SSS
CURES MALARIAL POISON

Nature should be assisted to throw off impurities of the blood. Nothing does it so well, so promptly, or so safely as Swift's Specific.

LIFE HAD NO CHARMS.

For three years I was troubled with malarial poison, which caused my appetite to fail, and I was greatly reduced in flesh, and life lost all its charms. I tried mercurial and potash remedies, but to no effect. I could get no relief. I then decided to try SSS, and a few bottles of this wonderful medicine made a complete and permanent cure, and I now enjoy better health than ever.

LOCAL ANCIENT HISTORY.

At times a bit of ancient local history is interesting both to old residents and to those who come among us more recently. With a view of presenting something of this nature a GAZETTE reporter dove into some of the age-attained records of the county clerk. About the first discovery made was the fact that in 1880 the officials of the county indulged in what is politely termed a "necktie party," in which Philip George was a prominent character and S. B. Fargo was the master of ceremonies. This social gathering was brought about by the killing of George Clark on the 10th day of March, 1880, by the said Philip George, a German, who left no relatives in this country to "mourn his loss," nor to deride the GAZETTE for disinterring the dead past. Philip was indicted for the crime on the following 10th day of April; Lemuel A. Clark, foreman of the grand jury and I. N. Smith, prosecuting attorney. He was tried, convicted and sentenced to be hanged, all on the 14th day of April. They seemed to have an expeditious way of despatching justice in those days. R. E. Stratton was the judge and T. B. Orleneau, clerk; attorneys for the state, J. Quinn Thornton, J. D. Fay; for defense, John Kelsey, A. J. Thayer; the jurors were A. R. McConnell, John Harris, Jos. C. Alexander, Chas. Gaylord, D. W. Nicholson, Geo. P. Wren, Franklin Kinder, Levi Ruppell, John Foster, Wm. Wood, Drury Hodges and Isaac B. Justice; the witnesses were N. P. Briggs, Benjamin Despain, Wm. Preston, Drs. J. R. Bailey, J. G. Combs and T. J. Right.

Upon petition a respite was granted from May 25th to June 22d. This document was signed by John Whiteaker, governor, and attested by ... Heath, secretary of state.

The return of the execution was made in the following words: "I, S. B. Fargo, sheriff of Benton county, state of Oregon, do hereby certify that I served the within warrant by erecting a gallows in Benton county and hanging the said Philip George by the neck until he was dead, which execution took place on the 22d day of June, A. D., 1880, instead of May 22d, as the governor granted a respite for twenty-eight days which stayed all proceedings till 22d; and I took the said Philip George to the gallows on the said 22d day of June, and there hung him by the neck till dead. The drop fell at 15 minutes past 12 o'clock, p. m. He hung twenty-five minutes. Drs. Right and McAfee pronounced life extinct and he was let down ... Thus ended the career of Philip George.

"Given under my hand this 22d day of June, A. D., 1880, Benton county.

"S. B. FARGO, Sheriff."

SUMMER RESORTS.

The Sunday Oregonian publishes a column and a half article on Yaquina Bay, fitting it down as an ideal summer resort, and adds:

"Newport is the point where a majority of visitors make their home while at the bay. There are several excellent hotels in the town and quite a number of good boarding houses, all of which spend the summer at the Yaquina, whether it be but for a day or for a month or two, can be assured that their creature comforts will be well provided for. There are a good many people here at present and there is a daily increase in arrivals, and the latter part of the month Yaquina bay will doubtless be crowded with those who wish a brief respite from business cares and the affairs of daily life."

Concerning the mountain resorts up the Santiam on the line of the Oregon Pacific, the article says:

"The Oregon Pacific railroad possesses a rare advantage over its competitors in the matter of summer resorts. In addition to the seaside resorts at Yaquina bay and vicinity, to which it gives easy access, their line extends into the Cascade mountains, and at the end of the track, up at an altitude of some 3,500 feet, there has just been established a splendid hotel to accommodate those who wish to spend a mountain vacation inhaling the pure, bracing mountain air. The place has been christened Idanah, and its sylvan surroundings make it a matchless resort. It is, in fact, one of the first class mountain resorts of the northwest. Idanah is fifty-four miles east of Albany, and trains run daily to this point, leaving Albany at 1:30 p. m. The scenery along the line is beautiful in the extreme, and it is doubtful if there can be found anywhere in the country prettier scenes than several that can be observed from the car windows as the train whirls along on its journey up into the heart of the Cascades. The road follows the north fork of the Santiam river, on its south bank, up as far as Mill City. At this point the road crosses over to the north bank of the stream, on which side it continues to its present terminus. After leaving Mill City the scenery becomes grander and more rugged. The Santiam river becomes more interesting to study as it tumbles wildly over huge boulders and through narrow gorges, while now and then it broadens out and becomes a smooth, placid stream. The traveler along this route who admires the beauties of nature cannot fail to enthuse over the varied and ever-changing scenes that are before him. Those who would like to spend their summer vacation in the mountains may be interested in learning what the attractive features are of Idanah as an outing place. In your correspondence there are inquiries put up into the Cascades last week to inspect this new resort. Trout fishing can be had here galore. The Santiam river, on the bank of which Idanah park is situated, is fairly teeming with trout of all kinds, and in addition, there are a beautiful wood land park where parties who prefer can pitch a tent and indulge in camp life in the mountains."

Thursday at noon Homer Mulkey rode one of his harness work horses from the field, and in dismounting was caught by the check hook on the back band and injured in a shocking manner. Dr. Pernot, who was called, states that a distressing wound was inflicted, but does not consider it dangerous.

Reports from Baker City are that a fabulously rich bed of gold was discovered. It was found at the bottom of a 350 foot shaft in the Virtue mine near that city. The water was all pumped out and an almost solid streak of gold eight inches wide was revealed. Two miners took out two sacks of ore worth $10,000. One specimen weighing eight pounds, contains $800.

Engine merchants are now having large quantities of goods shipped from Corvallis by team. These goods come from San Francisco by the O. P. steamer and rail line, but a recent raise in the freight rates by the S. P. from Albany to Eugene renders it profitable to ship by team. These conditions are the outcome of competition between the O. P. and the S. P., and the disposition of valley merchants to trade with San Francisco.

Joe Smith, a tramp, was placed in the calaboose this forenoon by Marshal McFerron as an Albany paper. Thinking that our Joe may have ridden his wheel through the dust to Albany, and neglected to display visible means of support, and in consequence was juggled, a GAZETTE reporter inquired in to the matter. It transpired that it was another member of the Smith family. The coincidence, however, is considered very remarkable.

NEWPORT NEWS.

SOME OF THE BEAUTIES OF OUR WESTERN NEIGHBOR CITY DESCRIBED BY AN OLD CORVALLIS RESIDENT.

NEWPORT, Or., July 18, 1893.

EDITOR GAZETTE: Comfortably settled in what is known as the "Matthews Cottage," a beautiful spot on the bluff overlooking the ocean, we are drinking in the salt and slight and sound of the broad, blue sea. Already we feel the stimulating effects and anticipation much benefit from this health-giving air.

There are fewer visitors to the coast this year than we have seen during the past five years. The hard times and the world's fair, no doubt, have detained many; yet it may be that when the very hot weather strikes the valley, more will flee to the coast to get cool. The accommodations at hotels and for cottagers and campers were never better, and all who come can be satisfied. The new hotel at Big creek, "The Monterey," is cozily nestled among the big trees of the large and handsome grove at that place, and offers a calm retreat for the wearied and oppressed. We found our good friend, Mr. J. H. Wilson, of Corvallis, enjoying the comforts of this pleasant home. He very kindly entertained us during our short visit there.

The Newport hotels are bidding high, with unusual attractions, for patronage—which we hope they will receive.

Occasionally we see a few lonely maidens meandering the beach, ostensibly looking for water agates, but really longing for some absent lover who is unable to be present on account of the present pressing circumstances at home.

There has been but one bank failure here this season. The stockholders were mostly rotten roots and dried-up grass sods; the deposits were large and consisted entirely of sand and gravel. It is generally supposed that it will not resume, and, like all sand-banks, will eventually disappear. Another bank has already started and is doing a fair business.

The carriage factory at this place for the most part is turning out only carriages. There was one bicycle, however, that tried to make a run on the beach but soon collapsed and went in for repairs.

Please excuse the leanness of this epistle and wait for more items in the next.

T. E. J.

WHAT DOES IT MEAN?

It is a well-known fact that the Burlington route has surveyors working out as far as Idaho, and that their agents have been all over Oregon looking around; that they are now extending their line this way in Montana; and that they will get an outlet to the deep water of the Pacific ocean in the next few years. It is also known that the Chicago & Northwestern is already away out in Wyoming, and that it too, will soon extend out to a Pacific port. The big Rock Island Route has not yet pushed out so far, but they run magnificent trains to Denver. In a letter to a Salem paper received the other day, John Sebastian, general passenger agent of the Rock Island, Chicago, said: "I hope another year we will have more mileage in that district." We wonder what Mr. Sebastian means? Does he mean that his road is going to join in the chase to the Pacific with the Burlington and Northwestern? If so, the writer hopes to see the race commence soon, and he believes that time will be called not later than next season, if, indeed, it has not already been called.—Salem Statesman.

CORVALLIS TO THE FRONT.

The Corvallis Daily News is the name of a new paper which was ushered into existence Tuesday evening. Henry Pape, jr., who is not unknown to newspaper fame in this county, is the publisher. Business men and others interested would be glad to know that there is a field here for a local daily paper, edited with some ability, and which could give the more important news of the world to its readers in advance of the Portland dailies. The publication of a daily in Corvallis, on any other basis will not meet what little demand there is for an evening journal. But, Mr. Pape is persevering under adverse circumstances; he has a prolific resource of devices for bridging financial chasms not possessed by ordinary business men, and possibly persons of ordinary acumen are not suitable judges of what may be accomplished by the Daily News. There is no protective duty in the newspaper realm; it is on a "revenue only" basis, and the producer, or his friends, pays the tax. So the News has full scope for its physical, moral, or intellectual powers.

TO MARY'S PEAK.

A party consisting of T. A. Bell, wife and son, Zephiah Job, wife and son, Frank Conover and wife, Mrs. Cooper, Miss Hennie Harris and M. P. Burnett started for the summit of Mary's Peak on Saturday morning. They camped at the base of the mountain Saturday night and the following morning packed the camp equipment upon their horses and ascended to the summit of the peak, which is said to be about five miles from the head of comfortable navigation. But there is certainly as much discrepancy in the actual and the stated distance of one of these miles as there is between the actual and stated amounts of land in an acre of mountainous country. Around about Mary's Peak there is a great deal of distance to the mile. There is no great amount of pleasure to be obtained during the time consumed in the ascent except in taking an occasional rest. At other times the circumstances require a strict attention to business. The summit reached, however, the view is well worth the slight inconveniences of the journey. The weather and atmosphere was very favorable upon the occasion of this party's visit, and the view was unfolded in two distinct panoramas which were magnificent in the extreme. From this point a view is at once obtained of almost the entire Willamette valley with its cities, towns, rivers, groves, grain-fields, etc., shut in upon the eastern horizon by the rugged Cascade range from which the many snow-peaks ascend in increased grandeur as the higher points of observation are obtained. The minor observations through a field-glass are also very interesting. To the westward there is an intimate succession of mountains, between whose walls the meek burntwoodman dwelleth in happy seclusion. And we must return an elevated position and pass on over this vast expanse of mountain tops until the eye reaches the western confines of the American continent and beyond to a point where the ocean commingles with the sky-blue of heaven. We hope this will meet the expectations of our readers, so far as the general view is concerned.

We now return to camp on the peak, partake of luncheon, and place ourselves in an advantageous attitude to witness the sun sink into the western sea. This was also a charming scene; but we have no sunset descriptions on hand at present, and therefore will be compelled to omit special mention of this feature of the programme.

Later in the dewy evening the conversation drifted from one subject to another and finally to the aborigines who burned their signal fires on this spot in the misty ages of the past. The discussion of Indians and Indian character led to the suggestion of a social war-dance, which was indulged in and greatly enjoyed by all present.

There are some of the details of this trip which are necessarily left out of the account and the discomforts of sleeping out upon the ground will not be dwelt upon. Monday morning we saw the sun rise. This was very interesting to some members of the party who had not before witnessed this well-known phenomenon of nature. Soon after the morning meal the descent was begun and was without incident. A little diversion indulged should have been noted previously, and as the pleasure in mind is seldom enjoyed here in midsummer it must not be omitted. At a large snow-drift one of the ladies of the party undertook a toboggan slide, and was fairly successful in so far as she slid, although the absence of necessary conveniences rendered the act quite hazardous to the sensibilities, not only of the lady herself, but of the entire party.

The vehicles were reached in good season and after a rest of a few hours, the party started homeward. Six o'clock p. m. found all safely in their respective homes in Corvallis, somewhat weary and worn, but having no regrets of the trip to offer.

"GREEN GOODS" DOCUMENTS.

The "green goods" people are again endeavoring to work their community. A number of letters have been received through the Corvallis postoffice lately, setting forth the perfection of the counterfeit greenbacks exchanged for coins by the operators, with the same "fake" newspaper clippings which have been sent for years. It would appear from one of these letters received here that the postal detectives are shadowing some of the persons engaged in the business. Upon the outside of the envelope enclosing this letter were in effect the following words: "The postal department has reason to believe that the within matter is of a fraudulent nature. If such prove to be the fact upon examination, the person addressed will confer a favor by returning to the local postmaster the envelope and contents to be forwarded to postal headquarters." The person who mailed the letter is evidently known to the detectives, and as the gentleman who received the documents at once complied with instructions, it would seem that a strong crew must be obtained.

A FATAL RUNAWAY.

Has often been caused by using defective harness. Now that Cam. Hemphill has made such reductions in his line of business, there is no possible excuse for taking any chances. By means of his superior facilities he is enabled to revolutionize prices in harness, saddlery and kindred goods. For spot cash he is now offering Concord Lead Team Harness, 2x2x traces (complete), $28.00; Team Lines, 1x20 with snaps, $2.75; Home Teams, 6 for $1.00; Duck Buggy Harness, $1.25 each; 14 Lash Halter with rope tie, $1.00 each; 14 Breast Strap, $1.25 per pair; 14 Pole Strap, $1.25 per pair; Team Blind-Bridles, $3.25 to $4.50 per pair; Twelve-Point Binder Whip, 75c each.
