LOCAL HAPPENINGS.

W. E. Hadley returned last Friday from a two weeks' business trip through Southern California.

Professor J. B. Horner and W. E. Yates returned Sunday from a brief business trip to the metropolis.

Mrs. D. C. Rosebrook was a passenger on Monday's train for Portland, where she goes to join her husband who holds an enviable position in Portland's musical world.

U. B. Vogle has just received a complete set of trial lenses, and can fit the eye with the finest lenses made at very reasonable prices, with choice of frames from 25c to $7.50.

The bill for this evening at the opera house will consist of the charming comedietta in one act, My Uncle's Will, followed by Augustin Daly's beautiful comedy drama, Frou Frou.

Monday morning Cal Hutton left for Salem in reply to a telegram offering him a permanent situation. Cal has the reputation of being one of the best mechanics in the state, and will undoubtedly give perfect satisfaction in his new location.

Fred Nelson and wife moved to McMinnville this week, where they will reside in the future. During their residence in Corvallis, Mr. Nelson and his estimable wife have made many warm friends who will exceedingly regret their change of residence.

Due to a severe cold, Miss Maud Breneman was compelled to absent herself from the school room last Monday, much to the disappointment of her pupils who have become very much attached to their fair instructor. A majority of them are unwilling to admit that anyone else can fill her place.

Since the interstate exposition closed at Tacoma the large exhibit of vehicles made there by the Corvallis Carriage and Wagon Company has remained in Tacoma on exhibition. I. D. Burg returned from that city this week, having, while absent, shipped to Corvallis the few rigs remaining unsold.

Next Tuesday evening Dr. Rowland Grant will deliver his popular lecture "Life as an Art" at the opera house. Reserved seats are now on sale at Howell's jewelry store, at 25 cents. Read the press comments in another column. A select orchestra of the best talent of the city will furnish music for the occasion.

The Pacific railroads have made the western coast of Mexico and Central America almost an unknown land. In "Down the West Coast," in the February Harper's, Charles F. Lummis will describe the month's journey by water from San Francisco to Callao, Peru, with its frequent stops and changing of scenery, climate, and manner of living.

With this issue the date of publication has been changed from Friday to Thursday. The Gazette takes this action for the benefit of county subscribers living in localities where mail facilities are somewhat meager. Friday is really a much more convenient day for publication than Thursday, but as the change will be an accommodation to many of our readers, we gladly accommodate ourselves to them.

The stellar dramatic attraction of the season will most assuredly be given at the opera house this evening by the talented sisters, Misses Charlotte, Essie and Minnie Tittell, supported by their efficient company. This is the first season these three ladies have traveled together, and judging from the verbiage encomiums of the press, the combination has been a happy one, for every performance given by this excellent company has been to "standing room only."

The body of Solomon Scott, an old Indian, who has been missing since the first winter, was found on the fifth. The body was found near the Alsea settlement, face turned down, and his hair which he was carrying was destroyed by bugs. He was returning from the agency, where he went to get his issue. The supposition is that he got tired and fell down with his head on a log, or, it is supposed that he died of starvation. It stormed all that night—Lincoln leader.

"The" which club held its regular bi-weekly meeting Saturday evening at the residence of Miss Ocie Avery. Nearly the entire club's members were present and all were in an unusually happy spirit, due largely to the hospitality of the charming hostess and the generous supply of dainty refreshments which were served. Shortly before midnight the club adjourned, to meet next at the home of Miss Bertha Davis.

Judge Burnett added fresh laurels to his reputation as a public speaker last Sunday, when he delivered an eloquent and scholarly address on the subject of "Orators and Oratory" before a large and attentive audience at the college chapel. This was one of a series of lectures inaugurated by the faculty early in the fall, which have grown in popular favor and are well attended. They afford a pleasant and profitable diversion for both students and citizens, as the lectures cover a variety of topics.

"The Origin and Development of Religion" was the subject of an interesting course of lectures just concluded at the old college chapel under the auspices of the Agassiz society. The lectures were delivered by Dr. G. O. Rogers, of Forest Grove, who is a scientist of marked attainments. In the treatment of his subject, Mr. Rogers advanced many ideas that were new to his hearers and which were not in harmony with the views entertained by a majority of his listeners, still from a scientific and historical standpoint, the lectures were interesting and instructive to all, and furnished the audience much food for careful thought and study. Dr. Rogers is an exceptionally interesting speaker and a reasoner of much ability. Those fortunate enough to hear him were afforded a rare intellectual treat.

The tax levy for state purposes has been fixed at three mills; for county purposes eight mills, and for schools four and five-tenths mills, making a total of fifteen and one-half mills. To this must be added the city tax levy and special levy for school district No. 9. Last year the total levy was 26 mills apportioned as follows: County, 7.2 mills; schools, 4.5 mills; state, 4.3 mills; city, 7 mills, and special tax for school district No. 9, 3 mills. The levy this year will probably not exceed 24 mills for all purposes.

Last Friday a young lady left Toronto, Canada, for Corvallis, intending to make this city her future home. She will be met at the Portland depot tonight by Mr. Wm. Barnhardt, the popular machinist at the carriage factory and—well, you know the rest. On arriving in Corvallis they will register "Mr. and Mrs. Wm. Barnhardt."

The Gazette extends congratulations in advance, and will wish the bride a hearty welcome to the city where her husband has resided during the past two years, and has become a general favorite with all.

M. P. Taylor left Monday for Portland, where he will enter a hospital for treatment of cancer of the stomach, from which he has been a constant sufferer for several months. It is expected that the operation of removing the cancer will be performed Thursday, the results of which will be anxiously awaited by members of his household as well as by his numerous friends. The operation is an extremely difficult one to perform, and may prove fatal. In any event, however, several months will be required for the patient's recovery.

The wind blew last Saturday night, not a gentle zephyr, but a full-fledged hurricane. At the college the "wind-measuring machine" indicated an average velocity of 47 miles per hour, although frequent gusts were estimated at 80 miles per hour. Notwithstanding the fact that the gale was the most severe experienced here, it resulted in only slight damage. Several blades from the wind wheel on the water tower were broken; an old fence and a small barn in the north end of town owned by Al Kemp were blown down; many electric light, telephone and telegraph poles were razed to the ground, and on Jefferson street the electric light and telegraph wires came in contact with each other, resulting in burning out the telegraph instruments at the S. P. depot. Further than this, no material damage is reported as a result of the storm's severity.

An attraction of more than usual interest will be offered the theatre-going community of Corvallis on Thursday evening at the opera house, when the Misses Charlotte, Essie and Minnie Tittell, will appear, supported by their own company, in "My Uncle's Will" and "Frou Frou." This is the first time Corvallis has had the pleasure of witnessing these three talented sisters together, and judging from the verbiage encomiums from the press, the combination has been a happy one, for every performance given by their excellent company has been to "standing room only."

At the council meeting Monday evening the mayor and all councilmen were present. C. H. Lee, chairman of special committee appointed to investigate Walker damage bill, made a verbal report to the effect that a portion at least of the damage sustained by Mr. Walker, was paid him by the party riding in his company at the time the accident occurred, and as the accident was not due to carelessness of city, he thought the bill should not be paid.

The finance committee reported that the deal recently made with Mr. Childers for a lease of the old engine house had been declared off. The committee further reported that Messrs. Madsen & Hall were willing to lease the building for five years at a monthly rental of $20, Hodes & Hall to take down the tower and make repairs to building to an amount not exceeding $300, which amount was to be allowed on the first rent. A motion to accept the offer prevailed by a vote of 7 to 2, Peet and Gibson voting nay.

Street committee reported adversely on petition for street light at 5th and Jefferson streets.

Bills to the amount of about $300 were allowed and ordered paid from the general fund.

Petitions for electric lights, one at corner of 9th and Washington, and the other at the south end of Third street, were referred to street committee.

Petition for sidewalk on south side Madison street, between 5th and 7th, laid over.

Councilmen Peet, Waggoner and Lee were appointed to prepare and submit proposed amendments to the city charter. Committee to report at adjourned meeting next Monday evening.

A committee from the fire department calling attention to the leaky condition of the city hall roof, was read. The matter was referred to Councilman Smith, who was instructed to have necessary repairs made.

Liquor license bonds of Theo Schmitzlein and Gerhard & Kirk were approved and police judge instructed to issue licenses.

No further business appearing an adjournment was had till next Monday evening.

Retiring from Business.

As we have decided to give up business in Corvallis, we are offering our entire stock without reserve, regardless of cost. We are very desirous of leaving by April 1st. In order to do so we will sacrifice good goods at the above stated prices. To country merchants we will offer extra inducements to buy in quantities. Store fixtures also for sale. Come early and get best selections.

STOCK'S CASH STORE.

Mrs. T. S. Hawkins, Chattanooga, Tenn., says, "Shiloh's Vitalizer 'saved my life.' I consider it the best remedy for a debilitated system I ever used." For Dyspepsia, Liver or Kidney trouble it excels. Price 75c. Sold by Graham & Wells.

THIS, THAT AND THE OTHER

A Few Simple Things You Mayn't Have Been Told.

In reading over the published testimony of the Steeves trial, one wonders why Allen was not indicted as well as the lawyer. The evidence was circumstantial, and was very vague to convince an honest, practical mind "beyond a reasonable doubt." Accusation is half proof. The prosecution failed to show a reasonable motive on the part of Steeves. For several ballots, the juryman voted "not guilty." It seems strange that these men, who, believing a man innocent, should finally "compromise" by finding him guilty of manslaughter.

The mill race bridge, a mile south of this city, has been surrounded with water the past week, and a constant menace to the safety of travelers. This bridge has been a perpetual expense to the county for repairs and renewal. The owners received from the county free, the franchise for the ditch, and the county court should compel them to widen or deepen the race near the bridge, or cut another channel for the overflow. The county should not pay the damage caused by private parties.

People in the neighborhood of the Oregon Pacific depot are petitioning the council for a streetlight. They should get it, and doubtless will. Those who have had business at the depot or carriage works on dark nights, and have trembled at every sound and deeper shadow, dreading a sandbag or a holdup, will realize the importance of a light to those who live out there. Our councilmen are commendably disposed to economize, but not to the degree of crankiness, and if the petitioner makes a fair showing of the urgency the city fathers will probably grant their prayer.

Corvallis and Benton county people generally demand no special appropriation for the Agricultural College in this year. This is the time for retrenchment, and in order to advocate a public economy our representatives should go into the legislature with clean hands, and ask for nothing for their county. The distribution of appropriations has been the lever used by the Portland men to move the county legislators to their interests. The citizens of Benton county want nothing but an economy that will lessen their taxes. Any affiliation of our representative with the Simon cabal will not be excused on the ground of necessity for the passage of a local measure. It is easy for a member of the legislature to commit political suicide. Our last representatives learned this. If Messrs. Carter, Cooper and Daly canvass the county on the senatorial question they will find how dearly the people who elected them, love the Portland iceberg. And they should remember that the people do not care to sell their birthright for a mess of frozen potatoe.

COUNTY COURT.

County court met last Wednesday. Present, Judge Hafford and Commissioners Chambers and Rickard. Assessor Alexander filed his official bond in the sum of $5,000, with Sol King, Thomas Whitehorn and James S. Buchanan as sureties, which was approved. The junior was ordered to purchase a Yale lock, and place same on the door leading to the clock tower, and was instructed not to allow persons access to the tower, unless accompanied by himself or else had permission of the county court. In the matter of road supervisors for the ensuing year, the following named persons were appointed: A. A. Williamson, supervisor of road dist. No. 1; Chas. Read, No. 7; A. E. Miller, No. 8; Scott King, No. 9; W. H. Dilley, No. 10; Geo. W. Houck, No. 14; R. E. Bohman, No. 18; Thos. Felzer, No. 19; T. R. Chaudler, No. 20; Elmer Bethers, No. 25; William Ruse, No. 27; J. P. Hoffman, No. 30; Ed. Williams, No. 31; Si Hue Heron, No. 26; M. D. Hudgers, No. 31; Hardy McCormack, No. 42; John Calvery, No. 43; Frank Hughes, No. 52; Richard Irwin, No. 53; S. R. Strow, No. 59.

It appearing that Wm. Shipley, heretofore a county charge, had two sons who were amply able to support and care for him, it was ordered that from and after January 20, 1895, the court would no longer be responsible for his maintenance.

Upon the request of Ruben Impson he was granted permission to leave the poor farm, and Mrs. Huggins was instructed that the county would no longer be responsible for his care and support.

Bill of N. D. Luther for medical services rendered George Stewart recently deceased was disallowed.

In the matter of a tax levy for the year 1895, it was ordered that a tax of 8 mills for county purposes, and four and five-tenths mills for schools be levied on all taxable property of the county.

BENTON'S PEDAGOGUES TO MEET.

Next Saturday the Benton County Teachers' Association will hold its fifth regular convention at the public school building in this city. The executive committee, consisting of Messrs. S. I. Pratt and R. F. Holm and Miss Mina Dittmar, has arranged an interesting program for the occasion and a full attendance is anticipated. The program is as follows:

FORENOON SESSION—TEN O'CLOCK, A. M. Piano solo, Gertie Sheak; discussion—Resolved, that corporal punishment should be prohibited in the school, affirmative, Miss Dittmar, Mrs. Buoy, negative, Miss Bergin. Miss Turner, vocal solo, Frank Watkins; penmanship in country schools, Prof. Sheak; adjournment.

AFTERNOON SESSION—ONE O'CLOCK, P. M. Music, Prof. Baldwin; recitation, Esther Avery; recitation, Frankie Cuthbert; quartette, select; recitation, Miss Louis; recitation, Geo. Paul; instrumental, Miss Bradford; recitation, Mrs. Naima; address, Prof. Horner; violin solo, Leon Smith; discussion—resolved, that the third grade certificate now issued to teachers in this state should be abolished, that the standard of the second grade teacher's certificate should be raised to 85 per cent., and that a normal training of one year should be required of each applicant for such certificate, affirmative, G. W. Deaman, W. B. Hanes, negative, W. T. Lee, Frank Watkins. Adjournment.

Shaving ten cents at Case's.

A PARASITIC FUNGUS.

Advises received by the Oregon state board of horticulture from Professor Newton B. Pierce, the government agent who recently spent about two months in this state and Washington, studying the disease affecting the apple trees, which has commonly been termed by the growers "black-spot," show that his investigations have been carried far enough to prove that it is a parasitic fungus. From the study made in the field while here, and of the specimens he took to his laboratory at Santa Ana, Cal., he is now trying to determine its life history.

The importance of Professor Pierce's discovery to the Oregon fruit grower cannot be overestimated, as it removes the doubt on the part of many as to the nature of the disease, and provides a remedy for its control. It will be remembered that a portion of the trunk and branches of a 5-year-old apple tree from Mr. Chase's fine young orchard was sent by the board of horticulture to the department at Washington last spring for identification, and that it was new to them. It was at the urgent request of the board that Mr. Pierce was instructed to visit this state and investigate the trouble.

It is pleasing to the fruit growers to know the result of Mr. Pierce's investigation at this season of the year, as they can begin operations to keep it under control at once. He states that the treatment should be preventive rather than curative, and recommends the use of the Bordeaux mixture during the rainy season. Frequent applications should be made to the affected parts.

In the spring, frequent applications of the lime, sulphur and blue vitriol spray will no doubt be very effective.—Oregonian.

Although this disease has already resulted in great damage to the horticultural interests of the state, it has received no attention by the Oregon experiment station; due, it is claimed, to lack of funds. Some weeks ago a member of the station council stated to a Gazette representative that the disease had not made its appearance upon the fruit about the college farm, and he was of the opinion that the damage reported by fruit growers was the result of "sun-scorch" rather than "black-spot." This theory, however, is disproved by the fact that the disease very often makes its appearance on the north side of the tree, which would be impossible in case of injury from the sun's rays. Recently a four-year-old prune tree effected with both "sun-scorch" and "black-spot" was left at this office, which plainly shows the damaging effects of the latter complaint.

The specimen is a well-formed tree, about one and one-half inches in diameter. The trouble made its appearance first, on the north side of the tree. It began near the ground, running up the trunk for a distance of 15 inches, almost encompassing the tree and leaving only a space one-half of an inch wide on the south side for the circulation of the sap. Wherever effected, the bark had become discolored and killed. When first noticed, it was thought the presence of the disease might be traced to some local cause, but subsequent developments proved that it had gained a footing in both Eastern Oregon and Washington, where irrigation was necessary, and also in the western portions of these states where there was an abundant rainfall. It was found to exist on the uplands as well as on the lowlands. Soil location or climatic conditions appeared to make no difference with the disease; it seemed to thrive anywhere. These facts made the question all the harder to solve satisfactorily. Scientists were at sea. No history of such a trouble as "black-spot" is anywhere recorded. The disease was a new thing to horticulturists, and the results of Prof. Pierce's investigations will indeed prove a boon to fruit growers, who for several months have been in the dark as to what course was best to pursue.

TO MEET IN PORTLAND.

The American Pomological Society has accepted the invitation of the State Board of Horticulture to visit Portland upon the conclusion of its annual meeting in Sacramento. The society, which will probably be represented by every fruit-growing state in the union, will meet at Sacramento on the 15th, 16th, and 17th of this month, and expect to arrive in Portland on the evening of the 23d inst. In accordance with these expectations arrangements have been made for the State Board of Horticulture to meet at Portland on the 23d inst. and get through their business on the same day. On the following day, the Northwest Fruit Growers' Association, comprising the three western states and British Columbia, will meet and get their business out of the way. Should everything take place as arranged and expected, the members of the State Board of Horticulture and of the Northwest Fruit Growers' Association will meet the train on its arrival from Sacramento on the 23d and tender the visitors a welcome. After this it is probable that the committee on reception will entertain them to a banquet, when the evening may be spent in giving addresses and pleasant chats. The session will probably occupy a whole week, including the two days' work of the State Horticultural Society and the Northwest Fruit Growers' Association. The program will be made up principally of speeches from representative fruit growers from different parts of the state, showing the soil, qualities of fruit they grow, area planted, etc. It is the intention of the Northwest representatives to impress upon their visitors that this coast means to be in the race with them in the future.

This meeting is largely the result of Prof. Lake's persistent efforts, and will no doubt prove of incalculable benefit to Oregon and her large fruit interests.

Letter List.

Following is the list of letters remaining in the Corvallis postoffice, unclaimed Jan. 17, 1895. When calling for same, please say "advertised."

Miss Althea Brandenberry, Mr. Tim Jones, Jacob Cline, W. P. Smith, 2, Mrs. A. Jones, Miss Josie Beever, A. B. Williams, Mr. Ernest Brimmer, 2.

ROBT. JOHNSON, P. M.

The public will take notice that T. C. Case is now conducting a well-appointed ten-cent barber shop opposite Skipton's livery stable. His work is done in his customary first-class manner.

NEWSY COLLEGE NOTES.

Items Gathered by Our Regular Correspondent at the Agricul College.

During the night of January 12th the wind blew at 41 miles an hour, between 11 and 12 o'clock.

There has already been a rainfall of eight inches since the first of the year. The experimental station staff will shortly take up a very interesting and instructive line of work in obtaining the comparative values of the various Oregon clovers for feeding purposes. The fats, proteins, carbohydrates, water, etc., in their relative proportions, will be obtained from the samples. Altogether, thirteen different kinds of clovers will be analyzed.

The class in Zoology listened to a most interesting lecture last Monday, delivered by Prof. Washburn on "Ancient Forms of Animal Life." This lecture took the place of the regular recitation.

Prof. Parrot with the college magic lantern made the lecture much clearer with the aid of numerous lantern slides, illustrating the various forms of ancient animals.

Prof. Craig and Prof. French left for Salem on Tuesday afternoon to attend a meeting of the Oregon Dairy Association. Prof. French will deliver an address before the association on the relative values of different foods for dairy purposes.

There is considerable dissatisfaction among the parents of the town boys who have to drill. It is claimed that it is necessary for the person who cooks breakfast to get up three hours before daylight in order to get the students off to school in time to arrive before the drill hour. The only consolation that we can think of is, that the students had better not go to bed at all. But soon the days will be longer and the mornings earlier, thus giving all students time to arrive after daylight.

SOCIAL HAPPENINGS.

The Social Whist Club met at Mrs. Robert Huston's last Wednesday in regular bi-weekly session. The afternoon was delightfully passed in playing cards and concluded with refreshments. The next meeting will be at the residence of Mrs. W. T. Peet.

From 3 until 6 o'clock Friday afternoon, Mrs. Robert Wilson entertained a few of her lady friends at her home. A spread prepared by Mrs. Bryson was read during the afternoon, creating endless amusement. Crokinole and anagrams, with dainty refreshments added to the pleasure of a charming afternoon.

Saturday evening the Misses Lyford gave an informal card party. The evening sojourn outside was the very converse within the hospitable parlors. A novel guessing game of the objects represented on a copper penny was the feature of the entertainment. Cards, dancing and refreshments were in order until the hour of midnight which came too soon.

PRESS COMMENTS.

Following are some of the press comments upon Dr. Rowland Grant's lecture, "Life as an Art."

Portland Evening Telegram: "It is seldom that a Portland audience has listened to so eloquent and entertaining an address as was delivered upon this occasion. Every available seat in the tabernacle was occupied fully 2,500 people being in attendance. Mr. Grant is an earnest and convincing speaker, while at the same time he is fairly bubbling over with eloquence and good humor."

Oregon City Enterprise: "Mr. Grant is an orator of fine ability, who, while he pleases and instructs his audience, yet keeps before them the main thought and does not omit to impress by his logical deductions the truths upon which he founds his lecture. Should he be killed to speak here again, he will not fail to leave a large house."

Press items on "Life as an Art": "It is a splendid walk in the gallery of beautiful things." "It is a liberal education to hear Dr. Grant's lecture on 'Life as an Art.' " "It is not a lecture, but rather it is a series of musical 'word-paintings'."

All persons knowing themselves indebted to us, either by note or account, will please call and settle at once, as we are going to close out our business, and must have same paid at once. S. M. and S. H. Stock.

IN MEMORIAM.

At the last meeting of the alumni of the college it was decided to place a memorial tablet in the college chapel to the memory of the late President B. L. Arnold. The engraving is being done by Seraford, on a tablet of statuary Italian marble eighteen by twenty inches in size. The inscription is as follows:

IN MEMORIAM.

BENJAMIN LEE ARNOLD, A. M. PRESIDENT OF OREGON AGRICULTURAL COLLEGE FOR TWENTY YEARS. A true friend, thorough teacher and useful man. Born Oct. 29, 1859. Died Jan. 30, 1892. TO HIS MEMORY This tablet is erected by the Alumni Association. 1894.
