

AFFIRMATION.

The Gazette stands for: The protective tariff. The single gold standard. Retirement of the bond-breeding, credit-threatening demagogues of our government.

The payment of the national debt in the best money that wisdom and experience can devise. A factiousness, clean, effective republican party.

PRINCIPLE IN METHODS.

We have in our politics men mad on the gold side of the money question, as well as those crazy with free silver notions. To those mad men anything that tends toward the support of the gold standard is necessarily good and justifiable.

The silver question had nothing to do with the refusal of the senate to seat Corbett. Burrows who presented the committee report against him is a gold republican.

McCauley, the only real gold democrat in the senate was against him. The 50 votes against Corbett included many sound money men and the 19 votes for him included a number of free silver senators.

There are a few men in the republican party who say "of course the manner in which Corbett secured the appointment as senator is subject to severe criticism, but I would like to see him seated for he would help the cause of sound money."

Such a position is more dangerous than that of the silver men. It is a frank endorsement of dishonesty. Such a man says, "anything is fair that helps our side." That man cannot consistently criticize the anarchist.

The attack against the gold standard is unreasoning and astounding and is already manifesting the weakness that in error ever lies. Honest and sane principles of finance should be and will be always defended by those who know the truth and follow it.

There seems to be no danger that the free silver element will ever prevail. But better it will be for our country that false principles, honestly urged, shall triumph for awhile, than that corruption and debauchery be lightly excused or openly commended.

McBRIDE AND CORBETT.

The "disturber," which is one of the nicknames the Oregonian gives itself, is still "engaged in the active operation of its special fitness." It now boils over with wrath against Senator McBride.

The senator is as sound and consistent on the money question as Mr. Scott himself, and the Oregonian seems to find no fault with him on that score.

The Oregonian, notwithstanding its disclaimers, was very, very much concerned in the election of Corbett. The overwhelming vote, 50 to 19, against Lord's appointee, was, under the circumstances, an ignoble defeat.

McBride believed that law and equity was against the claimant and he voted with the large majority. It was his right to so believe and so to do.

The Oregonian's baseless and disgraceful insult will be resented by every honest and fair citizen.

WAR.

We may have no war with Spain, but there are strong reasons for believing that the war must come. The Maine disaster will be the ostensible cause.

It is now known that the wreck of the warship was not accidental. Our government, when this fact is officially made public, will demand heavy indemnity.

The Spanish government will hardly be allowed by the Spanish people to satisfy this demand and war will be declared.

President McKinley has used and will use every honorable means to avoid the conflict. He dreads to bring upon us the horrors of war, for he knows there is more misery and loss than glory and gain in arbitrament of the sword.

But there is that to be dreaded more than war, and when the time to act comes we will see that McKinley will act with the wisdom and energy of a courageous and sagacious statesman.

Culls and Comments.

"The captain of the steamer Albany," says the Monroe correspondent, "stopped his boat to rescue two lambs that had fallen over the bank into the river, and put them back on solid ground."

loose on Tom Tongue and probably exterminated him. Surely those ponderous sentences were not framed in vain. And right now we humble our pride and call upon the Times to stop, for mercy's sake.

The series of farmers' institutes held recently in Eastern Oregon have been so successful as to exceed the hopes of those having them in charge. The newspapers of the several cities and towns in which institutes were held are strong in their praise of the methods employed and the results accomplished.

On the up trip Saturday, the captain of the Albany stopped the boat and replaced on the high bluff on the high bluff on the river east of town, two small lambs that had ventured too close and fallen over. The mother awaited their return on the bank above. Not many masters of river steamers would be so humane.

That "Monroeite," whose mind has turned to spring poetry, must have wheels in his head, that run with a wabbling rotation on a crooked axis. Better send up the coroner to investigate his case, as it is surely too far along for a physician to be of any use to him.

Little Stella Belknap almost had palpitation of the heart last Saturday evening. Some one brought in a shotgun and stood it up on the cement hearth, muzzle down, and failed to remove the shells. The little girl came in, saw the gun, and in her curiosity pulled back the hammer and then touched the trigger. It will take a good many days to induce her to repeat the dose. No damage was done with the exception of an ugly hole in the hearthstone.

PHILOMATH NEWS LETTER.

William Ross has moved to West Philomath. Mrs. Emma Brink, of Salem, is visiting relatives in the city.

A. M. Gray visited Yamhill county on business last week. Prof. Emerick received two members into the church Sunday.

Rev. Cocking preached at Bell fountain Sunday morning and evening. J. E. Henkle superintended the planting of two nice rows of evergreens in front of the brick college.

Mrs. Mary Phillips, of Salem, has moved here, and will make her home with her father, Geo. W. Ross.

Our public school observed Washington's birthday in an appropriate manner. The afternoon session was pleasantly passed in recitations and singing.

There was a large crowd assembled at the depot Monday morning to bid farewell to Rev. Nell, of Irving, who has been engaged in the revival services here. The meetings will continue this week.

Miss Tirza White was called home last week by the illness of her mother. Dr. R. O. Logan delivered some very instructive and helpful lectures last week.

Miss Webb has been quite sick, but is somewhat improved at the present writing. Quite a large number of our students will leave at the end of this term. All or nearly all intend to return next year.

Revival meetings are still in progress and are doing a great deal of good. Nearly all of our students are now Christians. The town boys and men played baseball with the college boys last Saturday. At the close of the game the score stood 12 to 56 in favor of the college boys.

Two rows of trees extending from the college building south to Main street, have been recently set out. When the weather and other circumstances permit the authorities will place a walk between these rows of evergreen trees.

Everybody busy plowing and sowing during the good weather. Taylor Miller, of Kings Valley, has been visiting here for the last week.

Frank Holman closed a very successful term of school here on the 25th. E. M. Dodele and Castle shipped a carload of hogs from here this week.

J. L. Tomlinson and wife, of Albany, spent Sunday with friends here. Quite a number of young folks went to Corvallis to see Uncle Tom's Cabin.

The populists here still continue to meet and hold their free silver club. So far there has been no democrats joined their club.

There were two land buyers in our neighborhood last week from Kingston, Lane county. W. Brown has been in the valley buying sheep and cattle. He is paying McKinley prices.

Literary society and spelling school meetings are in full blast at the Nois school house. Miss Retta Clark, 12 years old, is the teacher of the spelling school.

The vice-president of the literary society, in an address, stated that the country is uncivilized, and that we are badly in need of a Sunday school. The question for next Saturday night will be: Resolved, that there is more pleasure in pursuit than in possession.

HOW TO MARKET FRUIT.

The latest bulletin of the Oregon Agricultural College experiment station is entitled "Marketing Fruit," and is the compilation of Moses Craig, botanist. It is replete with practical suggestions and those interested in orchards should send for this bulletin, No. 51, which will be furnished free.

Prof. Craig, says in part: "Though the selling of crops is just as important financially as raising them, few farmers exercise the same care in marketing as in growing fruit. Especially is this true of the man with a few trees, who should be most zealous in establishing a market, as he cannot, unless in co-operation with others, afford to ship fruit to a distance, but must depend on the home market, which may be gradually educated to appreciate good fruit."

The grover who patiently and intelligently devotes his personal attention to raising choice, well flavored table fruit for a special limited market will in time reap a golden harvest denied his less painstaking neighbor.

The importance of striving to please customers is not always fully realized by those marketing fruit. The consumers' wants may not coincide with your views of what they should be, but when he is satisfied, you not only make a sale, but gain a permanent customer. Keep in close touch with the markets, visiting them often to find out what people really want and pay the most for.

The producer, retailer and consumer should, as far as possible, understand and trust each other, remembering that in union there is strength, and each needs the other's assistance.

The sale of fruit depends on its appearance and quality, the kind of package used, proper grading and packing, and its condition when sold. Over production and low prices tend to cause careless ness in picking and packing small fruits which are frequently placed on the market in an uninviting condition, keeping prices down.

When graded it is more in demand and brings higher prices. More care is needed in selling fruit. The market is seldom so overstocked that choice fruit retailed in perfect condition will bring a fair price.

Beauty of form and color, large, uniform size and good keeping qualities often sell fruit when excellence of flavor will not, and many little devices may be employed to increase its attractiveness.

"If some fruit packages sell better than others, seek to ascertain the reason, and if possible meet the requirements of an exacting market. Establish a reputation for selling only the very best so buyers will trust you and prefer your fruit. Aim to constantly improve the quality of fruit sold and never "top off" a barrel or crate with fine specimens, hiding poorer ones beneath, as the deception is soon discovered and you lose a customer.

Honesty is the best policy, as the pleasant surprise of finding all the fruit in a package equally good, will almost invariably secure increased patronage. Have standard packages of uniform size, for each kind of fruit, and avoid fraud in using small boxes, which is one of the prevalent evils with which honest dealers have to contend. Always mark the packages containing your choicest product with grower's name, name of orchard, and brand or trade name of the fruit, especially when shipping to a distant town, as this is your best possible advertisement, and tends to establish a market for your fruit.

It is because its readers are of the well-to-do class that the Corvallis Gazette is the most profitable medium for advertisers in Benton county.
