The Second Regiment, O. N. G., will go into camp at Eugene June 27th and remain until July 5th. Eugene came up with a goodly amount of encouragement and secured the encampment.

Ralston Cox returned on Monday last from a three-weeks' visit to New York, Philadelphia and other parts of the East. Mr. Cox wears his accustomed smile, having evidently accomplished the object of his visit. He is convinced that Oregon is all right.

J. H. Wilson started for Detroit, Mich., yesterday to attend the general assembly of the Presbyterian church which meets in that city on the 21st inst. An effort will be made to have the next general assembly held in Portland, Oregon, and should it meet with success, the state will be greatly benefited thereby. Mr. Wilson expects to visit Europe before his return to Oregon.

Weber & Son wish to inform the public that they are still in the business and are selling boots and shoes cheaper than ever. Special bargains in ladies' and misses' shoes. They mean business. Give them a call.

News has been received in this city that the condition of our townsman, Thomas Cauthorn, is improving at St. Helena, Calif. This is welcome intelligence to his friends in this county who hope that he will shortly recover entirely.

Several little incidents transpired to mar the pleasure of the presidential party in Oregon, but those rude portrait sketches of its members which appeared in a number of the papers after their departure, were the most unkind cuts of all. The ladies of the party will never forgive us for those.

Born, on May 5, 1891, at Baker City, to the wife of Herbert Kittridge, a son. Mr. and Mrs. Kittridge were former residents of this city. The former is now principal of the Baker City public school, and their friends will be pleased to learn of the prosperity of the family in their new home.

W. H. Barbour, a Lebanon merchant went to Portland a short time ago to purchase a stock of goods and remained away from home until his friends became alarmed in regard to his whereabouts. Last Sunday his body was found in the river, his head having been pierced by a bullet. There seems to be no doubt that he was murdered and robbed.

A joint stock company recently completed a fine four-story hotel at Marshfield, and our former townsman, Matt Wilkins, has rented the house for a term of five years. Mr. Wilkins went to Portland the first of the week to purchase the furniture for the building, and expects to be ready for business about the first of next month. Matt has had much experience in the hotel business and there is reason to believe that he will prosper in his latest venture.

CITY ELECTION.—The notice of city election which occurs on May 18th is given in another column, officers to be elected, clerks, judges, polling places, etc. This will perhaps be the most important city election which Corvallis has ever held from the fact that the subject of extensive public improvements in the city will be discussed by the next council; the question of city ownership of electric light plant and water works will come up and the voters should know something of the ideas of the candidates in regard to these matters. The city, doubtless, is in favor of a progressive council, and the voter should be sure that the councilman he is voting for is one which will reflect advanced ideas in the council chamber. The unseemly scramble for the paid offices will be largely avoided in the next election, as the treasurer's office is the only elective office to which there is any compensation attached. The marshal and recorder will hereafter be appointed by the council. But there is danger that candidates for councilmen may be voted for on account of their preference of certain ones for the appointive offices instead of on account of their position in matters of greater importance to the city.

EUGENE PEOPLE DISAPPOINTED.—About two thousand people were standing in the rain at the Eugene depot to see President Harrison. But the train pulled in and moved out, no one was to be seen, and the people went home disappointed. But if you buy your Wall Paper at the Stationery and Art store you will not be disappointed for E. Bond is closing out his entire stock of Wall Paper, Stationery, and Artist Material, and has Wall Paper from 9c. to 60c. per roll. He is selling every thing at a small per cent above cost.

LETTERS.—Advertised May 8, 1891: Mr. Grouse; Edward Hobes, Angeline Pettit; Miss Fannie Irvine; James Shockley; Martin Williams; C. P. Zumalt. F. A. HELM, P. M.

A VISIT FROM A. D. BARNARD.

The old settlers of Corvallis were gratified this week to meet Mr. and Mrs. A. D. Barnard, who were prominent in this city and county in the early days. Mr. Barnard came to Corvallis in 1852, and was for some time employed in the store of J. C. Avery, then the leading merchandise establishment of the upper valley. Mr. Barnard afterward went into business on his own account and built the first brick building in this city, the one formerly occupied by Jacobs & Neugass and now owned by Jake Blumber. He owned a number of good farms in this county at one time, among them the one upon which the Agricultural College is located. About twenty-three years ago Mr. Barnard took up his residence in Ventura, Southern California, where he engaged in fruit-raising and has since resided. On his farm he has 125 acres in orchard containing 25 kinds of fruit and many varieties of each. He left at this office a package of fruit grown in his orchard in which were many of the ordinary California varieties, soft-shell walnuts, and two clusters of the Japan fruit, a very fine-flavored fruit somewhat resembling a crabapple. The soft-shell walnut is especially adapted to the use of confectioners and is much more valuable than others on account of the ease with which the shell is removed. Mr. Barnard is confident that walnuts could be grown successfully in this state, judging from what he learned of trees planted here for ornamental purposes. The trees, he thinks, require only cultivation to insure a heavy yield. "There is a fortune in the fruit for the young man and a fortune in the wood for the old man," says Mr. Barnard.

Mr. Barnard entertains no fear that the fruit market will become overstocked, and would urge the farmers to turn their wheat fields into orchards as soon as possible. He is enthusiastic upon the subject of fruit-raising and does not allow the fruit pests to discourage him in the least. "Proper care of the orchard will," he says, "overcome them."

Mr. Barnard is certainly a good orchardist. His qualifications combine intelligence and energy. He has made a great financial success of fruit-raising and his bearing is that of a prosperous business man of the city rather than a tiller of the soil. It is to be hoped that the time is not far distant when the farmers of this state will become as prosperous and contented as Mr. Barnard through the same agency.

MINNIE AND ANNIE.—Minnie Wilson is a semi-respectable individual of questionable nationality, but who has strong aboriginal propensities. She sometimes falls into bad company and becomes inordinately boozey. It was under these circumstances that she was arrested by Deputy Scrafton on Sunday evening near the O. P. depot. She remonstrated vigorously and it became necessary to send for a dray upon which to convey her to the city jail. On Monday the recorder fined her five dollars for being disorderly. "Little Annie Rooney" had been with Minnie a short time previous to her arrest and was suspected of having provided her the means of becoming intoxicated. Little Annie was also arrested Sunday evening and placed in the county jail for the night. The following day she was liberated, the evidence against her not appearing to be sufficient to warrant further detention. She, however, gave information which may lead to other arrests.

FOR RENT.—A neat 5 room cottage on line of street railway, 7th street, at $10 per month. Inquire of S. N. Wilkins.

A CHANCE FOR A CHEAP FARM.—A bargain for some one. A farm consisting of 115 acres, 85 acres in cultivation, balance timber, fine orchard, house and barn on the place, situated 4 miles north of Monroe and 12 miles south of Corvallis, adjoining Finley's warehouse. Will be offered for a short time only at $14 per acre. Enquire at this office.

Many years' practice has given C. A. Snow & Co., solicitors of patents at Washington, D. C., unsurpassed success in obtaining patents for all classes of inventions. They make a specialty of rejected cases, and have secured allowance of many patents that had been previously rejected. Their advertisement in another column will be of interest to inventors, patentees, manufacturers, and all who have to do with patents.

PRESIDENT HARRISON IN OREGON.

The train bearing the presidential party crossed the line into this state at a little before 7 p. m. on the 4th, and reached Ashland at 8, where there was a large gathering and where the party was met by the legislative committee. The committee entered the president's car and President Simon delivered a formal address of welcome. In reply the president said:

I esteem it an honor that the legislature of the state of Oregon has taken this notice of my visit, and I receive with pleasure this welcome you have extended to me. I am very glad to greet you and it will give me pleasure to see you further before leaving the state.

President Harrison then addressed a few words to the citizens of Ashland. Postmaster-General Wannamaker and Secretary Rusk also delivered short addresses, and upon being called for Mrs. Harrison and Mrs. McKee made their appearance.

The party was enthusiastically received at Medford and Grants Pass. There was no demonstration at Roseburg on account of the hour at which the train passed that point. The president had not arisen when the train passed Eugene and the people of that city were greatly disappointed upon being informed that he could not appear. Eugene had made arrangements to receive the president in a becoming manner and their disappointment and trouble for naught was occasioned by the non-receipt of a telegram sent to them to the effect that the president would be unable to see them at the early hour at which the train passed through their city.

At Albany the train was to make a stop of ten minutes, and the citizens of that place prepared to give the party a becoming welcome. A special train of the Oregon Pacific company, conveyed to that city about 300 persons from Corvallis, including the cadets of the Agricultural College under arms commanded by Colonel Letcher and the young ladies of the College in charge of Miss Snell. At 8 o'clock the presidential train arrived amid cheers and the strains of "Hail Columbia," the cadets meantime having been drawn up in battalion front, and presenting arms as the train came to a stop. Mayor Cowan delivered the address of welcome, to which the president responded in the following words:

My Fellow Citizens: It gives me great pleasure to see you, and to have the testimony of your presence here this morning, to the interest you take in this little party of strangers that are passing only for a moment in your midst. We do not need any assurance, as we look over an American audience like this, that upon some things, at least, we are of one mind. One of these things is that we have a Union which is indissoluble; that we have a flag we all honor and that shall suffer no dishonor from any quarter. With respect to the inclemency of the morning, I have been thinking that after all there was a sort of instructive moral force in the uncertainty of the weather, which our friends in Southern California do not enjoy. How can a school boy or young woman be well-trained in self-denial and resignation who does not know what it is to have a picnic or picnic dress spoiled by a shower, or some fishing excursion by a storm.

In closing, the president introduced Postmaster-General Wannamaker and Secretary Rusk, neither of whom had time to address the people. Upon being called Mrs. Harrison presented herself. The assemblage presented the party with many floral tributes, among them a U. S. flag beautifully constructed of red white and blue flowers. As the train pulled out the distinguished visitors waved adieu which was responded to with cheers from the gathered throng.

At Salem, where the party remained an hour, Mayor D'Arcy, at the state house formally welcomed the president to the city of Salem. Immediately afterward Governor Penneyer, as its chief executive officer, on behalf of the people of the state of Oregon, welcomed the president and extended to him the freedom of the whole state. The president responded in well-chosen words. Messrs Wannamaker and Rusk spoke briefly. There were large delegations from surrounding towns.

Great crowds gathered at every station between Salem and Portland, but the only stops were at Chemawa, where "Harrison Institute" is located, and at Oregon City. Arriving in Portland at 12 o'clock, noon, on the 5th, the president and party were enthusiastically received. Preparations for the reception had been made on a grand scale and notwithstanding the rain the programme was carried out in full. Upon arriving the party entered six carriages and with a proper escort drove across the river to Portland, where the procession was formed in five divisions. The first was a military division. Four mounted police rode in advance to clear the streets and were followed by a platoon of police. Then came the marshal of the day and aids, the fourteenth regiment, infantry, three companies of infantry from the Bishop Scott academy, First regiment, O. N. G., Battery A, First regiment, O. N. G., all followed in the order named. The other divisions were composed of a number of the societies of Portland, State Board of Trade, Chamber of Commerce, Builders' Exchange, a number of the trades unions, G. A. R., cavalry from Vancouver, U. S., state and foreign officers, paid fire department, veteran firemen, etc., etc. Brass bands led the various divisions. The review took place from the postoffice, and the party dined at "The Portland" at half-past 5. The speeches were made at the Exposition building, all of which were expressive of a hearty welcome on the part of the citizens and of high appreciation on the part of the visitors. The party left for the Sound at 1 o'clock a. m. on the 6th.

There is more catarrh in this section of the country than all other diseases put together, and until the last few years was supposed to be incurable. For a great many years doctors pronounced it a local disease and prescribed local remedies, and by constantly failing to cure with local treatment, pronounced it incurable. Science has proven catarrh to be a constitutional disease, and therefore requires constitutional treatment. Hall's Catarrh Cure, manufactured by F. J. Cheney & Co., Toledo, Ohio, is the only constitutional cure on the market. It is taken internally in doses from 10 drops to a teaspoonful. It acts directly upon the blood and mucous surfaces of the system. They offer one hundred dollars for any case it fails to cure. Send for circulars and testimonials. Address, F. J. CHENEY & Co, Toledo, O. Sold by Druggists, 75c.

A car-load of Pearl oil, just received at A. F. Hershner's.

FOR SALE.—One hundred and sixty acres of land three and one-half miles west of Albany, near the Oregon Pacific railroad, 100 acres in cultivation. Average yield of crop last year was 42 bushels to the acre. Enquire at this office.
