this result: The company says it will build an ample depot at Toledo just as soon as the citizens vacate the company's right of way, a considerable part of which they are now occupying in various ways.—Statesman.

Now that the rush of the holiday trade is over, the pioneer jeweler, P. P. Grefroz, is enabled to give more attention to repairing clocks, watches, and all kinds of jewelry, and to all such other work as usually comes in his line of business. Mr. Grefroz does artistic engravings at prices much below those usually charged for this class of work. Mr. Grefroz's honorable dealings and the character of the work executed by him are the foundation of the success he has enjoyed in this city through a long period.

Hood's calendar for 1891 is out and it is certainly a beautiful production of the lithographers' and printers' arts. The subject represents three children playing musical instruments, and the positions, expressions, coloring and general finish make a most charming picture. But to be appreciated it must be seen. Ask your druggist for Hood's Sanaparilla Calendar, or send six cents in stamps for one copy or ten cents for two, to C. I. Hood & Co., Lowell, Mass.

OREGON AGRICULTURAL COLLEGE.

DEPARTMENT OF ZOOLOGY AND ENTOMOLOGY.

A man thoroughly competent for this position and one who pursues the study of these subjects for their own sake, is found in Prof. F. L. Washburn. He is a graduate of Harvard and post graduate of Johns Hopkins University and has at different times been employed by the government in scientific work. On one occasion being detailed to make a collection of Northern water fowls and at another time on board the U. S. Fish Commission Steamer Albatros. He has also visited the Bahamas, Africa and Labrador in the interest of his science.

The work of this department, like that of agriculture, naturally separates itself into two classes, college and station. College work is devoted to instruction of students and station work to experiments with insects and insecticides.

The science of animal life in general is taught, particular attention being paid to insects, such animals as are of economic importance to man and to the physiology of the human body. This naturally divides the instruction into three subjects, zoology, entomology and physiology.

In the study of these laboratory work is an important feature. Each student is provided with a dissecting board and seven good dissecting instruments consisting of scalpels, scissors, forceps and blow pipe. These instruments are quite expensive but are furnished by the college to the student who is responsible for their condition. Dissections of animals are made for the purpose of giving a better understanding of the references made in the text book. For the same purpose there are charts representing various forms of animals and their dissections and also museum cases containing mounted animals. This is now an important feature of the college and is constantly growing.

It is the intention to procure specimens of at least all the animals native to Oregon as well as many others.

The student is required after having made a dissection to make a drawing of it. Personal association in the laboratory and occasional examinations enable the instructor to thoroughly acquaint himself with the work and knowledge which the student has of the subject in hand. All instruction is given by recitation on text book and lectures, and by laboratory work. The text book used in Physiology is "Martini's Human Body." An understanding of this subject is greatly assisted by a manikin, an ingeniously constructed chart showing all the parts of the human body.

A cat is dissected in order to obtain a better idea of the typical structures of mammal which can be conveniently procured. In this the student must trace out the alimentary, nervous and circulatory or blood systems; also point out the organs of excretion and generation. In addition to this they are required to dissect a sheep's heart and the eye of an ox, to get a better idea of the anatomy of these two organs in man.

A limited number of microscopes do not admit of an extensive study of the tissues or microscopic structures. However the student is instructed in the use of the compound microscope and how to care for the same. Additional microscopes have been ordered and the study of the tissues in this way will be an important feature of the course in physiology. Other laboratory work consists in demonstrations to illustrate the circulation and composition of the blood, chemistry and mechanics of respiration, reflex actions, etc.

In Zoology the student points out the same system as in physiology, using as specimens the earth worm, clam, cray fish, star fish and frog. A comparison is made of these typical animals to discover how each one performs its functions in comparison to animals of a higher order. Using the result of these observations as a basis, classifications are made. Reference is constantly had to the museum specimens in order to illustrate types and characteristics.

are beneficial and which injurious in agriculture. The work of the Station is taken up by correspondence with farmers, in forming collections, in experimental work with insecticides and in putting into bulletin form the result of such work. These bulletins are distributed free of charge to those who desire them.

The collection of moths, beetles etc., contains something like 250 specimens. This is regarded as simply a beginning.

Work in the Farmers' Institutes is mainly in the way of lectures to farmers on those insects which are useful and injurious to crops, and on the best means of getting rid of the latter.

This department is desirous of obtaining information regarding insect pests together with the methods used to destroy them. Any specimens of uncommon or peculiar insects or any other animals are gladly received. Wells-Fargo Express Co., has kindly consented to carry anything addressed to the "Museum of the Agricultural College," free of charge. All that is lacking then to give this College a most interesting museum is the hearty co-operation of the people of the state. A small contribution from here and there, although small, helps to make a great whole.

DEATH OF MRS. RICE.—In San Francisco, January, 22, 1891, the death of Mrs. Emma Rice, occurred, at the age of 33 years and 6 months. Mrs. Rice, as is well known in this county, was the second daughter of Judge A. J. Thayer, who, during many years of his life, was a resident of this county. Recently Mrs. Rice went to San Francisco to undergo a surgical operation by which she hoped to obtain relief from a tumor which had caused her much suffering; and which, unless removed, would cause death in a short time. The extreme danger of the operation was realized but she decided to submit to it and death was the result. The remains will arrive in Corvallis Saturday, and on the following day will be interred in Crystal Lake cemetery beside those of her father who departed life some years ago. Mrs. Rice was a lady possessed of much more than ordinary intellectual attainments, and her conception of the obligations due individuals, one to another, was highly creditable to her. She graduated from the Agricultural College in 1874, with J. R. Bryson; Thos. H. Crawford, E. H. Taylor and others. In 1878 she was married to Sylvester W. Rice, since which time she has been a resident of Portland. The near kindred which survive her are a son, mother, sister and brother, all of whom, at this sad time, can rely upon whatever comfort there is in a heartily sympathetic community.

AT JOE'S THEATRE.—Comrade R. O. Bates has been engaged by Ellsworth Post No. 19, G. A. R. to deliver 5th famous lecture at Job's Theatre next Tuesday and Wednesday evenings. This story requires two evenings—or in other words, two chapters. The first night is devoted to giving the historical facts of passing through several Southern prisons, vividly portraying the sufferings of our noble boys in blue. The second night will give the finale of the trip of the Union lines to Washington and home; giving the interview with President Lincoln and their stay of eight days in the White House. Our exchanges, wherever Comrade Bates has lectured, speak of his lectures in the highest terms. The lessons that are taught of what a man can endure, should be stored away in the youthful memory of the rising generation to enable them to grapple with a stronger tenacity the events of our country yet to come. The subject matter is a part of our nation's history, but it is a rare opportunity to listen to a person who has himself experienced the trials of prison life. This may be the last, as the veterans of '61 are fast passing away. Tickets on sale at T. Graham's drug store.

PARLOR MEETING.—At the parlor meeting at Mr. Nash's house last week, the subject for discussion was "How Nationalism proposes to deal with the Liquor Traffic." In consequence of unavoidable absence Mr. C. C. Hogue prepared a paper on the subject; explaining how drinking would be decreased by the government holding the excises in its own hands and limiting the number to one to each medium sized city; depriving that one of screens and all adjuncts that help to render the saloon comfortable and attractive, leaving a bare room for nothing but the sale and consumption of the liquor; the customers quitting when their business was completed. The liquor should be sold by an agent of the government who has no interest whatever in the quantity sold, being paid wages for the time employed. The law as it now stands concerning the hours for closing, including the Sunday, together with the selling to minors, should be rigidly enforced. Upwards of thirty people were present, many of whom took an active part in the discussion which followed. It appears that a similar plan has been tried in Gothenburg, Sweden, for many years with considerable success.

WILL LOCATE HERE.—Dr. L. G. Altman, of Kansas, a homeopathic physician of nine year's practice and a graduate of Hahnemann Medical College and Hospital of Chicago, arrived in Corvallis on the 15th of this month and is so pleased with our little city that he has decided to cast his future lot with our people and locate here. He will open an office in a few days.
