

IMPRESSIONS OF HAWAII

Ladies wear Mother-Hubbard Gowns—Customs in Vogue in the new Republic.

EDITOR GAZETTE.—I promised you a letter on Honolulu, so I will try and redeem my promise. We were booked to leave San Francisco on "The Monowai" at 2 p. m. July 26th, and friends had come down to say good-bye and see us sail; but the Australian mails were seven hours late and we had to wait for them. In the meantime we returned to the city and about 6 p. m. took a "French dinner" at a swell restaurant—it was the last meal I ate for two whole days. Promptly at 9 p. m. we steamed out into the bay and I immediately retired and slept soundly, but awoke the next morning, oh! so sick. Seasickness is something which I am not equal to describing. On the whole our sail was very pleasant—the sea, calm and smooth; the service and table, excellent; the officers, polite and obliging; and the passengers, genial, intelligent and communicative. Each day grew warmer as we approached the tropics and at last thin clothing became a necessity. The flying fish in large numbers would arise out of the sea, spread their fins and sail full hundred yards or more out of the track of the vessel. On the morning of the seventh day we sighted land. On the left Molokai, the home of the lepers—to which all infected with this lingering death are banished for life. There every provision is made for the comfort, health, medical and spiritual attendance of these 700 unfortunate, in one of the healthiest and most beautiful valleys of the islands. (Our right lay Oahu, of which Honolulu (our destination) is the metropolis and the only seaport and harbor on the islands. Just outside of the harbor we are met by the health officers and a pilot who conduct us safely to "the haven where we would be," through a narrow channel, between submerged walls of coral. The harbor proper is filled with canoes, which dart athwart the waters like living creatures, and littered with the early headed cocoons of native youths, who swim around the vessel and dive like water-nymphs for the nickle which is thrown near them by passengers—an extremely interesting sight. At 3 p. m. we land, glad to be once more upon terra firma.

The Hawaiian republic consists of five principal islands: Hawaii, 4210 square miles; Maui, 760 square miles; Oahu, 600 square miles; Kauai, 590 square miles, and Molokai, 270 square miles, upon which the main portion of the inhabitants reside and where the principal industries are located; of Lanai, 100,000 square acres; Kahoolawe, 30,000 square acres, and Nihoa, 70,000 square acres, where the population is very sparse; and of three barren rocks, Molokini, Lehua and Kaula the scenery is varied, including barren wastes, picturesque valleys and sublime mountain scenes. The climate is said to be the most perfect in the world—at the seashore a perpetual summer, from 65 degrees to 85 degrees, but by ascending the mountains, more bracing weather can be obtained, even to the temperature of perpetual frost.

Honolulu is a city of about 25,000 inhabitants, where are to be found intelligent, educated, cultivated and refined people and all the comforts and luxuries that wealth can furnish.

was in the city. In every instance I found my host and hostess to be charming, intelligent, cultured and well educated people, who would be a credit to any refined, Christian community. I also met the representatives of our own government to whom I am indebted for personal kindnesses.

A $55,000 Enterprise.

Prospects are favorable for the establishment of a large lumbering plant on the line of the Oregon Pacific near the crossing of the Breitenbush. E. A. Roe, a San Francisco capitalist and an experienced lumberman, who was here Wednesday for the purpose of consulting Receiver Clark in regard to freight rates on lumber, was seen by a GAZETTE representative relative to the matter. Mr. Roe said, "We are going to build a mill if satisfactory traffic rates can be obtained from the Oregon Pacific. The present rate on lumber from Puget Sound to San Francisco is $4 per M. One thousand feet of green lumber weighs about 2800 pounds. If a rate not to exceed $5 per M. can be had, we will be able to compete with the Sound lumbermen and work on the mill will commence at once."

When asked what capacity the mill would have, Mr. Roe remarked, "It is our intention to build one having a capacity of 75,000 feet every ten hours. The business will be known as the Enterprise Lumber company and will manufacture almost exclusively for the San Francisco trade. Our investment all told will be in the neighborhood of $55,000. Of this amount $35,000 will be used in constructing the mill proper. We have already purchased 700 acres of choice timber and have the purchase of several other tracts in the vicinity under consideration. Mr. Clark is to give us his answer tonight. If this is favorable work will begin at once and the enterprise will be in operation by the middle of December or the first of January."

"The plant will be what is known as a double mill, and will employ, all told, 75 men. The engine will be 350 horse power. Lumber will all be sized to exact dimensions, both in width and thickness as well as in length. In sawing the logs band saws will be used as they give better satisfaction, and when numerous cuts are made several feet of lumber are saved with each log."

"The logging will be done," said Mr. Roe, "by means of the California steam process. This logging by steam is a new thing and has only been in use about two years. It is operated by a stationary engine detached from the mill and hauls logs by means of a wire cable that works over a large drum. By the use of this device logs are brought to the mill for a distance of a mile and a half through the woods and does away with the use of cattle entirely. This results in a saving of something like $1.50 per M over the present system of logging when cattle are used."

Mr. Roe says the timber in the vicinity of the proposed mill site is unexcelled. While the superior quality of the product of the Enterprise Lumber company will not allow them to command a fancy price, it will give them a preference of sale over Puget Sound lumber and that is worth a good deal.

The GAZETTE trusts the enterprise will materialize and will wish them unbounded success in their business operations.

Celebrated by the Seaside.

A party consisting of sixteen congenial Corvallisites drove over to Otter Rock from Newport one day last week. After arriving at their destination the day was pleasantly spent in sight seeing until evening, when one of the party suggested that members of the company, Mr. and Mrs. John Simpson, had been united in the holy bonds of matrimony just five years, and proposed that the party turn in and celebrate their wedding in an appropriate style. It was hardly possible, however, to celebrate such an event in an appropriate manner in a camp by the sea shore, but one of the ladies had a freshly baked cake, which was dubbed, wedding cake, vintage 1889, and from the well stocked larders of the party, a sumptuous luncheon was spread, to which all did ample justice. Members of the party had taken their regular outing appetite along and as a result only a few crumbs of the spread remained to tell the story of the marriage feast. During the evening toasts were proposed and responded to and the time until 11 o'clock was filled up with stories, music and mirth when the company repaired to their tents, after wishing Mr. and Mrs. Simpson a long and pleasant journey through life.

Among those noticed around the camp fire were: Mr. and Mrs. John Simpson, Mr. and Mrs. Ted Pernot, Mr. and Mrs. Lewis Wilson, Mr. and Mrs. F. M. Johnson and two daughters, Mrs. Emily Pernot, Mrs. S. A. Hemphill, Mack Hemphill and Mr. Jack Barrows.

Edward Allen and wife and two children arrived in Corvallis last Monday direct from Morris, Michigan, in which city he has resided for several years. He was attracted to Corvallis by reading the GAZETTE, to which paper he has been a subscriber for several months, and intends to locate here permanently. There is but one objection we find in welcoming Mr. Allen to our midst and that is quite a serious one: His business for twelve months just preceding his departure for Oregon was that of postmaster under the present administration.

Brace the Nerves.

Sedatives and opiates won't do it. These nerves do not make the nerves strong, and failing to do this fall short of producing the essential of their quietude—vigor. And while in extreme cases—and these only—of nervous irritation such drugs may be advisable, their frequent use is highly prejudicial to the delicate organism upon which they act, and in order to renew their quieting effect increased and dangerous doses eventually become necessary. Hostetter's Stomach Bitters is an efficient substitute for such pernicious drugs. It quiets the nerves by bracing, toning, strengthening them. The connection between weakness of the nervous system and that of the organs of digestion is a strong and sympathetic link. The Bitters, by imparting a healthful impulse to the digestive and assimilating functions, promotes throughout the whole system a vigor in which the nerves come in for a large share. Use the Bitters in malaria, constipation, biliousness and kidney trouble.

The people are very hospitable, kind and attentive to visitors, and I was entertained at either lunch or dinner every day that I

The clothes do not always determine the man, but every one will admit that neatly fitting, stylish garments are things of beauty and a joy forever. F. G. Cecil, the popular tailor, is a thorough workman, and is now prepared to make pants from $5 upwards, and suits to order at prices ranging from $18 upward.

Thomas Jones and Charles Pernot left Corvallis last Monday afternoon for South Oregon, in a prairie schooner on a hunting expedition for the gay and festive aufericious deposits that are said to be numerous in that section of the state. They are loaded with a complete assay outfit, and as Charles is an experienced assayer and Tommy, a thorough chemist, it is safe to say that when they stake off a claim it will be worth something.

County Judge Hufford was appointed by the county court to look after the interests of Benton, in the Lincoln-Benton tax segregation matter. As that official is on regular salary, the expense of an arbitrator for this county will be avoided and every taxpayer who assists in paying the bill will commend the court for their action in the matter.

Leo Gerhardt returned last Monday from his anti-fall outing reduced in everything but health. His pants hang around him like a hound pup, and his coat and vest only hit the high places. Even his hair seems to have grown thinner. His face is reduced so that what would have once been a pleasant smile now resembles a hysterical grimace.

Wellman Lyman returned Wednesday from a several days' hunt on the Big Elk and left the following day for Portland to resume his duties with the Southern Pacific company, where he has been employed since leaving Corvallis some years ago. His family and sister, who accompanied him to this city, will prolong their visit several weeks.

Among the incidents of childhood that stand out in bold relief, as our memory reverts to the days when we were young, none are more prominent than severe sickness. The mother of Frances Loughran is very anxious to learn of his whereabouts. He is 23 years of age; is tall and slim and wears black hair. By occupation he was a clerk and left New York in 1889 for this locality, since which time nothing has been heard of him. He has inherited an estate and his presence or a power of attorney is necessary for settlement. Anyone knowing of his present location will confer a favor on his mother by addressing her at No 15 Ninth street S. E., Washington, D. C.

Mr. Julian Ralph is now on his way to the Orient, where he will make for Harper's Weekly and Harper's Magazine studies of the top-ty conditions that obtain upon the world's further side. Upon his arrival in Japan he will quickly forward accounts of whatever he may witness of the war between that country and China, of the gathering of the naval representatives of all Christendom, and of the peculiar scenes attending upon the war. He will be met at Yokohama by Mr. C. D. Weldon, the artist, who has long been familiar with Oriental life, and who will co-operate with Mr. Ralph in this work.

A new sort of barley has been propagated in North Dakota that promises to fill a long felt want. In that state the average yield has been from 30 to 40 bushels per acre. It is both barbed and is without a hull, which results have been obtained after years of scientific experiments in cross fertilization. A sample of this new variety was grown at the experiment station here during the present season and Prof. French hopes to have it generally introduced throughout the state within a few years. As it contains more nearly the composition of corn than any other grain grown, its introduction into this state will be a boon to Oregon farmers.

Writing to the GAZETTE under recent date while on board the steamship Australia, Professor John D. Letcher says that as a whole he has had a very pleasant trip—sea-sickness excepted. At the time of writing he was four days out from Honolulu on his way to San Francisco, and so far had not taken a meal outside his state-room. "The sea is perfectly smooth," he says, "but the ship rolls like an old tub."

The professor reached San Francisco the 25th inst., and expects to arrive home tomorrow. His impressions of Honolulu and the Islands are printed in another column. The article is very interesting and contains much valuable information.

County Superintendent Holm is anticipating a large attendance at the Normal institute next week. Several teachers from adjoining counties and all those of Benton will be present. Mr. Holm was indeed fortunate in securing the services of Prof. J. Burnham, who is said to be unexcelled as an instructor of mental arithmetic, grammar and geography. Prof. W. A. Wetzel, of Portland, is also one of the foremost educators of the coast, and no person interested in school work should miss this opportunity of receiving instruction from such experienced teachers. The evening sessions will be devoted to lectures on educational topics. Among those who have consented to speak are: Superintendent McElroy, Rev. W. S. Gilbert, of Eugene, Hon. S. T. Jeffreys, President Bloss and President Bonebrake, of Philomath, who will deliver a lecture on his trip through Africa.

Notice is hereby given that under and in pursuance of an order of the county court of Benton county, Oregon, duly made and entered on the 10th day of August A. D. 1894, in the above entitled estate, ordering and directing me, G. G. Newton, administrator of said estate, to sell at public auction to the highest bidder for cash in hand, the right, title, interest and estate of Jesse Wood and Margaret Wood, deceased, in said south half 100 acres, excepting and reserving therefrom, however, 40 acres out of the southwest corner sold and conveyed to Mahala Kisor by the said Margaret Wood.

Why is it that so little clover is grown in the Willamette valley? Experiments carried on at the college disprove the common saying among farmers "that clover cannot be grown successfully in Oregon." Last year from a field of 20 acres 69 tons of hay were harvested and this year from the same field over 60 tons were cut. It makes excellent feed besides returning to the ground upon which it is raised, many of the properties that are exhausted by a succession of grain crops.

E. Hofer, of the Salem Journal who is gaining considerable notoriety of late as a corn crank, has written Prof. French for information and assistance in the arrangement of a corn exhibit at the coming state fair. It is the intention of the committee having the matter in charge to utilize the building heretofore used by Marion county for her fruit exhibit, by turning the same into a corn palace. Some dozen varieties of corn will be taken from the college and with what can be gotten from over the state a very creditable showing of that industry will be made.

If there is anyone in Benton county who needs the patience of Job and is entitled to the sympathy of the entire community it is Frank Brown. Two weeks ago he had a felon lanced that grew on one of his fingers and now has another one ready for the surgeon's knife. To add to his misfortunes he suffered a fracture of the collar bone yesterday that will lay him up for several weeks. While unloading wheat at the Booneville warehouse Thursday morning, the team attached to the wagon became scared and ran away, throwing Frank onto the warehouse platform with such force as to cause the injury spoken of. The team was stopped before any further damage was accomplished. On arriving in town the patient was taken to Dr. Lee's office where he received surgical treatment and is now resting comfortably.

T. M. Hamilton made a flying trip to Eugene this week. On his return Wednesday afternoon, he claimed to be in possession of considerable data regarding some of the band boys and their numerous lady friends whose acquaintance was made last 4th, while the boys were up there celebrating. One of these young men who is known to be in receipt of tri-weekly communications, written in a lady's hand and post marked at Eugene, had held the commissary sergeant up at a street corner, and was making frantic appeals to that gentleman "to keep the matter dark as it would seriously impair my chances with another lady who doesn't live at Eugene," when the reporter passed, and the loud talking lapsed into a whispered conversation, so that nothing further could be learned as to whether the matter is to be kept quiet or not.

Last Friday County Judge Hufford and Commissioner Chambers returned from inspecting the newly constructed span bridge across the Alsea, near Chandler's store. They found the structure had been completed in all respects according to contract, and the following day accepted the work and ordered a warrant drawn in favor of Contractor Denlinger for the amount bid, $793. At the same time he was ordered paid $37 for an extra approach, lumber and nails. While inspecting the bridge, the wing dam, recently built by residents of the valley with the aid of $150 appropriated by the county court, was examined. This dam was built for the purpose of preventing the river from dividing near the present bridge, which it has threatened to do ever since the occurrence of a land slide several years ago. Had the river been successful in its attempts to cut a new channel, two bridges would have been necessary instead of one. This work gives promise of proving a success.
