Washington, Feb. 25.-The general deficiency bill, the last of the regular appropriation bills, passed the house today. Almost the entire day was spent in discussing the amendment to pay Great Britain $425,000, the amount of damage agreed upon by Secretary Gresham and Sir Julian Paunceforte to be due under the award of the Paris arbitration tribunal on account of the seizure of some twenty Canadian sealers by the United States previous to the modus vivendi of 1892. The amendment was strengly attacked by Cannon of Illinois, Henderson of Iowa, and Hitt on the ground that the amount was unreasonably large; that some of the essels were owned by citizens of the United States, and $375,000 was for constructive or speculative damages (the estimated catch). Only $81,000 they contended was due Great Britain. Dingley supported the amendment, maintaining that the government, no matter how bad the bargain, must carry out the awards of the Paris tribunal in good faith.

George W. McBride, United States

enator from Oregon! The republican party of Oregon has proven itself equal to the task of breaking the deadlock by electing a United States senator. It didn't have to honored son upon whom it was possible to unite. It took a long while for the "thirty" and forty-two" to get their heads near, but when they finally did reason together the result was an election that will be an honor to the state, the nation and the republican

The selection of Mr. McBride to carry out this trust is a selection that will oring about the greatest good for the of the state. It will serve as but few selections could have done under the aggravated circumstances. To say that it is a choice that meets with the approval of the general public is a mild statement of the truth which the grand demonstration upon the adoption by the "thirty" of Lis nomina-Proprietors. tion so earnestly, firmly impressed. That the senator elect is in close touch with the people and that he is their friend and that they are his was end was that Paxton's motion to record more clearly demonstrated by their actions last night when he appeared before them on the platform than words can tell.

The cheers that were sent up for George W. McBride were from the heart. The people who know him not only respect and honor him-they love

The hall of representatives, the corridors, the galleries and every other conenient space in the state house was You want the best and I have them. Hard-time never so crowded with humanity as it was last night from 7 o'clock to midnight. Public excitement had been aroused to such a pitch that persons remained at the hall all the afternoon and evening, accompanied by their lunches so as to secure favorable positions and seats. Long before the joint convention assembled every seat, chair, esk, railing, window seat and platform step, was occupied, while standing room was packed like a sardine box. So soon as the balloting began the reatest possible anxiety was aroused. Arrangements had been made for transnitting bulletins to the secretary of state's office and thence to the masses n the outer corridors and upon receipt f each succeeding result the noise of the public discussion of its merits could be heard within the house. On the first ballot the Dolph forces were greaty cheered by the return to their ranks of Smith of Clackamas and Gowan who had left them temporarily at the afternoon session, and then the general belief was that the die was cast and there would be no election. Senators Hobson and Patterson and Speaker Mores also took their positions for Mr. McBride and when the roll call was completed he had forty-two votes or three short of enough to elect. Following is the vote as between Mr. Dolph and Mr. McBride:

Three cheers were given for Mr. McBride with such a vein as made the building almost shake. Then the ter, McClung, Smith of Clatsop, Smith crowd yelled for Fulton and that gen-tleman being found his appearance was votes were cast for the bill. tleman being found his appearance was the signal for the wildest and most hearty demonstration of the night, except perhaps when Senator Brownell made his eloquent speech announcing his change to Fulton as spoken of above. Mr. Fulton spoke for a few moments in his able, manly way and assured his houseful of admirers that he was never happier in his life than he was then in witnessing the united republicanism of Oregon. He was cheered to the echo and at Speaker Denny, Gowan, Maxwell, McGinn, Pat-Moores' request, three cheers were given for "the united republican party. Three cheers were likewise sent up for Speaker Moores himself.

Following the dissolution of the joint convention, both houses in their separate chambers adjourned sine die, and thus the most remarkable session of the Oregon legislature ever held came

The solution of the deadlock was effected at so late an hour that the legislature had no time to elect the railroad commission and other officers. On the list are the following: Three railroad commissioners, game warden, food commissioner, pilot commission-ers, etc., and state librarian. As the present incumbents of these offices were elected to serve "until their successors were elected and qualified" the same old railroad commission and other of-ficers will be in the employ of the state for another biennial term, much o their surprise.

In the Statesman of January 13th ast, preceding the convening of he egislature, the following appeared: "George W. McBride steps out of the secretary of state's office after eight years of hard work, in which he has managed the multifarious duties of that position with a skill and business act rarely equalled and not excelled in any state in the Union. The nature of the office in this state throws a great amount of responsibility upon his

"With the exception of a small part of the last term Mr. McBride has per-sonally directed every movement of the office. During his term of service, large sums of money have been en-trusted to his wisdom and judgment for expenditure and in every instance the result has been satisfactory, every dollar has been laid out with a view to securing the best possible returns. Notable instances of his securing exceptionally good work for the state may be witnessed in the plumbing of the state house and in the fixing and furnishing of the state library. In the latter case the most modern book furniture was obtained, arranged in a system infinite in its accommodating possibilities, of the best Western grown naterial and at figures which could only be secured by the best directed personal effort. In the decoration and arrangement the same happy results money saved. Instances might be multiplied innumerably but it is not necessary. It is sufficient to say that he has done his full duty faithfully and well and that no man has ever held office l'empleton, Thompson, Woodard and in Oregon who retired with more numerous or more faithful friends than George W. San Francisco, Feb. 25.—The U. S. circuit court of appeals today decided against Josephine Hatch, an Indian woman in her contested suit against the Everett Land Co. of Washington. Mrs. Hatch contended that she was induced by misrepresentation of E. C. Ferguson, her husband's executor, to part with 240 acres of land; that she signed a power of attorney under the belief that it was a bond of friendship. The land was conveyed by Ferguson to Henry Hewitt and by him to the Everett Land Co. The court held that the company was an innocent purchaser and that the woman, having accepted the purchase money and used it long ofter her contention that she had been shoulders and it takes a good deal of defrauded, was estopped from claiming inguine courage and madily gumping title as against the Everett Land to to carry it successfully.
