Simonism vs. The People.

The Latter Successful on The 59th Ballot—Geo. W. McBride the Choice.

The people won. Dolph was defeated for U. S. senator on the 59th ballot, and Geo. W. McBride was elected to succeed him just as the clock was striking the hour of midnight last Saturday evening.

At noon Saturday the session of the joint assembly was of unusual interest. At that time eight ballots were taken which resulted in reducing Mr. Dolph's strength two votes.

At the end of the eighth ballot the vote stood as follows: Dolph 36, Williams 29, Aar 10, Fulton 3, Lord 2, Waldo 1, Lowell 1, Cogswell 1, Chamberlain 9, Galloway 2, Weatherford 1.

On this ballot it was noticed that the Dolph forces were not united, each faction having 35 votes.

When the members reassembled in joint session at 7:40 no one knew what the outcome would be, although it was whispered that the name of George W. McBride would be announced as a compromise candidate.

On the first ballot of the evening, or the 37th of the session, the Dolph forces were strengthened by two votes, Gowan and Smith of Clackamas, who returned to their first love after voting with the opposition during the afternoon.

Both Dolph and Gowan were given three cheers. These two gentlemen stand high in the councils of the party and are destined to become its leaders at no distant day.

Barkley, the eloquent young orator of Marion county, was called for and made a most clever speech in which he expressed the belief that the recent action of the convention would be ratified by the people through out the state.

It was a complete victory for the people, and was brought about by the determined stand of thirty honest, conscientious representatives of the people.

The following brief biographical sketch of Senator-elect McBride is taken from last Sunday's Oregonian:

George Washington McBride is a native son of Oregon, having been born in Yamhill county in 1854.

He is a son of Dr. James McBride, who was well known as one of the earliest and sturdiest pioneers of this state.

Mr. McBride was educated in the common schools and at Willamette university, Salem, and the Christian college (now the state normal school) at Monmouth.

In 1867 his parents left Yamhill county and located at St. Helens, Columbia county, which place he has made his home ever since.

In 1882 he was elected to the Oregon house of representatives, and was subsequently chosen speaker of that body.

In 1886 Mr. McBride was nominated by the republicans for secretary of state, and was elected. His popularity is attested by the fact that the two principal nominees on the ticket with him—governor and treasurer—were defeated.

Mr. McBride performed the duties of his office so satisfactorily that he was re-nominated by acclamation in 1890, and re-elected by a handsome majority.

He served the full term and retired the first of the present year to give way to his successor.

Mr. McBride comes from an old and very well-known Oregon family. He has several brothers, who have achieved leading positions in the law and in medicine.

One brother is Judge T. A. McBride, of the fifth judicial district. Another brother is John R. McBride, formerly congressman from this state, and now a prominent lawyer of Spokane.

A third, Dr. McBride, is a leading physician in Wisconsin.

It was Mr. McBride's early purpose to become a lawyer, and with that end in view, after leaving school, he entered the law office of Judge J. C. Moreland, of this city.

He remained three years, but during a great part of that time he suffered much from bad health and did not make the progress he desired.

Mr. McBride did not, however, give up his design until his physical condition rendered it absolutely necessary. He then engaged in mercantile pursuits in Columbia county, where he had large property interests.

During much of the time he was secretary of state Mr. McBride battled with physical weakness, but his will is strong, and he was able to be almost constantly at his post of duty and personally to administer the manifold duties of his office.

It is well known that the office of secretary of state has never been conducted more satisfactorily to the people than during Mr. McBride's two terms.

Recently he made a journey to New York for the purpose—so it was stated at the time—of placing himself in the hands of eminent physicians, it appears with very satisfactory results.

Mr. McBride is often called an "Oregon boy." With the exception of two years spent in San Francisco, he has always lived in Oregon.

Personally he possesses a charming address, which has doubtless had much to do with his political success.

Mr. McBride is not married.

Tragedy at the Summit.

John McCaleb, of Summit, Shot and Killed Tuesday Evening by His Father-in-Law, John McDowell.

SUMMIT, Ore., Feb. 27.—(Special)—John McCaleb was shot and killed by Jan. McDowell, his father-in-law, about five miles from Summit, in the burnt woods county, just over the Lincoln county line, last night.

From accounts brought, it seems McDowell had had McCaleb arrested on charge of assault and battery on his (McCaleb's) wife, who is McDowell's daughter.

The case was brought before Justice Luckey, of Little Elk precinct, but, it seems McDowell went to Derrick's hall, expecting the trial to be there, while McCaleb and his witnesses went to the justice's house, and as McDowell did not appear at the house, after waiting a short time, the case was dismissed by the justice, on account of McDowell failing to appear.

McDowell returned home ahead of McCaleb, who, later, rode up to the gate and demanded his children, who were there. McDowell refused to give them up, upon which, McDowell claims McCaleb started to get off his horse, saying he would have the children or blood.

McDowell, at this, fired a load of buck-shot, striking McCaleb in the side of the face and neck. McCaleb's horse plunged and McCaleb fell on his face, and then raised on his elbow, saying, "You have not killed me yet," on which, McDowell shot him three times with a revolver, all the bullets striking him in the head.

No one was present except McDowell's family and this is their statement, so far as heard. McDowell gave himself up to a Mr. Lawrence to be taken into custody. McCaleb's wife was shot until about two o'clock this morning, when he was moved into the house. The coroner arrived on the morning train and has gone to the scene.

The mischievous company little midgets that delighted a large audience of highly appreciative people at the Opera House last Thursday evening appear to be as much at home on the stage as their imaginary prototypes are in the pages of Palmer Cox's famous little book.

Though the grinning and distorted little bodies and wiggling faces only suggest faintly the dainty pantomimes of the creator of the Brownies, they nevertheless furnished a great deal of amusement for the elder spectators and simply delighted the children.

Their queer antics and strange pranks and capers kept the audience in a row. So clever were they that pantomime that the audience readily understood exactly what was being concocted by the little rogues, who seemed to take especial delight in doing the most unheard of things.

The football tableau was heartily applauded and elicited an encore. They were adept at the football business too, and the manner in which they hustled disabled members off of the field provoked much merriment.

The music by the orchestra, and the vocal selections by the O. A. C. quartette and Symphony Glee Club were greatly appreciated and added much to the enjoyment of the evening.

Miss Mabel Johnson and Prof. Fulton were each compelled to respond to an encore, so well were their solos received. Thorough study and a nice conception of her recitation was evinced by Miss Esther Avery.

The ladies of the Presbyterian church are to be congratulated upon the splendid success of this unique entertainment.

Miss Marie Vanderson, of Salem, is deserving of much praise, as it was under her personal direction that "The Brownies" was produced. Her recitation, "Jack, the Fisherman," was the choice bit of the evening.

Miss Vanderson evinces that fine dramatic instinct that evolves proper effects from pure imagination. Great care was given the elemental mechanics as accent, emphasis, intonation, inflection and pronunciation, but her great charm, lies in her graceful delivery and easy stage presence.
