The finest stock of men's and boys' shoes ever opened in Corvallis at Nolan and Callahan's.

Ed and Roscoe Bryson came home Saturday from the State University for a few days' vacation. They return Saturday.

Sol M. Stock, one of Salem's leading business men, was in Corvallis a couple of days this week visiting old friends.

Elmer Shipley and wife, of Portland, have been visiting relatives in Corvallis since Saturday.

Songs in the song sheet that sold at Finnigan's Ball can be had in full sheet music form at Conover's.

As convention day draws near, candidates will have to spruce up a bit—get a haircut and have their whiskers shaved. Spencer's is the place to go for these fixtures.

Easter services at the M. E. church Sunday, April 5. Easter and missionary services at 11 o'clock a. m.; exercises by Sunday school at 7:30 o'clock p. m. A cordial invitation is extended to all to attend.

Prof. E. B. McElroy, of the state university, left yesterday for home, having spent a few days in Corvallis on business in connection with his extensive fruit interests.

Dr. Thompson goes to Albany next Sabbath afternoon to conduct an Easter service in the First Presbyterian church of that city. He will return in time for his evening service here.

His Edwin Hirsch, ex-state treasurer, was in town a few hours last Tuesday. He says the Marion county delegation will likely be a unit at the Albany convention and that Tiltman Ford will be their first choice for congressman.

Easter services at the Presbyterian church next Sabbath. A very interesting program has been prepared for both morning and evening. There will be special music for the occasion. In the evening there will be no sermon, but recitations will make up the order of service.

Jas. Cooper, of Independence, has been over to the Bay this week trying to make arrangements to get Parsons' band, of Portland, to come to Newport for the summer. Lincoln Leader. A better attraction or one that would be a greater drawing card would be hard to secure. It is sincerely to be hoped the movement will be successful.

R. A. Rowley, of Portland, state superintendent of the Congregational Sunday school work for Oregon, has appointed Rev. M. Burlingame as his assistant for Benton county. Districts needing supplies or wishing to organize Sunday schools should notify Mr. Burlingame, who will give their wants immediate attention.

This office acknowledges a pleasant call this week from Uncle Billy Wyatt, one of Benton's oldest and most respected citizens. Mr. Wyatt is now in his 80th year and since 1847 has been a resident of this county. Although suffering from the effects of a recent attack of lagrippe, he is still quite active for one of his age.

A bid for the removal of the fire bell from its present position on the old engine house tower to the city hall belfry, was opened last Thursday evening by the fire and water committee. There was but one bid and it was made by Peterson and Blakester, who proposed doing the work for $32. Their bid was accepted and the work of moving the bell will begin soon.

Yesterday morning occurred the drawing at Nolan & Callahan's for the handsome leather chair which the firm advertised to give away April 1st. After the tickets had been well shaken up in the presence of a large number of spectators little Charlie Smith drew the winning number, 517, and before noon Dick Kiger presented the lucky ticket, and took home the prize. The total number of tickets was 2,630.

Take a look at Nolan & Callahan's all wool Oregon-made suits, $8.50.

Nolan & Callahan's spring stock is now in.

The management of the Vincent hotel has changed hands, and the house will hereafter be under the charge of Mrs. Williams, who came here about six months ago from Michigan. Mrs. Williams preceded her husband to Oregon, expecting him to follow in a few weeks, but owing to some difficulty experienced in disposing of his property in the east, he has been unable to leave Michigan. They have two boys attending the college.

The Lincoln county republicans held their convention at Toledo last Thursday and nominated the following ticket: Clerk, Jas. Robertson; sheriff, Walt Smith; treasurer, J. L. Hyde; school superintendent, S. G. Irvin; surveyor, Josiah Gideon; assessor, W. H. Alexander; commissioner, F. A. Godwin; coronor, Dr. Parent; delegates to state and congressional conventions, R. A. Bessell, C. B. Croso and G. E. Davis. A resolution was adopted instructing the delegates to Hermann.

Last Tuesday B. F. Jones went to Portland in response to a telegram from the Portland hospital, to bring Judge Burt home. The hospital physicians had made a critical examination of the judge's condition and had decided that they could give no relief. Mr. Jones returned with the judge Wednesday evening. The judge stood the trips to and from the hospital much better than it was expected. It is with sincere regret that his many friends learn that he could not be helped at the hospital.—Lincoln Leader.

They claim to be picking up gold in Yamhill county. The Hook & Ladder company will coin fun in Corvallis, Saturday night, at the opera house. The theatre will be crowded. Delegates to the republican county convention will take in the "Election of Morrissy." There will be a crowd over from Albany, and Corvallis folks will, of course, turn out en masse. The boys deserve to be generally patronized by the citizens of Corvallis, apart from any merits of performance, for the money they donate to raise will be expended indirectly for the further protection of the city against fire. Volunteer fire companies can not be too highly encouraged. Reserved seats on sale at Conover's, and those desiring choice ones should not delay.

There is a strong competition between the O. C. & E. and the O. R. & N. Co. for the Willamette river traffic. The officials of the latter company are watching with keenest interest the operation of the Albany, and when that boat leaves Portland tomorrow morning she will have a rival and there will be a merry old race to reach the locks first. The O. R. & N. will put on the race to compete with the Albany. O. R. & N. men claim that the Albany cannot make her schedule time, but she actually gained twenty minutes on her schedule between Corvallis and Salem yesterday. She left Corvallis 7:05 a. m., five minutes late, but arrived in Albany at 8, ten minutes ahead of time. She took on there 210 bales of hay, leaving Albany 45 minutes late, and arrived at Salem at 11:55, only 25 minutes late.

The O. C. & E. Co. is out with a time schedule for the steamboat Albany that is of considerable interest to the people of Corvallis and vicinity. Commencing yesterday, the boat leaves Corvallis Monday, Wednesday and Friday at 7 a. m., and arrives at Portland 6:30 p. m. She leaves Portland Tuesdays, Thursdays and Saturdays at 6 a. m., and arrives at Corvallis 11:20 p. m. The boat has been elegantly furnished, including a new piano, and is especially prepared to cater to the passenger trade. The fare is remarkably low. From Corvallis to Portland the rate is $1.25, and the round trip, good for 30 days, is only $2.00. Freight rates are equally reasonable. A steamboat ride to Portland is a pleasant trip, and the Albany, with its capable and accommodating officers and good traveling qualities, will no doubt be liberally patronized.

Benton county this week received two valuable accessions to her steadily increasing population. The new comers had from Sheridan county, Colorado. Their names are Mr. and Mrs. John Ross and they will make their residence on the Woodcock farm, in Dusty precinct, which Mr. Ross recently purchased. Mr. Ross is well-to-do and for many years has been engaged in raising stock, which he marketed in car-load lots in Omaha and Chicago. On account of poor health he concluded to move to a milder climate, and for several months has been traveling about the Willamette valley, seeking a location. The Woodcock farm struck his fancy, largely on account of its resemblance to the ranch he formerly owned in Colorado. With his wife, Mr. Ross moved to his new home this week. He intends engaging quite extensively in stock growing.

COMMITTED SUICIDE.

Max Friendly Ended his Life With a Pistol Shot Monday Afternoon in Portland.

Word reached Corvallis Monday evening that Mr. Max Friendly, a former well-known resident of this city, who moved with his family to Portland less than a year ago, had committed suicide by taking poison. Tuesday's Oregonian confirmed the report as to his death, but instead of poison, it was a shot from a British bulldog revolver that did the fatal work. Regarding the matter the Oregonian says business reverses and other troubles had depressed him in mind and spirits, but none of his family had the slightest suspicion that he contemplated self destruction.

Monday afternoon about 1:30, Miss Hattie Friendly, eldest daughter of the deceased, and employed as an assistant librarian at the Portland library, called on her father at his place of business. She noticed that he seemed in moody spirits and apparently ill. She sought to persuade him to go home, but he refused, saying that he might feel better after smoking a cigar. Miss Friendly became alarmed over the condition in which she found her father, and her alarm was greatly increased when, asking him what time it was, Mr. Friendly seemed incapable of informing her. Fearing that her father's illness would increase she started for the Portland business college, where her youngest sister, Sadie, is a student, to apprise her of their father's condition. Before leaving the store, she asked Mr. F. A. Insley, who was present, to remain with Mr. Friendly for a few minutes; as he was not well.

Mr. Insley willingly did so, and for a few moments he and Mr. Friendly engaged in general conversation, when the latter said he desired to go to the toilet, located a few feet from the rear door of the store. Mr. Insley had not the slightest suspicion of Mr. Friendly's intention, but did go as far as the door, which was left open when he passed out. Friendly had not been in the closet more than a minute or two when the sharp report of a pistol was heard, and his body plunged out, feet first, so violently as himself entirely, to clear the closet, and the force of the fall was so great as to break the right leg. A torrent of blood was rushing from a gaping wound near the right temple, and a few feet away was a still smoking British bulldog pistol, which mysteriously told the story of the suicide.

Medical assistance was speedily summoned and several physicians, reaching the scene, sought to save the unfortunate man's life, but recovery was hopeless, and twenty minutes after the shot was fired Mr. Friendly was dead.

While the physicians were engaged in examining the wound, the eldest daughter returned to the store, and was horrified to learn what had taken place during her brief absence. She lamented that she had been kindled to go by herself, and Mr. Insley kindly said to her:

"My dear woman, you did not intimate to me the possibility of anything of this kind." "I did not think of such a thing myself," she tearfully responded. "I knew he was not well, and had some trouble, but I did not anticipate anything like this."

The news of Mr. Friendly's death came like a thunderbolt on his wife and children at the family home. Hattie, the eldest daughter, was the first to break the sad intelligence to her mother, sisters and brothers, and for some moments the real import of what she was so bravely trying to tell could not be realized. When it was, the sudden grief of the household was pitiful, and neighbors, relatives and friends were not wanting in tenders of assistance.

Max Friendly was 60 years of age, and had lived upon the Pacific coast nearly 40 years. In his early years he went to the Salmon river mines, in Idaho, where he made a good deal of money. From there he removed to Boise City, where he engaged in the lively business for some time, his property being destroyed by fire in one of the numerous conflagrations that swept over the mining camps in early days. Rebuilding, he remained in business in Boise City for a time, but shortly after came to the Willamette valley, and settled in Benton county, engaging in the general merchandise business at Monroe.

Later he removed to Corvallis, where he lived for nearly 30 years, in 1873 marrying Miss Simon, who survives him. Mr. Friendly followed the business of merchandising, and also engaged in the lumbering trade. Several years ago his sawmill was burned and it was always suspected that the place was set fire by a discharged employe. It was then that Mr. Friendly first met with business reverses. His loss by burning of his mill and other ventures was $68,000. About two years ago he was compelled to make an assignment and a settlement was effected with the creditors at $4.0 cents.

While paying nearly every dollar he owed, Mr. Friendly himself was left almost penniless, and to add to his difficulties, he became engaged in several disputes over business transactions with John Long, which ended in Long being shot by Friendly. For many days it was expected that Long would die from the results of his injuries, but he finally recovered. The grand jury indicted Friendly for assault with intent to kill, and he was tried at the November term of court. The jury failed to agree, standing 11 for acquittal, which the friends of Mr. Friendly think is really an exoneration. The second trial was to have taken place week after next, and it may have been this which caused Mr. Friendly to brood over his fallen fortunes and business troubles, until, suffering under great mental aberration, he killed himself. He had lived with his family in Portland about one year, and for some time had been manager of the California wine depot. He leaves a wife and eight children, Herbert, Hattie, Sadie, Milton, Eldrey, Oscar, Lillian and Caroline. Herbert, the eldest son, is attending the state agricultural college at Corvallis.

DEATH OF ANOTHER PIONEER.

After a lingering illness, George W. Kisor, an Oregon pioneer, died at his home in Philomath Saturday night, aged 78 years.

The deceased was born near Sandusky, Ohio, on the 28th of Feb., 1823. In his early manhood, he moved to Mahaska county, Iowa, where on the 20th day of January, 1846, he was united in marriage with Sarah Ann Frel, who survives him. As a result of this union seven sons and four daughters have been born. Of these, four sons and three daughters survive, all of whom were present during his last illness. In 1852 he, with his family, crossed the plains to Oregon, and the following spring settled in Benton county, where he constantly remained until his death. In the year 1844 he united with the Christian church, of which he was a devoted member when he died on the 28th of March, 1896. At the time of his death his age was 73 years and one month. He was paralyzed four years ago last December. His wife has faithfully attended at his side in all the years of his prolonged affliction, ministering to his wants, and caring for him by day and by night.

For weeks his children have been with him, each day, thinking it would be his last; he desired them to be present, for he was an affectionate husband and parent. But on the night of the 28th of March, after 73 years and one month of life, had been allotted him, the weary wheels of life stood still at last, and his body, so long afflicted, rested in death. The family bid him a long farewell as husband and father, hoping to meet him in the immortal world when their day of life has fled. The funeral services took place at the family residence in Philomath on Monday at 9 a. m., conducted by Bishop Dillon at the United Brethren church. The remains were followed to the grave by a large concourse of sorrowing friends. The interment occurred at Mount Union cemetery.

SPRING MOVING.

Several business houses of Corvallis have changed location the past week.

The GAZETTE Publishing Company has moved into its new quarters in the building on Madison street known as the fire engine hall. The building has been fitted up especially for the paper, and makes a roomy and commodious place of business. The GAZETTE now has plenty of "elbow room" and when we are settled, the publisher expects to considerably improve the paper.

Frank Conover has removed his stationery store and news depot to the store in the Occidental block, next door to Vogle's. This is a good location and Mr. Conover has fitted up his store with much taste. The building formerly occupied by this office and Conover and the one next door, owned by Bryson and Wilson, are to be connected by an archway and fitted up for occupation as a restaurant, ice cream parlor and bakery. Hodess & Hall will be the occupants. They expect to operate a first-class restaurant in connection with their bakery and their new quarters will be very convenient for that purpose.

MORRISSEY, DYE KNOW HIM?

Pat Morrissey is a regular old shamrock Irishman. The green of him colors the sunlight to the shade of St. Patrick. But he runs for sheriff with the vim of a lightning rod agent and bumps up against some curious experiences. Some are delightful, some funny and some mysterious. A fire that is successfully resisted by the fire boys, and that gives the red-shirted lads a chance to sing their fire song, first claims his attention. A medium and mesmerist then, astonishes him with his wonderful power. He runs about of a phonograph, and listens to a good minstrel performance, that introduces jolly songs and funny sayings. A newspaper office is the object of his wrath, and he goes in to "lick" the editor. The "prints" enjoy themselves after his visit. He is serenaded and makes a speech. He has a lively time at the polls, and the result of the election is appropriately celebrated. During the campaign he acquires the friendship of Jesse Wooden from Wreabird, and the quality of the friendship is not strained.

The experience of Morrissey will be depicted Saturday night at the opera house by the Hook and Ladder boys. It will be an "up in G" affair, and will merit the crowded house that is already assured.

A parade at two o'clock, Saturday afternoon, with the H. & L. band furnishing the music, and with many novel features, is being arranged. After the parade a horse race between the H. & L. team and a team of sprinters from the O. A. C., will come off. The race alone will be well worth seeing. The Downtown fire brigade will show off their agility. The evening entertainment will commence at 8 o'clock. Admission has been placed at 25 cents. Reserved seats, 35 cents; children 15 cents.

The Shakers have made a discovery which is destined to accomplish much good. Realizing that three-fourths of all our sufferings arise from stomach troubles, that the country is literally filled with people who cannot eat and digest food, without subsequently suffering pain and distress, and that many are starving, wasting to mere skeletons, because their food does them no good, they have devoted much study and thought to the subject, and the result is this discovery, of their Digestive Cordial.

A little book can be obtained from your druggist that will point out the way of relief at once. An investigation will cost nothing and will result in much good.

The horns uv the politishuns iz a sounden, and the armies uv the parties iz a mobilizen. Me an Tamany hez herd the bugel blast an ar girden on our armor. The party leeders iz a cultivaten a patriotic spirit, and a taste for all kinds uv mixt drinks. Me an Tamany hev lurned our lessons an ar goin to act dispasshunately in this campaign, with an eye singel to the interests uv Tamany. Jest now we ar interested in what the republicans ar a doin, for if they ar on to themselves an stand together uv course our names pantz. We hev to hav republican votes to get in an we generally get em. We want the offices that brings the kash. We aint interested so much in unashual affairs. The United States iz big enuf to take care uv itself. All we want iz to take charge uv the payen offices in Benton county. We've ben a figurin and hev decided that we can afford to give the republicans the legislatur, the commishuners and the koroner. If it kums to a pinch we mite give em surveyor. Uu course we hev to wrik emy kute, for their aint meny uv us, but what their iz iz politishun an eas skeem. The republicans iz easy graft, generally but we ar gittin kinder oneazy, koler ther ar aines that the ar catchin on to themselves. We've got our feelers out and the ar feelen an a feelen. They'll keep on a feelen till the kounty republican koveshunshun, an then they'll report. We hope to preserv our control in a republican jar. In the meantime we ar skeemim.

Tamany's got two men trainen for sherrif—Burnett and Watters—the hot an the cold of it. It depends on the republican tickit, who we take up. We'll either Burnett or pour Watters on it. Rickard iz loomin up as a candydate, but he aint Tamany an won't get thar. We mean bizness an no how to pull anti-Tamany fellers on to our side.
