Miss Lillian Hamilton is visiting friends in Portland this week. A piano for sale, trade or rent. For terms apply to Mrs. M. W. Hoffman.

B. F. Irvine and family are now living in the N. B. Avery property on 8th street.

If you want a good fitting pair of trousers, suit or overcoat, go to Cecil the Tailor.

There will be preaching at the old college chapel next Sunday both morning and evening.

Miss Leona Gilmore left last Thursday for San Jose, California, where she will spend the winter.

Mr. and Mrs. J. C. Mayo spent Sunday in Albany. The trip to that city and return was made on bicycles.

Will H. Bloss returned Monday to Vancouver, having spent several days visiting friends and relatives in this city.

Woods Jackson returned Friday from a visit to his son John, confined in the asylum at Salem. The latter's condition is not, apparently, improved.

E. Woodward has been confined to his home since last Thursday on account of a severe attack of liver trouble. Yesterday he was slightly improved.

The residence of Geo. W. Smith on Third street is receiving a new coat of paint this week adding much to its already attractive appearance.

There is to be a meeting tonight at the old engine house of those interested in the organization of a local athletic association. A full attendance is desired.

Mrs. S. N. Wilkins left yesterday for a week's visit in Portland. While there she expects to meet her sister, Mrs. V. C. Brock, of Wasco, who will be at the metropolis visiting the exposition.

Monday an action was begun by W. S. Hufford, attorney for J. A. Coats & Sons against A. Wilhelm & Sons, Monroe. Judgment is prayed for in the sum of $120.

A watch was found on the streets of Corvallis last Saturday by Earl Braudenberg, which the owner can have by proving property and paying for this notice.

Fifteen dollars net is the amount realized by Mr. Parks, of Philomath, for a six-months-old calf sold this week to J. C. Taylor. The animal weighed 375 pounds dressed and sold at the rate of 4 cents per pound.

The burglar who entered Hodes's gun store Monday night has not yet been apprehended. Possibly he had his whiskers manured to avoid detection. If he patronized Spencer his identity will likely never be discovered.

Henry M. Stone is back from Portland, whither he went last week in search of a market for his prunes. While there he made a sale of four loads of Peaches, the price being a cent per pound delivered on board the cars at Corvallis.

"Schemlemdammalfoneyer" is the word, in one of the northern Indian languages, for "Love." How would our young ladies be affected should the tender confession be made in that language and by that word being whispered in their ears.

While on their way from church Sunday night Mr. and Mrs. E. Allen narrowly escaped a serious bicycle accident. As it was Mrs. Allen was struck by a wheel and considerably bruised. The rider was also hurt. The accident was due to failure of the wheelman to carry a lantern.

Last evening the Agassiz society met at the Agricultural college. The principal paper of the evening was read by Dr. Fernot, on the subject of "Cancer." The subject was handled in a masterly manner showing it had received on the part of the speaker much careful study and research.

The will of the late David L. Keys was admitted to probate last week. Orena C. Keys, a daughter of deceased, is named as executrix to serve without bonds. The will was executed February 14th last in the presence of G. W. Cooper, W. J. Mulkey, R. A. Smith, and M. S. Woodcock.

J. M. Cameron, the harness-maker, left Monday for Portland for the purpose of laying in his winter stock of leather, saddles, and other merchandise, a full supply of which is always to be found at his place of business in this city. Since Mr. Cameron succeeded to the business formerly conducted by Mr. N. P. Briggs he has zealously catered to the wants of his many customers and is meeting with splendid success.

Albany continues to be the distributing point for the valley. Today all the mail for the West Side came by way of Albany and was transferred by way of the O. C. & E. This will be the program hereafter, for eastern mail, on account of the West Side train leaving before the arrival of the Eastern mail.—Democrat.

A L. Clark, of Alsea, was in town yesterday to meet his sister, Mrs. M. D. Henry, of Pullman, Wash., who came down for a few months visit with her mother, who has been in failing health for several months. Mrs. Henry was accompanied by Mrs. Thos. Ferbach, (nee Wharfield) who will visit in the valley for several weeks.

A joint meeting of Maccabees and the ladies' auxiliary of the same order is to occur next Wednesday evening at their hall in Farra & Allen's brick. The programme of a literary and musical order is to be furnished by the ladies, and the refreshments by the gentlemen. A number of Maccabees from the Albany lodge are expected to be in attendance.

John Sweifel returned to Corvallis Monday after an absence of nine years. Since leaving here he was in business in the Coeur d'Alene country, but since the strike two years ago has resided in Washington and Montana, coming from the latter state to this place. He is an old acquaintance of Geo. W. Smith, whom he knew in Leadville, Colorado.

Miss Olive Hamilton left last Thursday to take the steamer Farallon for San Francisco, her destination being Los Angeles, where she will spend the winter with relatives. During her residence here Miss Hamilton made many friends, all of whom will regret her departure. She will likely return in the spring.

Mrs. E. Holgate and daughter, Miss Helen, left Saturday last for Portland where they will visit with relatives. Tomorrow Miss Helen expects to leave for Joseph, Wallowa county, where she has accepted a position as teacher in a private school. Her many friends in Corvallis will wish her unbounded success.

The second eleven of the O. A. C. are to play a practice game of football with the U. of O. team at Eugene next Saturday. The latter team has been hard at work under the direction of Benson, late captain of the Berkeley team, and will doubtless play a strong game. The home players have so far accomplished very little effective work, and on that account will go into Saturday's game badly handicapped.

A messenger from Alsea arrived in Corvallis early yesterday morning bringing word that Johnnie Currier had met with an accident while crossing Digger hill. The wagon which Mr. Currier was driving had overturned and thrown him down the mountainside, and in the fall it was believed he had sustained a fracture of the vertebra. Dr. C. H. Iee left for the scene of the accident yesterday morning and at press time had not returned.

The "gripsack" umbrella is the new thing under the sun and is for sale by the up-to-date firm of Nolan & Callahan. These umbrellas are manufactured of the best materials and are so constructed that they can be taken apart and carried in a valise or even in the pocket of an ordinary coat. But a moment is required to manipulate one and get it ready for actual service. It costs but a trifle more than the ordinary umbrella, is wonderfully convenient and is never in the way.

Walter K. Taylor and Miss Christina Lenger were married yesterday morning at 6 o'clock at the residence of the bride's parents, Rev. H. J. Zercher officiating. The wedding was a quiet affair, only the relatives and immediate friends of the contracting parties being present. After the ceremony a midday breakfast was served and the happy couple left on the morning train for their future home near Shedd, in Linn county. The many friends in this city will join the GAZETTE in extending congratulations.

Thomas Samuels shipped ten cars of oats from this city to San Francisco via the Southern Pacific. The cars were taken to Portland on the west side and thence to their destination by the overland freight. These are said to have been the first cars of grain ever shipped via this route from this city. The shipment was made possible by a recent reduction in the S. P. tariff to meet the O. C. & E. rates, on grain, of $3 per ton.

The executive committee of the board of regents met yesterday, all members being present. The selection of Prof. David Trine as assistant botanist and Mrs. Mary Avery as matron of the girls hall and instructor in dressmaking were each confirmed. Pres. Bloss was given a vacation of three weeks on account of sickness, and Prof. F. Berchtold, senior member of the faculty, was made acting president with full power to act as such during the absence of Prof. Bloss.

Yesterday Charles McTimmons, a resident of Kings Valley, regained his liberty, having served a sentence of seven and one-half days in the county jail for cruelty to animals. Last Wednesday McTimmons came to town, riding a mule which he tied near the court house, and without attention the animal stood there until the following morning. M. O. Wilkins called the attention of Dep. Dist. Attorney Wilson to the matter and a warrant was issued charging McTimmons with cruelty to animals. On being arraigned in Justice Holgate's court McTimmons pleaded guilty, and in default of a fine of $15.00 was sent to jail. He explained the matter by stating that after arriving in town he immediately got drunk and in that condition was unable to find his mule.

J. N. Williamson has disposed of his interest in the Prineville Review and retired from newspaper life. The editorial chair will hereafter be filled by L. N. Liggett, who graduated from the O. A. C. in '73, and who was at one time school superintendent of Linn county. Under the management of Mr. Williamson the Review was bright, newsy, and ably edited. If Mr. Liggett succeeds as well as his predecessor he will have reason to congratulate himself.

E. W. Hadley and family left last Saturday for California, their destination being Santa Barbara. However, they may locate in some other part of the state. Their residence in this city has been closed and for a time at least will remain unoccupied. It is a matter of regret that Mr. Hadley has found it to his interests to locate elsewhere. He has during his stay in Corvallis, displayed a commendable public spirit and has made improvements that are a credit to the community. The best wishes of the people of Corvallis go with Mr. Hadley and his estimable family to their new home.

The contemplated departure of Miss Helen Holgate to Eastern Oregon was last Thursday evening made the occasion of a pleasant social gathering at the residence of Mrs. F. A. Helm. The affair was planned by members of the Bachelor Quartette (Helen's Babies) in honor of Miss Holgate, who had acted in the capacity of accompanist for the boys since the quartette was organized last spring. Music, games and social converse were the order until 11 o'clock, when refreshments were served. Those present were: Mrs. F. A. Helm, Misses Helen Holgate, Clara Fisher, Lillian Hamilton, and Mattie Avery; Messrs. J. Fred Yates, Prof. John Fulton, H. L. Holgate, and B. W. Johnson.

The Sunday Oregonian contains an interesting account of the life of John I. Blair, who was extensively interested in the Oregon Pacific and who, during the pending litigation, has been at the head of the Blair-Whorton faction of bondholders. He is now in his 94th year and is the oldest living American bank president as well as the oldest living railroad constructor. His present worth is not known although years ago his fortune was over $50,000,000, and has by no means decreased of late years. He is a Presbyterian and has given away millions for the support of institutions of learning, and besides has built, individually, and given away, over 100 churches. At his home in Blairstown, N. J., he is exceedingly popular and by everyone is known simply as "John I."

The plan for increasing the city's street lighting service has failed of consummation. The special committee to whom was referred the matter reported adversely at a special meeting of the council Monday night. After making a canvass among the taxpayers of the city it was found that a majority were unfavorable to the proposition so the matter was dropped. Resolutions of respect to the memory of the late W. T. Peet were adopted and ordered spread on the minutes of the meeting. The petitions from the two fire companies asking for a quarterly allowance of $15 each was discussed at considerable length. No definite action was taken in the matter although the councilmen all seemed disposed to pay whatever necessary expenses were incurred by the companies, by reason of an ordinance providing for the maintenance of the department. Before adjournment Mayor Kelsay appointed W. H. Hartless on the finance committee to fill the vacancy caused by the death of W. T. Peet, and J. H. Stewart on the street committee, to fill the place of Wm. Crees, resigned.

Dell Davidson drove out to Philomath or near there last Sunday to visit his fair Dulcina. He rode in a cart and tied his horse to a post, remaining in his sweet heart's society until bedtime. Meantime the horse became restless and in some way released itself and with the vehicle started for home. There was nothing for Dell to do but follow on foot, and between 2 and 3 next morning reached Corvallis. Here the horse and cart had not been seen or heard of so Dell continued his way on foot to his farm a few miles north of town, expecting to overhaul the rig on reaching his destination. But he was doomed to disappointment. Some hours later the mystery was solved. The horse, attached to the cart, was found dead in the river in front of the residence of Minor Swick, about a mile north of town. It is supposed the animal lost its bearings in the darkness and plunged over the embankment into the river and drowned. A singular thing about the affair is that with the exception of two small straps nothing about the cart or harness was broken.

WANTED GUNS, AND GOT THEM.

G. Hodes, the gunsmith, is much perturbed owing to his inability to keep his store open for customers, both day and night, and thereby hangs a tale. Monday night he closed his store about 8:30, and while resting peacefully in the arms of Morpheus, some person or persons forcibly gained entrance to his place of business, and took therefrom one Winchester rifle No. 44, one shotgun, four 38-caliber revolvers, one 32-caliber pistol, a pocket knife, besides several boxes of cartridges. The ammunition taken for use in the pistols and rifle were of the right size, but the shotgun cartridges that are missing are No. 10, while the missing shotgun is a No. 12. From appearances it is evident that the thieves were not looking for money, for several dollars in change were left untouched, although the money was in plain view. It is Mr. Hodes' custom to keep his small change on a shelf immediately in front of his stock of cartridges and he was surprised that the money offered no temptation to the burglars. Apparently the robbers knew just what they wanted and were not particularly greedy in their desires. There were dozens of rifles, shotguns, pistols and knives in the store, yet only the articles enumerated above were taken. They, however, seemed to know exactly what sized weapons were needed, for the wrappers had been taken off of several of the guns which were left under the counter.

The general impression is that the thieves acted sympathetically with the prisoners in the county jail, who it is believed are being encouraged and assisted to regain their liberty. Of late there has been a deal of maneuvering both inside and outside of the jail and the officers are strongly of the opinion that the prisoners are determined to break out. Once they are successful guns and ammunition will be necessary to defend themselves in the event an attempt were made to recapture them. The weapons taken Monday night will doubtless be found in the possession of Scott, Holcomb, et al should they be successful in their efforts to escape.

EDITOR HOFER'S LECTURE.

Col. E. Hofer, editor of the Capital Journal, addressed a large audience at the college chapel Friday night on the subject of "English Literature." Mr. Hofer has a pleasing manner and is earnest and forcible in his expressions. He evinced familiarity with his subject and presented his points entertainingly and instructively.

Mr. Hofer introduced the subject with a definition of it, and reviewed the story of literature in general and compared the origin and growth of the Latin literature with that of the Anglo-Saxon. The literature of the Anglo-Saxons began to develop with the adoption of the Christian religion and was of a religious temperament. Said the speaker: "The Anglo-Saxon race has always been noted for its high morality and observance of the family ties, even before the introduction of Christianity. The Latin races, on the other hand, were loose in their morals and were not restrained by the marriage ties. The literature of the two races was as different in moral tone as the people differed in moral tone and action."

A broad and complete education is only obtained through a thorough study of English literature and the speaker remarked that in Corvallis were libraries that possessed all the necessary books from which a complete knowledge of English literature might be had. He said that most colleges implied a thorough acquaintance with the literature of our race. He urged studiousness to be choice in their selections and said that devotion to the writings of the better authors would soon eradicate any desire for cheap and trashy fiction.

The Bachelor Quartette sang a pleasing selection before the lecturer was introduced, and received a hearty encore.

"The Burglar."

It is to be regretted that the production of "The Burglar," at the Opera House last Thursday evening, did not bring forth a larger audience. Only a few years ago, "The Burglar" done by such competent performers and in the sumptuous manner of the recent production, would have thronged the play house and been acclaimed a decided hit. The play, so far from being tedious, artificial or conventional, is elegant in diction and contains a sufficiency of inspiring episode. It teaches a lesson, points a moral and starts a thought pertinent to the life and affairs of the moment. We can not escape the conviction that the changes that works the failure to please of productions like the one under notice lies not in the plays themselves, nor the players—but the public. It is the fish, not the angler, that must choose the bait.

Never, with the possible exception of Thomas Keene's rendition of "Hamlet," has such a thoroughly excellent performance, in a dramatic as well as in an artistic sense, been seen in Corvallis.

The part of "Bill Lewis" is a dramatic one. Mr. Moore is to be commended for not tearing a passion to tatters. He invests the character with interest, and sets with a certain ease and quiet power. A special word of praise is due the little tot, whose rendition of the difficult role of "Editha," was perfect.

P. M. Downing, who is to coach the O. A. C. football team this season, arrived in Corvallis Monday direct from Tacoma. During the past two years Mr. Downing has been captain of the Stanfords and under his able direction that team has held the coast championship for two years. He has played with the Stanfords for six seasons and during that time played in every position in the team. He has been coached by Walter Camp, the father of football in America, and also by Heffelfinger. Mr. Downing is regarded as the best all-round football player on the Pacific Coast, and had done much in promoting the game in the West. Monday evening the boys appeared on the gridiron for inspection and after taking stock Mr. Downing made the statement that better material was here found than at Stanford. The boys are temperate in their habits and comprise the brawn and sinew of the state. At the California institutions many of the athletes are high lives and consequently more time and care is required in training a team made up of such material. It is said that a long standing feud between Benson, Eugene's coach, who was last year captain of the Berkeley team, and Captain Downing, will spur them to make special efforts for the success of their respective teams.

Rather Go Below.

Every time the Salvation Army sings, "Every day will be Sunday by and by" a groan runs up one side of Second street and echoes along down the other. The saloon men and proprietors of other business houses mourn profits lost to them by reason of their closed doors "on the first day of the week commonly called Sunday." Men used to their daily imbibing are lamed by memories and prophecies of long, weary and dry Sundays, and smokers faint away with a mournful sigh as they think of the cigars they couldn't get on "the first day of the week commonly called Sunday." Young ladies who are favored with attentive and liberal beaux, weep copious tears of vain regret over the candy and ice cream soda they might otherwise have had on "the first day of the week commonly called Sunday." Star boarders at Bro. Schmidt's caravansary are not joining in the general wail of tribulation to any great extent. Main host, respectful to their wants and acquainted with their needs, serves out very liberally to such guests with pleasing liquids on "the first day of the week commonly called Sunday." Three young men came into this office last Monday morning, indignant and revengeful. They each had three bright silver dollars left over from Saturday night. They said they labored industriously but vainly to spend their cash in Corvallis on "the first day of the week commonly called Sunday." So, taking it altogether, there seems to be a number of people in Corvallis who don't want to go where "Every day will be Sunday by and by."

Married Today.

This morning at 10:30, Miss Ida Ray, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. John Ray, and Mr. Ludwig A. Brandes, of Portland, will be united in marriage. The ceremony will occur at the church of the Good Samaritan, Rev. Dr. Plummer, officiating. Miss Amy Plummer will be Miss Ray's maid of honor, while Mr. Brandes' brother will act as best man. Misses Mabel and Mildred Johnson are to be bridesmaids, and Messrs. B. W. and Marion Johnson will act as ushers.

After the ceremony, relatives and a few most intimate friends will partake of a wedding breakfast at the residence of the bride's parents. Mr. and Mrs. Brandes will take the noon train for Portland, where they will reside. Miss Ray is a charming and accomplished young lady and has a host of friends in Corvallis who will wish her unbounded happiness. The groom is a brother of Mr. Brandes, of the firm of Baum & Brandes, the well known Portland confectioners and caterers. He is a young man of good habits and is doing a prosperous business.

Married in Portland.

With three other couples, A. E. Cameron and Miss Eva A. Hiatt, of this city, were united in marriage at the exposition in Portland Monday night. Speaking of the ceremonies, the Oregonian of Tuesday says: "It seemed to be a case of progressive courage with the grooms, who were all tall, good-looking young men. The first did not kiss his bride at the conclusion of the ceremony; the second made a somewhat nervous move to do so, but hesitated and lost the opportunity; the third saluted his bride, a very beautiful brunette, frankly on the lips, and the audience applauded with great heartiness. All this probably encouraged the last bridegroom, for, when the minister had pronounced the final and weightiest word, the young man, with firmness, deliberation and fervor, embraced and kissed the young lady, amid the deafening cheers of the assemblage."

Corvallis people are wondering in what order the weddings occurred, in order to be able to determine whether Ellsworth was one of the lusher grooms, or one of those who possessed the temerity to kiss his bride for the edification of ten thousand people.
