LOCAL HAPPENINGS.

Capt. J. W. Crawford was in Salem this week, returning home Wednesday.

M. O. Wilkins, of Eugene, was in town Monday on legal business.

N. L. Price, of Eugene, a former Bentonite, was in Corvallis this week.

Prof. W. W. Bristol closed a successful term of school last Friday in the Belknap settlement.

G. R. Farra moved his office this week into the Klins block and will permanently occupy the two front rooms.

I. D. Burgh, who recently went east with his family, is now traveling salesman for a large eastern lumber company.

Sabbath school and Endeavor Societies as usual at the Presbyterian church next Sabbath. Services in the evening at 7:45. A kind welcome to all.

Adam Asselt returned from the bay Saturday, having received no benefit from the trip, which he took in hopes of improving his health.

M. H. Campbell, of Eugene, familiarly known among the insurance fraternity as "Continental Campbell," passed through town Wednesday en route homeward from Dallas.

Married, Wednesday morning, at the court house, Wm. H. Klam and Miss Julia A. Purdy, County Judge Hufford officiating. The contracting parties are aged respectively 30 and 49 years.

Union memorial services will occur next Sabbath morning at the Presby-terian church, conducted by the pastors of the city. Dr. Thompson is expected to preach the sermon.

Geo. W. Riley, of this city, a member of Co. F, 2nd Regiment O. N. G., re-ceived orders this week to report for duty June 26th, at which time the militia of the state will go into encampment at Hood River.

Another enjoyable excursion is pro-mised for Sunday. The O. C. & E. R. R. runs a special train to Yaguna that day returning in the evening. Tickets good to Newport and back. This gives a cheap Sunday outing and a taste of salt air.

Tuesday evening the Corvallis Wood-men give an entertainment at the opera house, to which the public is cordially invited. They have prepared a program of especial interest for the occasion and are making extensive preparations for a large attendance.

Members of the G. A. R. relief corps and Sons of Veterans are requested to meet promptly at 10:30 Sunday morning in their hall to march to the Presbyterian church where memorial service will be held, Dr. Thompson preaching the ser-mon.

Brady Burnett and Charles Chandler arrived in Corvallis Tuesday from Stan-ford. After a few days' visiting here, the latter will return to his home in Baker City. Both boys are looking splendid and were evidently not starved at Palo Alto.

A letter from 'Gene Simpson, received this week, states that he is in San Fran-cisco, but is as yet a gentleman of li-berty. Bert VanCleave, he found, was as-sistant stage director at the Auditorium theatre and a leading member of the cast.

R. S. Harrington left at this office last Friday a box of luscious strawberries grown on his place west of town. They were the first of the season and the gen-tleman who brought them in received a unanimous vote of thanks from the en-tire GAZETTE force.

Tomorrow, at the race track, Rube Kiger will show the public what his very promising colt "Pumpkin Seed" can do. There will be some good heats in the afternoon and a number of horses will doubtless be put on the track. Every-body invited.

Out of respect for the late J. R. Bryson who was for many years an active mem-ber of the Corvallis fire department, the Hook and Ladder social, which was to have been given tomorrow night, has been postponed.

There will be an interesting service in the old Methodist church on Sunday eve-ning, May 30. As it will be the last Sunday service, it will be in the form of a farewell meeting. A number of brief addresses will be made by members of the church. All are cordially invited to attend this service.

Last Friday there was a sham battle between Companies F and G, in which F. conquered the defender of the hill. Major Jackson, U. S. A., witnessed the contest. Company F is in splendid form and will probably drill against Company I or G. O. N. G., of Portland, some time in June.

AMONG THE FARMERS.

Traveling Correspondent Visits Hill Ranches—Note and Comment.

W. S. Tomlinson is a successful farmer living on the farm of old Judge Guyles, whose daughter is Mr. Tomlinson's wife. Ye scribe was royally entertained by these people at dinner and their home life was enjoyed for a couple of hours. One loves to linger in such a home, for love dwells there and comfort and peace are its happy companions.

Mrs. Bertha Ridders, a widow living a little below Mr. Tomlinson's, has a fine home and an excellent farm. She super-intends her broad acres and devotes her life to the care of a helpless, invalid daughter, who has been bedfast for over two years. This patient mother, who is not young, cheerfully takes the burdens of life and hopes for rest in the "be-yond" for her weary hands and tired feet. Here is a case of motherly devo-tion, love and care that causes one to feel that he is on holy ground. None but a mother can know the anxious days of trial, care and sorrow that are spent in ministering to the wants of this invalid daughter. May He who paints the lilies of the field with the beautiful tints of color, who cares for the chirping spar-row and watches over all our ways, smooth the dying pillow of the daughter, and comfort the broken heart of the mother, is our hope.

J. A. Carter is a successful merchant at Wells, whose hand we grasped and felt that we were holding the palm of an honest man. We also met one of the successful farmers near Wells, R. W. Doodle, who has a fine farm well stock-ed and well tilled. Mr. Doodle is a man of affairs and reasons for himself. He is intelligent and active, influential and popular, and deservedly so.

C. N. Stewart, commonly called "Cal," is full of enthusiasm and hope for the future and prosperity for all. Very likely the writer has omitted some names which he would gladly re-call. Such omissions, if any there be, were not intended. We noticed, especially, the politeness and courtesy everywhere extended to us, the hopeful expressions for the future, the belief in a bountiful harvest and good prices and the entire confidence expressed of the early return of prosperity. Not one acre of poor grain was seen on the trip of three days and the faces of the persons we met were all wreathed with smiles.

Fruit trees are in fine condition and are generally loaded with fruit. With only a few exceptions, all orchards are looking better than ever before, due largely to the more intelligent care that they are receiving than heretofore. The region gone over is very well adapted to fruit growing and large quan-tities will be harvested this autumn if present impressions are at all reliable.

The section traveled over is one of the best in Benton county and in a few years will be shipping fruit by train loads. It was uniformly well treated and it has been a very great pleasure for me to re-new old acquaintances and make so many new ones.

STILL ON THE WING. I met, near Wells, A. C. Williamson, whose farm shows the effects of skillful and intelligent effort. In Kings Valley, I saw the old pio-neer, Gabriel Long, several of the Chambers boys, A. C. Miller, Dick and James Dunn, Mr. Cady, Perry Eddy, Mr. Watson, James Plunkett, Sam King and family and H. H. Glassford, all of whom expressed hope and courage for the future. Many seemed anxious to have the tariff bill passed soon, that the Cuban in-surgents be recognized by the United States and expressed sympathy for the struggling Greeks.

I was told by a prominent citizen of Wells that the lane leading from that place west into the county road running from Corvallis to Monmouth, as well as a portion of the latter, was not worked at all last year, and so far this year nothing has been done. Who is to blame, the writer does not know, but one thing is evident—these places have been impos-sible during the past winter. Many teams were stalled, rigs and harness broken, and the air for miles so impregnated with the sulphurous fumes resulting from the profanity of the luckless wights who were compelled to travel over these places, that vegetation looks sickly, the only place so affected in the entire north half of the county.

I stopped over night with T. C. Baker, who is jolly and full of energy and the owner of a 1300-acre stock ranch. In Blodgett valley I was entertained by W. A. Gellatly and wife. Will owns a stock and grain ranch of about 1300 acres and leases another large farm. He has 600 acres in grain, which is all looking well and his sheep and cattle are in fine condition. Everything on the ranch goes on like clock work.

Also saw Isaac Norton and sons. Ned Simmons and the Nortons were making road. Passed Underhill's and Bob McFarland's places, both were on the back-part of their ranches, building fence. At Summit saw Mattoon and Squire Godman, of Nashville, Lincoln county. Stopped with Mr. Christian, on the old Pickenger place, for lunch. His daughter exhibited to us some beautiful crayon work, the achievement of her own deft and skillful hands. This is an ideal place for travellers to stop.

John Schwondt has a fine little farm near Blodgett station. Fred Johnson says his fruit was injured by the frost. The roads we traveled in this section were very rough, not having been worked until the past week. The fences are in better shape than the writer has ever seen them. The crops look exception-ally well and the farmers universally seem to have an abiding faith in Oregon and prefer to stay here.

All look forward to good crops and fair prices this fall and to the beginning of an era of prosperity. The past few years have been full of experience to the farmer, as well as to the business classes in the towns and cities. The lessons have been so well learned that the rural classes are more self-reliant and indepen-dent than ever before. Small holdings of land are being encouraged by them and the future will see more varied em-ployment and a greater diversity of farm products.

ED. GAZETTE.—In the last edition of your paper, there appeared among the "Monroe Items" an item relating to a certain "sawmill man whose last initial is Martin." As I am a sawmill man and my name happens to be Martin and I live near Monroe, I deem it but jus-tice to myself to take notice of the item, lest it might be inferred that I am the one referred to. If I am the one referred to, I have but to characterize the entire statement in that regard as an in-famous lie.

The State Grange.

Corvallis was captured this week by the grangers, the occasion being the annual meeting of the state grange and fully 200 delegates and visiting members were in attendance. The secret meetings were held in the spacious Fireman's hall, where the opening meeting was called to order at 10 o'clock Tuesday morning. Tuesday afternoon at two o'clock a well attended public meeting was held at the court house where Mayor Woodward made the address of welcome on behalf of the citizens and extended to the visi-tors the freedom of the city. Prof. H. T. French, master of the Corvallis grange, also made a brief address welcoming the guests. He was followed by master of the state grange, Wm. M. Hillery, in an address of considerable length that was attentively listened to throughout.

Mr. Hillery, after giving a brief his-tory of the Oregon grange and its work, discussed the objects and benefits of the order in a practical common sense man-ner. He stated that the grange was not allowed to take part in politics, although there were many public matters of a political nature that came within the range of its discussions and these discus-sions proved helpful in educating its members to a better knowledge of many public questions and to illustrate the work of the grange along this line. Mr. Hillery stated that a committee from the national grange were at present before congress urging a tariff in the interest of agriculture, a law for the restriction of foreign immigration, a pure food law and also for an amendment to the constitu-tion providing for the election of senators by the people.

Wednesday evening the visiting gran-gers took dinner at Cauthorn hall and in the evening were entertained at the col-lege chapel with an interesting musical and literary program.

Will Linger Longer.

The young red-whiskered husband of Eliza Ann Sanders, Halcomb, the amagorian citizeness of Monroe Precinct, marched with the Salvation Army Sun-day, and thereby hangs a tale.

When the body and soul of old Laban Sanders parted company five or six years ago, soon after his release from the peni-tentiary, he left Eliza an interesting widow of 60 summers. Her only son "Titty," soon after was measured for a suit of clothes at the state's expense and Eliza was lonely.

A young man named Holcomb worked on her ranch and he found favor in Madam Sanders's eyes. He was neither an Adonis nor a Solomon, but he was young, and fighting law and feeling law-yers had tendered towards supplementing the lady's decided lack of cleaning fea-tures so that she was not fastidious. She proposed, and as it was either fight or marry with him, there was a wedding.

Holcomb stayed with the proposition as long as he could, but human nature has its limitations. Saturday he came to town resolved to follow Laban and quit this world where Eliza Annus are too much in evidence. He determined to die that night. While waiting for dark-ness to fall, he chanced to enter the Sal-vation Army barracks. Something the lieutenant said was pertinent to his case and he became absorbed in the services. He stayed after the meeting and con-fessed his intention of quitting this vale of tears. He was earnestly labored with and prevailed upon to take a new view of life. And so he marches with the army now.

Woodmen's Picnic.

Great preparations are being made by the Philomathean Woodmen for the enter-tainment of Head Consul Faulkenburg, who will be with them next Wednesday, June 2nd, and deliver an address. A basket picnic at the campgrounds, im-mediate west of town, has been ar-ranged and an interesting program will be rendered, in addition to which, there will be wood-chopping and sawing con-tests, tug of war, a nail-driving contest for ladies, foot races and other amusing features. Everybody, young and old, great and small, is cordially invited to be present.

Died.

At Corvallis, Friday, May 21st, 1897, after four months of great suffering, Mr. Andrew Emerick, aged 64 years and 25 days. He leaves a wife, two brothers and many other relatives and friends to mourn his loss.

The funeral services were held in the Baptist church on Sunday morning con-ducted by the pastor, Rev. M. Noble, as-sisted by Revs. Moses and Kelly. A large congregation listened with marked at-tention to the sermon from John, XIV, 25. Many beautiful floral tribu-tutes attested to the esteem in which this Indian war veteran and long resident of Corvallis was held, as well as showing deep sympathy for the bereaved.

The remains were interred in the old family burial ground, where many friends gathered to unite in the closing services. Everything that kind feeling could prompt was done to show respect to the departed and alleviate the grief of the sorrowing ones, whose heartfelt thanks are tendered to all for everything done to assist them during this long and severe affliction.

THE LAST SAD OFFICES.

Funeral Services of the Late J. R. Bryson Held Today.

J. R. Bryson died Friday, May 21st, in New York City, where he had gone for medical treatment. The body was brought to Corvallis for burial, arriving here yester-day afternoon, accompanied by the family and a delegation from the Bar Association of Corvallis, which acted as an escort from Portland. The funeral services will be held at the Bryson resi-dence this afternoon at two o'clock and interment will be made in Crystal Lake cemetery.

John R. Bryson was born in Lin county in August, 1864. He attended the Oregon Agricultural College at Corvallis, graduating in 1874. Two years later he was admitted to the practice of law and began his professional career in this city, where he has ever since resided. He served two terms as city recorder and two terms as mayor and from 1882 to 1886 was county judge of Ben-ton county.

He was a lawyer of high rank and enjoyed a large and lucrative practice. He was prominently connected with the famous O. P. R. R. litigation, representing the mortgagees. He was one of the leading citizens of Benton county, respected by all, and had a host of warm personal friends. He leaves a widow and two sons, Edward R. and Koscoe Bryson.

The community was in a meas-ure prepared for the news of his death, for Judge Bryson, himself, when he left for the east, had left the hope of being benefited and bade all his friends farewell. He put his affairs in order and calmly awaited the summons.

At his request, the Masons, of which order he was a member, will take charge of the services at the grave, which will be very brief. The following gentlemen, at his request, will act as pall-bearers: Judge McFadden, Prof. French, Thos. Callahan, R. M. Davison, M. M. Davis, Robt. Har-bison, Lewis Wilson and Chas. Clarke.
