SUBSCRIPTION RATES: CORVALLIS, OREGON, JAN. 31, 1895.

TO OUR LEGISLATORS.

Now is the time and this is the oppor tunity to break the Portland ring, which has controlled in politics and opposed the best interests of Oregon for twenty years. Yea, Portland itself, the home of this ring, has been defrauded, through its methods, of her birthright. The continued monopoly on the Columbia river route has driven the rich treasures of the Inland Empire across the Cascades and Washington has grown wealthy from the trade that rightly belongs to our metropolis. The prime mover in this body of boodlers is a corporation lawyer whose sole interest lies in serving faithfully his employers, who, being able to furnish abundant funds, render him a formidable opponent to the best interests of the people, and he has never failed to exercise his power in that direction. The methods which he uses are the basest ones known to unscrupulous politicians, some of them putting to shame those of the great corruptionist, Boss Tweed, who went to the penitentiary for his crimes. This is strong language, but can anyone say it is untrue? Will anyone attempt to excuse him on account of the license in the politics of this age? It is a fitting answer to say that he has flagrantly scandalized the very license put forward as his apology. The methods by which he defeated Judge Waldo for the supreme bench should forever damn him in the mind of every honest man. He now wishes to send a member of his firm to represent his employers in the U.S. senate. Will you assist him in doing it? The people are aroused as never before to oppose Dolph & Simon. There is not a hamlet within the state which does not today stand in rebellion against the pair. We have suffered long, but this is the first time we have stood in open rebellion and turned at bay. The hisses which we hear in the halls of the capitol when Dolph's name is called is the faintest echo of the hurricane of public indignation which is sweeping the state. Opposition to the Portland ring heretofore has been but the ill-natured grumble of a discontented bandit who was easily silenced by the superior generalship of Simon. This time the elements are turned loose and the very foundations are being broken up. Ninety percent of the republican newspapers in the state are filling their columns with opposition to Dolph. There is no corporation, con spiracy, concerted action, nor cash behind this uprising. The people do not want Dolph. They have repudiated him in their hearts, and they will repudiate you if you fasten him upon them. Let the almost united voice of the people conjure you to listen to them. You are supposed to be the friends of the people and the servants of your constituents. You are temporarily entrusted with a power which belongs to them. Use it as they direct and they will bless you. Abuse it and they may justly despise you

The Oregonian wages an ignoble warfare upon the men who are voting against Dolph, and for the people. It threatens them with political annihilation. With peculiar irony, it accuses them of looking for a candidate "with a bar'l"-a curious statement for a Dolph organ to make If that was the only requisite they ask ed, not a man would have left Dolph, Dolph money was plentiful, considering the financial stringency. Denny, a minor Dolph manager, showed his devotion to the cause by throwing two hundred dollars over the Willamette hotel bar after the republican caucus, and instructing the barkeeper to serve free whiskey to the crowd. The Oregonian transends the depths of sound argument in trying to recall Cole and Burke, of Multnoman county, to the support of Dolph. It calls them "stinkards." The work of the gentlemen who oppos Dolph will only be half accomplished should they allow Simon to dictate the selection of the successful candidate. There should be no dictation from any source: certainly not from the machine. An opportunity is now before them to break down the power of Simon and the machine. It should not, and will not, be lost. The opposition is an intelligent opposition; not blind stubbornness. Dolph is defeated. The people are vic-

Mr. Hufford was elected as a judge; not as a legislator. Our representatives do not need his personal assistance. He is a remarkably ambitious man, with can party in Oregon is of far greater im- entable display of bad taste for one in portance than the mere election of any his official position to make such a public in legislation can be easily traced to the sento six hundred dollars. Since then there tance of a few populist or democratic votes, has been a careful and studions silence on his part upon that subject. The peoprinciple and the surrender of the peo- ple demand that their representatives take action in this matter.

The GAZETTE has noting against Mr Hufford personally. It is a republican paper and as such assieted in the election of Mr. Hufford, who was on the republican ticket last spring. But he is a public official and his official acts are subject to public criticism. He has no right to attempt to influence the legisators by means of the power which his judicial position might give him. A

IT has been hinted that an effort would be made during this session of the legislature to change Benton county from the second to the third judicial district which now includes Linn, Marion and Polk counties. Such a change is really needed to facilitate legislation. The second district is too large and scattered. It comprises Lincoln, Benton, Lane, Douglas, Coos and Curry counties. Comprising such a large territory necessitates a deal of traveling and consequent loss of time on the part of the judge, besides often delaying litigation and causing attorneys much unnecessary inconvenience. The courts of the third district are now presided over by two competent jurists-Judges Burnett and Hewitt. By includ ing Benton county in their jurisdiction the district will be made more compact oratory and such depths of reasoning are and as it should have been originally organized from a geographical stand-

(This action of Mr. Cooper meets general disapprobation. Petitions have been sent him showing that at least 4-5 of the republican voters of Benton county were against Dolph and the Simon cabal hese petitions were signed by his friends and neighbors. How he can disregard their wishes and advice at the behest of a few wirepullers is indeed strange. By changing back, his course will be approved; otherwise, he will be liable to severe censure.)

DOINGS AT THE CAPITAL.

SALEM, Jan. 27th, 1895.

Dolph, who will return to his law practice, instead of being Oregon's misrepresentative. Your correspondent has learned, with great astonishment, the sentiments of the people, expressed as they were by applause in the house of representatives when anti-Dolph statesmen spoke, or hisses when? Dolphism shouted "Caucus ring rule! Organized caucus must rule!" It was simply impossible for President Simon to control the enthusiasm, even though repeated threats were made to clear the house of all spectators. On Friday when Hon. Thomas H. Cooper, of Benton county, arese to his feet, and in a firm, determined voice, aunounced his intention to abide no longer by King Caucus, but to stand out for his constituents and the dictates of his own conscience, a loud cheer for freedom and liberty echoed back we dare say from the very core of the Willamette-Corvallis-a hearty approval, Mr. Cooper is the first to assist in what we predict will at Lewisville. end in Dolph's timely defeat; and Benton should be proud of the man who first broke the solid 44, when 45 could have elected right.
