Bicycle riders, now is the time to get your bicycles repaired, re-janned, rims trued up, tires cemented, yes, get them put in good trim, at J. William Hill's. He guarantees his work.

E. A. Milner and wife, for many years residents of this city, and now of Albany, dropped in for their home on Wednesday after a few days' visit with relatives and their host of Corvallis friends.

Electrician Tennaciff carries his right eye in a sling, caused by a severe thump of a hammer which he left lying on top of a step-ladder and forgot about it until he accidentally jarred it down into his face.

Why not pass a law in the legislature, authorizing and confirming, for the use of real estate agents and property boomers a clause something to this effect? "County seat established on this farm to suit purchaser."

Ralston Cox combines business with his pleasure trips and has worked up six risks for the "Equitable Life" during his week's visit to Corvallis. He returns before to-day. Mrs. C. and the little daughter prolong their visit a few days longer.

There is complaint in Albany that their public school is over crowded—a condition that is noted in many towns throughout the state. Enlargement of school accommodations is common. The youngsters seem to be coming somewhat, too.

Editorial correspondence from Salem to the Dallas Transcript says Secretary McBride is recovering from his late severe illness, and attends to state affairs thoroughly, although confined to his bed. There's grit in that, as well as devotion to a trust.

A bill has been prepared for the legislature providing a change in the law for appointment of court reporters. It places the appointment power in the hands of the county court, and calls for a reduction in the per diem of such reporters from $10.00 to $5.00 a day.

Mrs. L. Thornton has opened a new board and lodging house in the Perot building on second street, where she sets a table supplied with the best edibles the market affords, and lets neat and newly furnished rooms at popular prices. The public is especially invited to try her Sunday dinner.

John H. Smith, a resident of the Luckia mine since 1846, died at his house on the 13th inst. at the age of 69 years. He leaves five sons and two daughters. The deceased took part in the Cayuse war, and figured in mining pursuits. He is spoken of as a quiet, unobtrusive man and a consistent member of the Christian church.

Dr. Robert Wilson, one of Benton county's worthy sons, who has for the past seven years been a medical practitioner in the East after graduating from Bellevue Medical college, will soon be back in Corvallis to engage in his profession as a partner of Dr. Farra. The doctor's wife accompanies him and they have already started toward their western home.

A telegram received from Salem yesterday stated that the committee having county divisions in charge would meet last night to consider the various schemes, and if there were no more active opposition to those projects from Benton county than was then present, the bills were liable to be favorably recommended. Messrs. Job, Mackey and Avery went down yesterday to see how the job was done.

Notwithstanding the special holiday demand is over, Greffox is still there with the gems in jewelry. The newest designs in plate, the finest diamond-set and plain gold watches and rings, chains in all varieties; elegant scarf-pins, ear-rings, cuff-buttons, studs, etc., either plain or with stone or diamond-sets, silver and silver-plated watches, gold pens and pencils, spectacles—in fact anything really found in a first-class jewelry store—had at Greffox's.

CORVALLIS CARRIAGE FACTORY.

"You may tell your readers," said Superintendent Sticker of the Corvallis carriage factory on one of his characteristic swallow-wing swoops in which he talks business in twenty different locations in twenty different minutes; "tell them that the Corvallis carriage factory has just finished for a lively firm in this city a new three-seated, silver-mounted canopy carriage that is the best piece of workmanship in the line ever turned out in the state of Oregon. That on Wednesday last the factory made a shipment to a Portland firm of fifty buggies in a lump. That on the preceding Saturday a lot of thirty was shipped to fill a San Francisco order. That a few days ago a car load went to Dallas, and nearly every day smaller lots of from one to a dozen buggies are sent out to fill orders from every section of the country. The factory is finishing from six to twelve buggies a day. Sixty-five to seventy men are employed in the factory, and many of these find it necessary to continue their labors until 10 o'clock every night in order to keep up with their work. The pay roll amounts to over $4,000 a month."

It is a matter to inspire hearty congratulation both on behalf of the factory company as well as the community at large, that the enterprise is meeting with such success. It does Corvallis robust service in more ways than one. To begin with, it adds, on an off hand estimate, 125 citizens to the community's social, industrial and intellectual circle; then, through their hands it distributes the quickening force of $4,000 monthly through the arteries of the economic system, to electrify the nerves of business and back the marts of commerce with its solid bases; and still further, sending its emissaries with its product out into the four corners of the world, it carries the name of Corvallis in commendable terms to remote places, and brings many business men to the city to help in its daily realizations of tribute, who would never be known to the place but for the existence of the Corvallis carriage factory.

ALMOST A FIRE.

The fire bell brought things up standing on the run Saturday morning. The alarm was caused by an incipient blaze in the shop in the rear of Wilkins' furniture store.

A lot of excelsior packing used in upholstery was piled up on the floor and by some means it got on fire. It blazed up pretty lively and threatened to make a destructive fire of it for a few moments; but the flames soon lapped up the flimsy stuff they fed upon and with the application of a few buckets of water the blaze was readily subdued. In the meantime the department had gotten into position for effective work, but happily their labors were not needed and they retired unscathed by a struggle with the "hithers monster of the wasting brand and searing breathe." The damage was $100 which amount was promptly paid, upon investigation jointly, by F. M. Johnson, representing the Home Mutual and Zephin Job, of the Northwestern insurance company.

THE SCHOOLS.

County School Superintendent Ed. L. Bryan of Philomath was at the county seat on business Tuesday last, and met a cordial greeting from his many friends in this city. He reports school work throughout the 83 districts in the county as progressing healthily, notwithstanding the impediments owing to severe weather in the mountain districts to the west of us. District number 53 is moving for a division, which will have the effect of adding another district to the list. It is situated in the vicinity of Toledo. A county institute of teachers will be held in Corvallis some time in February, the exact date not yet having as yet been decided upon.

WELCOME TO ALL SUCH.

Mr. K. Miller was a visitor in Corvallis from Seattle for several days this week. He came to place his young son in college here and to inspect the country with a view of locating in case the prospect suited him. He has been in business in Seattle for years, has laid by a snug competence and is now seeking a small tract of land upon which to make a quiet home for himself and family. Mr. Miller is very favorably impressed with Corvallis and the adjacent country, and after a brief visit to California thinks of coming back and settling down in this vicinity.

A farewell reception was tendered Mr. Char. M. Hodsons, who about close his departure for Portland, at the residence of Mrs. Thomas Graham, Wednesday evening, by the young people of the Congregational church. It was one of the most sociable and graceful of affairs to all concerned. Rev. Kantner presented to Mr. Hodson a complete set of George Elliott's works with a few fitting remarks, to which the recipient responded in words equally neat and appropriate.

NOT FROM A FINANCIAL STANDPOINT.—"I do not recommend Chamberlain's Cough Remedy from a financial standpoint, for we have others in stock on which we make a larger profit," says Al. Maggini, a prominent druggist of Braddock, Penn., "but because many of our customers have spoken of it in the highest praise. We sell more of it than any similar preparation we have in the store." For sale by T. Graham, Druggist.

FROM NEWBERG.

C. F. Moore & Co., prominent druggists of Newberg, Ore., says: "Since our customers have become acquainted with the good qualities of Chamberlain's Cough Remedy, we sell but little of any other kind. Chamberlain's medicines all give satisfaction." For sale by T. Graham, Druggist.

Rev. W. C. Kantner will preach in the Congregational church next Sunday at 11 a. m. on "The Incarnation." At 7.30 p. m. the subject will be "Builders and Building." Sunday school at 10 a. m. Y. P. S. C. E. at 6.30 p. m. The "Endeavor choir" will lead the singing at the young people's meeting. You are invited and will be made welcome.

Conductor Webster reports little or no snow in Portland.

AGRICULTURAL COLLEGE NOTES.

AN INTERESTING BATCH OF ITEMS FROM THAT INSTITUTION.

Reviewing is going on in school now, and the examinations will take place during the last of the month.

Miss Lois Stewart, a graduate of the college, has arrived from Eastern Oregon and has taken up a post graduate course.

The class in higher geology have just finished a course of laboratory work, dissecting a typical fish and examining different portions of it under the microscope. This class will, during the remainder of the term, study in the laboratory a typical reptile, amphibian, and bird.

The special committee of the legislature for examination of the Agricultural College will arrive to-day, and will examine into the management and methods of the college. A legislative excursion, to the number of about 50, is also expected. They will remain over night in Corvallis and will then continue the excursion to Yaquina Bay on Saturday. A choice literary programme has been prepared by the students, and will be rendered at the college chapel this evening. The members of the legislature on this excursion will also take supper at Cauterham hall.

The lecture on Sunday, February 5th, will be delivered by the Hon. Allen B. Shorey, a prominent business man of Portland. The athletic tournament will take place on February 25th. Up to date there has been 20 entries for the foot race, 2 for the bicycle race, and twelve for the other kinds of racing. For the tumbling and performances on the bar and rings there are 9 entries, 4 for high kicking, and 12 for jumping of all kinds. W. F. Keady and G. W. Palmer are the favorites as all around athletes; and it will be a very close contest between these two gentlemen to see who will wear the gold medal.

The literary contest between the two societies will take place on February 10th, at the opera house. The price of general admission will be 25 cents, and for reserved seats, 35 cents. The complete programme as arranged, will be in the next week's notes.

SHOTGUN ACCIDENT.

William Holmes, a young man who has been for some time at work for C. V. Palmer, a farmer on the Greenberry Smith island four miles south of this city, was brought into town yesterday for medical treatment on a severe gun-shot wound in the face. He had the left nostril torn away in a big chunk and had suffered a prostrating shock from which he had hardly recovered when he reached Dr. Farra's office several hours after the accident. To a GAZETTE reporter Young Holmes stated that he was hunting with an old style muzzle-loading shot gun on the island; that he drew his piece to fire at some ducks, and that was the last he knew until he recovered consciousness about two hours afterwards at a point full two hundred yards from where he discharged the gun; that what became of the gun, or as to any immediate particulars of the incident he has not the slightest knowledge, as he did not stop to investigate but struck out for home, his bewildered senses leading him first to the residence of Mr. Gearhart, a neighbor. Mr. Palmer brought the injured man into town where, having his wound properly dressed he goes about all right and will probably round up out of the difficulty with a no more serious effect than a slight disfigurement of his facial comeliness.

BOUND TO DANCE.

The "terrigenos terpsichorean ten" have essentially, emphatically determined to perform promiscuous pantomimes next Friday evening if it takes a leg—yes, if it takes two legs, both feet and not the slightest sprinkling of gyrations with both hands. Finding that it would not be practical to cut a hole fourteen feet square in the dining room floor of the Hotel Corvallis in which to chain the "terrigenos bouncer," or that the "terrigenos sack holder" might become obstreperous and break into the hash foundry and eat all the "vittles" up, the "terpsichorean ten" have concluded to capture the opera house for the occasion, and there where the insurance will hold forth. The high-lord-duke-Micakick that presides over these diaphanous stentilations hereby promptly renounces the seductive machinations of the "terpsichorean ten" aforesaid, to inveigh him into their entangling alliance. Tickets, $1.00; spectators, 25 cents. The dance is a sure go, and don't you fail to remember it when you think about it.

A FEW PLAIN FACTS.

All who are interested in fine art, or who want the finest Pictures to be had in this part of the country, should go to the Gardner-Gallery, corner third and Monroe streets, Corvallis, Oregon. The Echo Organ and Electricity.

The echo organ is something that the most unmusical can appreciate. It is part of the great organ, and still removed from it. Sometimes it is put in the loft between the ceiling and the roof, but the best authorities recommend that it be kept in a room built expressly for it well up toward the ceiling, with openings to permit the sound to reach the auditorium, but always higher than the main organ, because its voice follows the dying notes of the great organ like an echo, and the best effect is given when the echo descends, as though it were the answering voice of angels. There is such an echo organ in Grace church, and a great one is building in this city for All Saints' Catholic church, at One Hundred and Twenty-ninth street and Fourth avenue.

The beautiful idea of the echo organ is not new, for there is one in the great Harlem organ, which was built in 1785, but the use of electricity for playing the echo organ is new, and it is the only way in which the echo organ can be used to perfection without an entirely separate organ and organist. With the electrical keyboard the organist plays the echo organ from the keyboard of the great organ, both together if desired, but usually separately. One of the first electric action organs built in this country was exhibited at the American institute fair in 1890. It was made in this city.—New York Times.

Some Horrors of Quackery.

The old proverb, "Any port in a storm," has often found practical illustration in the empirical treatment of disease. Time was when even regular practitioners in the art of healing included in their professional armament, along with many simple remedies of real value, other matters, the very mention of which might almost suffice to engender illness. We may feel thankful that we have now entered upon a later and more scientific era, and that such extraordinary drugs as venereal gizzards, does' hoofs, snails, and other even more repulsive horrors, do not now find a place in any pharmacopoeia.

There still exists, however, a species of medical folklore, and some of its prescribed wisdom available for use in illness is of the most remarkable kind. Times of panic, by throwing a population to some extent on its own resources for treatment, are apt to create a demand for these survivals of a dark age. This happened lately in Germany, where a toad cooked with much care was swallowed as a cure for cholera. As to the result we are not informed. Most of us would probably choose to suffer rather than thus attempt our own relief.—London Lancet.

Taking It Easy.

"My poor Eugenie," began George Sand to Delacroix, "I am afraid I have got bad news for you." "Indeed," said Delacroix, without interrupting his work, and just giving her one of his cordial smiles in guise of welcome. "Yes, my dear friend, I have carefully consulted my own heart, and the upshot is—I grieve to tell you—that I feel I cannot and could never love you." Delacroix kept on painting. "Is that a fact?" he said. "Yes, and I ask you to pardon me and give me credit for my candor—my poor Delacroix."

Delacroix did not budge from his easel. "You are angry with me, are you not? You will never forgive me?" "Certainly I will. Only I want you to keep quiet for ten minutes. I have got a bit of sky here which has caused me a good deal of trouble; it is just coming right. Go and sit down, or else take a little walk and be back in ten minutes." Of course George Sand did not return.—An Englishman in Paris.

A PAPER WORTH HAVING.

The old saying that "nothing succeeds like success," is well illustrated by the career of the Rural Northwest, which was founded in Portland, Oregon, a little over a year ago, and has already established itself as the leading agricultural paper of the Pacific northwest. It is hardly necessary to say that the success of this paper is simply the result of merit. It is no cheap concern made up of stereotype plates and stale clippings, but is a crisp, clear, and filled with original matter which hits the conditions that exist in the Pacific northwest. Among fruit flower 't is an especial favorite, as it makes horticulture a leading feature, and gives the best and fullest reports published of the meetings of the state horticultural societies of Oregon and Washington, and includes among its regular contributors in this department such men as Prof. Lake, of the Washington agricultural college; Prof. Washburn, of the Oregon agricultural college; A. T. Hawley and others of eminent ability. The dairy department is maintained with no less vigor, as indicated by the fact that its editor, H. M. Williamson, holds the position of secretary of the Oregon State Dairy Association. Live stock and poultry are not neglected, and progressive agriculture is the spirit which animates the general management of the paper.

Among special features are its departments devoted to the "Home Circle" and "Among the Farmers." The latter department is very popular and a special feature with this paper.

One of the peculiar merits of the Rural Northwest is that everything is treated from the practical standpoint of the producer. This handsome 16-page paper, published twice a month, is a paper well worth its subscription price of one dollar per year, and one that every farmer, fruit-grower and dairyman should have and keep. It gives us pleasure to announce that we have made arrangements by which we are able to offer it as a premium to all new subscribers paying us for one year in advance. We could secure some of the Eastern farm papers "such less cost to ourselves, but realize the fact that for this section the cheap class of Eastern agricultural papers are scarcely worth having, and not to be compared in value with the Rural Northwest.

BABY RUNNING SORE

Worst Slight Ever Seen. Legs, Hands, Arms, Body One Solid Deep, Running Sore.

Began Using Cuticura. In Two Weeks Great Improvement Followed by a Complete Cure.

My child began to be sore two months old, began on his face and head. It rapidly spread over all his body. Every one who saw him said he was the worst sight they ever saw. He had to be wound to lines clothes ever so many times a day, and then he would "sick" to his clothes. His little legs, hands, and arms were just one solid deep running sore; he was sore all over, but the deepest ones were on his face and head. His face and ears had great deep cracks in the flesh, and were swollen so that he did not look like a child. He was the worst sore I have ever seen of the kind. We began using the CUTICURA RESOLVENT, and in two weeks we could see a great improvement, and now he is completely cured. His skin is smooth and white, and he seems entirely well. We are so thankful. Portrait inclosed. I would like to tell everyone who has suffering baby about CUTICURA. Mrs. FRED BARKETT, Winsfield, Ingham County, Mich.
