FOR SALE—One seven-eighths Jersey milk cow, two years old, giving good quantity of milk. Price $25. Call at residence of W. Westfall, Corvallis. Eight teachers are taking the regular quarterly examination this week. Their labors will probably not be completed before Friday night. Chas. Clary, National Bank Examiner for the district comprising Oregon, Washington and Idaho, paid the First National of this city an official visit this week. Walter Wiles and wife returned last week from a month's vacation, spent at Sulphur Springs near Monroe. Walter now wears the most luxurious beard of any man in town. Railroad Commissioner J. B. Eddy came out to the valley last Friday on official business, returning Tuesday to Newport, where his family are spending the summer. Hon. E. B. McElroy, J. B. Horner, W. S. McFadden and son Julian constituted a hunting party that returned Saturday from a pleasant outing of ten days in the Alsea valley. Owing to the non arrival of goods, the drawing for the overcoat at Cecil, the tailor, will be held on Thursday, August 22, instead of on the 15th, as previously advertised. The Misses Hennion, of Portland, and Miss Shott, of Arlington, with Miss Mattie Avery, who they have been visiting for several weeks, left last Friday for a ten days' outing at Newport. J. H. Wider, of Eugene, wheeled into Corvallis at eight o'clock last Friday morning, having been only four hours enroute. He was on his way to Salem, where he will spend his vacation visiting friends. Ollie Gates passed through Corvallis Sunday on a wheel, enroute to Klamath Falls, where he will assist in the construction of a water plant, a contract for the putting in of which was recently obtained by his father, H. V. Gates. Superintendent Holm, who has been out in the western portion of the county this week visiting schools, returned yesterday. He reports that Blodgett Valley and all the country west as far as the Summit, was covered with frost Tuesday morning. Sol King has finished threshing for 1895 and has, from one hundred and forty acres of oats, a crop of four thousand bushels. Heretofore, Mr. King has been a large grower of wheat, but owing to the low price of that commodity last year, he sowed oats this season exclusively. Miss Elsie Long is to teach a term of school this fall near Coho, in Linn county. At her graduation from the college in June last, Miss Long distinguished herself as valedictorian of the class, and will doubtless succeed in her chosen field of labor. Oscar Tom, a prosperous Alsea farmer, and whose place on Fall Creek is a favorite resort during the summer months for sportsmen, was in town over Sunday. He says the people of that locality are busily engaged in harvesting and that crops in the Alsea will be fully as good as usual. Among the west-bound passengers last Thursday were Misses Anna Samuels, Erma Lawrence and Ora and Lulu Spangler, who are occupying a cottage near the Presbyterian church at Newport. They were joined this week by Mrs. Spangler, who will remain until about September 1st.

J. M. Nolan returned yesterday from a two weeks' stay at Newport, looking browned and feeling much improved in health. In the afternoon, Mr. Callahan left for Yachats to join the Bryson-Huston-Davison party. He will return about Sept. 1st. Since Saturday J. H. Moore has been looking for a buggy and two sets of harness that were stolen from his barn in the northern part of the county sometime during Friday night. Officers have been hunting for the thieves, but so far that have succeeded in eluding capture. John Gellatly was in town Monday. He says that the threshing machine in which he is interested, had, up to Saturday night, run ten days, and had averaged 2,300 bushels of grain per day. Monday the crew were still at work on the Corvallis ranch, upon which the crop this season will be in the neighborhood of eighteen thousand bushels. Miss Amelia Sanders, of Albany, Miss May, of Harrisburg, and Miss Sarah Harris, of Portland, drove over from Albany last Friday, and during the afternoon visited friends in this city. Miss Harris formerly resided here, and her friends will be pleased to hear that she is meeting with splendid success as a kindergarten teacher in Portland. From Oscar Tom, who was in town Monday, it was learned that Steve Hoover, employed in a logging camp at the head of tide on the Alsea bay, was injured about the first of the month, by a log rolling over his body, from the effect of which injuries he died last week. The deceased was a widower about thirty-five years of age, and leaves one child. Several remedies are offered for baldness, but Jesse Spencer, who has been a barber for thirty years and ought to know what he is talking about, says "they are all fakes." Confidence in Jesse's opinion in this matter has been the means of saving many dollars to some of his bald-headed customers, who were disposed to blow in their money on hair tonics. Willis Vidito, the veteran justice of the peace of Alsea precinct, was in town Monday after binder extras. He says harvesting in the valley is progressing nicely and that there will be an average crop. The early fall-sown wheat is not up to the standard in yield, but the spring grain is quite heavy. At the grove on Mr. Vidito's place campmeeting is in progress and is being well attended. Attention is called to an advertisement elsewhere in these columns asking for bids for the furnishing of uniforms to O. C. & E. students during the coming scholastic year. It will be noticed that the cloth required is to be navy blue in color and of Oregon manufacture. This disposition on the part of the board of regents to patronize home manufactures is commendable and will be generally approved. The recent reduction to $3 per ton on grain, flour and millstuffs via the O. C. & E. from Albany and Corvallis to San Francisco, is going to have the effect of greatly increasing the tonnage of the road. It will divert a large amount of traffic that has heretofore gone down the river to Portland and thence to San Francisco by steamer. Its effect will be felt by both the Southern Pacific and O. R. & N. companies, but the latter will suffer most. Messrs. Hartless & Blake also have begun work on their evaporator and expect to have same completed by September 1st. It is a Carson dryer and will have a capacity of 160 bushels of fruit per day. They already have contracts for drying the fruit of several orchards in the vicinity of Corvallis. In fact, all the fruit they will be able to handle, has already been promised them. Mr. Hartless estimates the prune crop in the immediate vicinity of town at 5,000 bushels. One of the evidences of returning prosperity is the disposition manifested by some of our merchants toward improving their places of business. One desiring of especial mention for his enterprise in this direction is S. L. Kline. During the past two weeks, a force of workmen, under the direction of E. D. Horner, has completed extensive repairs to the interior of Mr. Kline's mammoth establishment, and the fresh paint and artistically decorated ceilings give to the place a decidedly improved appearance. There seems to be a disposition on the part of the woolen mills of Oregon to discriminate against the tailors of the state. Mr. Cecil, of this place, has been thinking of putting in a bid for the manufacture of college uniforms, which are required to be made of Oregon cloth, but he finds that it will be impossible for him to compete, owing to the price charged him for the goods. Mr. Cecil claims that he can buy the same cloth in New York City, and lay it down in Corvallis for $1 per yard less than he is required to pay for it at the mills in either Salem or Oregon City. Bids for the construction of a well at the agricultural college were opened last Saturday afternoon at the office of W. E. Yates. There were several bids varying in amount from $1000 to $498, the latter being the bid of H. W. Grimshaw, to whom the contract was let. The well is to be 36 feet deep and 12 feet in diameter in the clear. It is to be lined with brick and from the top down 12 feet is to be cemented. For the price named the contractor is to complete the job by the middle of September and furnish all the necessary materials. It is expected the well will furnish an adequate supply of water for all the needs of the institution. Last week a Pendleton hotel was burned and in the debris was discovered the charred remains of three of the fire's victims. Later developments indicated that the fire was set to cover evidences of murder and robbery. Monday last, C. Moore, known as "Kid" Moore, and Frank Whetstone were arrested on a complaint charging them with committing the double crime. It is thought by some that this "Kid" Moore is none other than Sid Moore, who has gained considerable notoriety in these parts as a gambler, and who left here soon after the recent city election. Moore's friends in this place claim to have heard him speak of a pal, living in Portland, whom he called Whetstone, which gives color to the theory that Sid is one of the parties arrested.

Last Thursday Gene M. Simpson and Mart Spangler left for Newport, and with Geo. L. Paul, who left Saturday, they will form the Corvallis contingent of a band of selected musicians, from various parts of the state, that will be under the leadership of Willis McElroy during the balance of the season at Yaquina. The Second Regiment band, of Salem, has been stationed at Newport for several weeks, but their music had not given entire satisfaction and upon the earnest solicitation of several prominent citizens of that place, Mr. McElroy was induced to take hold of the matter. Prospects for a very large attendance at the agricultural college this fall are exceedingly flattering. The announcement that tuition fees had been entirely abolished has had the effect of popularizing the institution among the people throughout the state, and inquiries from parents who intend sending their boys and girls to the college this year are being daily received by President Bloss and Secretary Yates. In a few days the college catalogue for 1895-6 will be issued. It will contain a deal of information pertaining to the courses of study and other matters that prospective students wish to know and will be generously distributed throughout the state. Tuesday's Democrat says: Manager Stone, of the O. C. & E. came to Albany this noon to meet W. H. Keeney, chief engineer of the O. R. & N., whom he had engaged to come to Albany and give the railroad bridge at this city a thorough inspection, with a view to rebuilding or improving it, as is needed, probably practically the former. The bridge has done good service in the past, but its days are nearly over. Mr. Keeney is one of the most expert bridge men on the coast, and his report will determine just what kind of a structure will take the place of the present one. This is another one to show that the present manager mean business in at least the matter of betterments, if not more. In another column will be seen the notice of sale of the real and personal property belonging to the insolvent estate of Frantz Brothers. The personal property, to be sold September 17th, at Hoskins, includes about 200,000 feet of rough and dressed lumber in assorted lengths and sizes. The following day Assignee Yates will sell at the courthouse door in Corvallis, the mill plant, together with 262 acres of land in Benton county, and some residence property in the town of Buena Vista, Polk county. These properties are all valuable and should interest a number of buyers. This is especially true with regard to the mill, the machinery and fixtures of which are in good condition. Wm. H. Taylor, manager and principal owner in the Victory placer mines at Glendale, in the southern part of the state, writes the GAZETTE of the completion and successful operation of the company's immense pumping plant. He says in part: "At 1:30 p. m. last Saturday, August 10th, 1895, Mrs. W. H. Lewis, assisted by Mr. J. H. Brand, hoisted the glorious old 'Stars and Stripes' in commemoration of the completion of what is believed to be the first practical pumping plant ever established in the state of Oregon for the purpose of operating placer mines the year around. While the national salute was being fired, the great pumps were put in motion, and the problem of placer mining in Southern Oregon during the dry weather solved—as all who witnessed the powerful stream rising from the giant against the gold-bearing gravel banks will testify." Two young ladies of Corvallis had a narrow escape from a watery grave one day last week, as is evidenced by the following account of their adventures, taken from the Yaquina News: "What might have been a serious accident was luckily averted by the timely assistance of two of our young men on Saturday. It seems that Miss Amy Plummer and Miss Dorothea Nash, of Corvallis, who are visiting Mrs. Henry Nic, started out for a row, and after unloading the bay a few miles, where they had lunch, started on the return and, as the bay was very rough, the young ladies had a hard pull, and when directly off the month of the slough, where there is always a large break, they completely went out and were unable to keep the boat head on. Ed. Diven, who was just going on board the schooner, Mary Gilbert, noticing the predicament they were in, with the assistance of one of the ship's crew, launched one of the boats, and in a few minutes had the young ladies safely on shore. It is important that all prairie growers of this section attend the meeting of the Central Willamette Fruit Union, to be held Saturday, the 24th inst., at the courthouse. Matters at that time will come before the union of especial moment. There is an effort being made to pool the entire prairie crop of the Willamette Valley, and the success of the plan will largely depend upon the concerted action of growers throughout this section. At this meeting will be explained the details of marketing the fruit and other matters pertaining to the proposed pool. An approximate estimate will be made of the amount of fruit to be marketed for this locality and an effort will be made to ascertain as to whether growers desire to enter the pool or not. This information it will be necessary to obtain at the meeting the 24th, as the following Wednesday there is to be a general meeting of prairie growers at Portland, at which time the proposed deal is expected to be consummated. COUNCIL PROCEEDINGS. Preceding the opening of the council Monday night for business, those present were entertained with a dialogue between Chief of Police Taylor and Councilman Lee, in which personalities were indulged in quite freely. The controversy grew out of a dispute as to the allowance of a bill claimed by Taylor to be due for work performed some time ago for the city, but which the street committee had refused to O. K. Some time ago the council passed a resolution requiring that all bills incurred for the improvement of streets should be authorized and audited by the street committee. Councilman Lee, who is a member of this committee, claimed that the work for which the bill was presented had never been ordered by the committee and refused to O. K. the bill. This statement was contradicted by the chief of police and, until the mayor rapped for order, the conversation between the two became both loud and animated. Fortunately the only ammunition used was jawbone, and neither of the contestants was injured. During the reading of the minutes, several councilmen came in and took their seats and when the journal had been read the only vacant seat was that of Councilman Peet, who came in later. The first matter to come up for consideration was the report of the fire and water committee. To it had been referred, at the July meeting, the matter of investigating the needs of the city in the way of additional water facilities for fire purposes. Their report was quite lengthy one, showing that careful pains had been taken in the discharge of their duty. They recommended the putting in of 30 new hydrants. These were to be well distributed over the city and would afford protection in the outlying additions. They also advised the abolition of six of the ten hydrants now in use. A motion to accept the report brought forth a spirited discussion that lasted some time and which was participated in by most of the members present. Councilman Lee asked to be informed as to the contract price per hydrant. This, it was stated, was $3 per month, and under the present contract the monthly cost to the city for the 34 plugs would be $102. Samuel's opposed accepting the report, believing that the water company should be given a new franchise. He thought that the council was fooling away its time in considering the matter under present conditions. If the plugs were located as recommended by the committee they would be of no benefit because the supply of water through four inch mains would be inadequate. He said the company should be met half way like men. The company had not the money to extend their plant as rapidly as would be required under the recommendation of the committee, but that they would do so as fast as possible. He believed that a compromise could be effected and the matter amicably adjusted to the best interests of all concerned, if the committee would meet the members of the company and confer over the proposition in a business like way. Councilman Flett, a member of the committee, said there were two classes of citizens in town. One claimed the council could force the water company, under the existing contract, to extend its plant at the request of the council. The other class believed the council were powerless to enforce any demand against the company. Out of respect to the opinion of the former citizens he had been induced to sign the committee's report. He thought the demand should be made on the company in order to determine what they proposed doing. In any event, the acceptance of the committee's report would not interfere with future actions of the council, and what was necessary at this time was to determine the number of hydrants the city wanted and their location. Councilman Greffoz, also a member of the fire and water committee, believed there was no necessity of compromise. If the water company could not be forced to comply with the contract, then there was no reason why it could force the city. Davis, also one of the fire and water committee, said a careful investigation of the matter had been made and thought it impractical for the city to attempt getting along with a less number of hydrants than was recommended in the report. He believed that the suburban portions of town were just as much entitled to fire protection as any other. Finally an aye and no vote was called for and all voted aye with the exception of Samuel's, who voted no. The street committee to whom was referred the matter of licensing bill posting, reported by ordinance, which was subsequently passed without amendment. The ordinance provides that no person shall distribute dodgers, hand bills or other advertising matter within the limits of the city of Corvallis unless such person has first been granted a license for such business. The fee is fixed at $5 per quarter, and the penalty for failing to comply with the ordinance is a fine of from $5 to $20 for each offense or imprisonment in the city jail. When the allowing of bills was reached Councilman Greffoz objected to the July account of the water company, and, upon motion, it was referred to the fire and water committee, of which Mr. Greffoz is chairman. A bill amounting to $2.50 for feeding a horse at Eglin's stable brought forth an enquiry as to the nature of the bill from Chairman Peet, of the finance committee, who is always watchful of the city's financial affairs. Chief Taylor explained that the account was for the feeding of a horse for five days that he had taken up on the streets. Further enquiry developed the fact that the animal had been sold at the end of the five days to Ned Smith for one dollar. At the July meeting the matter of reducing the saloon license from $500 to $400 per annum was referred to the finance committee, but the committee had not come to an understanding and requested further time, which was granted. Petitions from fire companies asking for a quarterly allowance of $15 each, to assist in defraying current expenses, were referred to the fire and water committee. Councilman Lee offered a resolution in which was incorporated a portion of the water company's contract. The portion cited had reference to the company's agreement to furnish sufficient pressure to throw water a height of 40 feet. On motion, the resolution was adopted, and the police judge was instructed to prepare a certified copy of same and deliver to the company. The street committee reported that it had closed a contract with J. M. Huff for 200 yards of gravel, to be delivered upon the streets, at the rate of 3 1/2 cents per yard. Total. $26118 63 [Attest] I. M. HUNTER, County Clerk. A Prayer. Not unto every heart is God's good gift Of simple tenderness allowed. We meet With love in many fashions when we lift First to our lips life's waters bitter sweet. Love comes upon us with resistless power Of curbs passion and with headstrong will It plays around like April's breeze and shower, Or calmly flows, a rapid stream, and still; It comes with blessedness unto the heart. That welcomes it aright, or—bitter fate— It wrings the bosom with so fierce a smart That love, we cry, is crueler than hate. And then, ah me! when love has ceased to bless Our broken hearts cry out for tenderness. We long for tenderness like that which hung Above us, lying on our mother's breast— A selfish feeling, that no pen or tongue Can praise aright, since silence sings it best— A love, as far removed from passion's heat As from the chillness of its dying fire— A love to lean on when the falling feet Begin to totter and the eyes to tire. In youth's brief heyday hottest love we see— The reddest rose we grasp; but when it dies, God grant later blossoms, violets sweet, May spring for us beneath life's Autumn mist! God grant our prayer—that some loving one Be near to us, with simple tenderness! Wm. H. TAYLOR. —OF— Think of this.
