HAIL AND FAREWELL.

Graduation and Advancement of Oregon Agricultural College Students. A Felicitous Commencement Week.

"The king is dead. Long live the king!" The senior of 1898 has abdicated his throne, and the junior of '98 is now the senior of '99. Pleasant and interesting have been the exercises accompanying the transition.

Mutely eloquent, telling the story of these history-making times, pathetic reminders of Columbia's war against oppression, were the draped chairs of two members of the class of '98, who, in the far-away islands of the Pacific, bear arms for their country's flag and against their country's foes.

THE MUSICAL RECITAL.

Saturday evening at the college chapel a large audience heard the recital given by vocal and piano students of the O. A. C.

Miss Amy Willis Plummer introduced the program choosing Beethoven and Moszkowski as composers. Her work was marked by an intelligent comprehension and interpretation. Later in the evening in duett with Master Goodnough, Miss Plummer demonstrated her artistic ability and musical generalship.

Miss Lulu Spangler in two numbers and especially the second, Gounod's "Sing, Smile, Slumber," showed surprising improvment in voice control. There was a cultivated effectiveness in her singing that did not leave with one the impression that the singer was striving after effect.

Miss Hattie Hoover in her piano playing exhibited a delicacy of touch and a tendency toward the brilliant in execution.

One of the most appreciated of the numbers was the singing of Rubenstein's "Since First I Met Thee," by Miss Mabel Johnson. Her pure and full tones were peculiarly suited to this selection and she colored her rendering with that natural shading of the voice to suit the words and melody which is included in the term 'expression.

In Mordant Goodnough Benton county has a musical genius. He is but a mere lad yet he played without notes, and with the spirit of the true artist difficult and classical selections from several of the famous composers.

In all, the recital was a distinct success and complimented the superior work of the musical department of the college, and Miss Ellis and Miss Nash, the instructors may justly feel proud of their pupils.

COMMENCEMENT SUNDAY.

The chapel was crowded Sunday morning. Rev. David Claiborne Garrett, of Trinity church, Portland, preached the sermon to the graduating class. A reporters synopsis would fail to do justice to the grand yet simple address. It was a helpful sermon, inspiring hope and confidence and more than the members of the class feel indebted to the speaker for the utterance that will live in many hearts and bear good fruit.

The impressive order of service of the Episcopal church, the magnificent music, the surpliced boy choir, the beautiful decoration of plants and flowers all aided in making this commencement Sunday one of lasting influence.

The subject cannot be passed without special mention of the music furnished by the recruited choir, which was directed by Miss Dorthea Nash and Prof. Crawford. The selections were of the highest order of church music and were grandly rendered.

SENIOR NIGHT.

Monday evening the abdicating seniors entertained the public presenting the drama "After many days." The president of the class, Dennis Stovall, preceded this with a neat little speech of thankfulness and good will.

One who has been through the last year of college life understands the demands upon the senior's time and know how few are the hours he can devote to rehersing for "senior night." Appreciating this fact, it can be said that the drama was admirably presented. It entertained and thoroughly amused the immense audience.

Those taking part were: Miss Gibson, Miss Shonkwiler, Miss Gellattly and Messrs. McKnight, Stovall, Colt, Weaver and Bodine.

The pretty custom of bestowing the mantle upon the junior class followed. Miss Lanra Cauthorn gracefully presenting the emblem of purity and steadfastness, on behalf of the seniors and W. L. Patterson receiving it on behalf of the juniors in a fitting response.

MILITARY DRILL AND ORDERS.

The war has directly and indirectly taken so many of the young men from school, that the cadet battalion was hardly more than a company yet these made a favorable showing at the exhibition drill Tuesday afternoon.

After dress parade the order announcing the officers for the coming year was posted, a ceremony of great interest to the cadets. The list is:

Battalion staff—First Lieut. and Adj't Leigh Noel; Cadet Sergeant Major, R. H. Gellatly; Color Sergeant, W. H. McBride; Color Corporals, A. T. Buxton, J. C. Mc, Costland.

The Line—Captains, J. J. Thurston, R. H. Howell, W. L. Patterson; First Lieutenants, H. A. Scoggins, N. R. Smith, F. A. Edwards. Second Lieutenants, C. Abrams, L. T. Powers, M. M. Cooper; First Sergeants, C. A. Saunders, W. H. Beach, L. W. Murray. Second Sergeants, J. G. Aldrich, John Van Gross, Jos. Van Gross. Third Sergeants, J. H. Gallagher, G. Huffman, R. McKee. Fourth Sergeants, R. D. Burgess, G. G. Elgin, E. P. Stites. Fifth Sergeants, A. H. Frazier, A. Kruse, R. Woodcock. Corporals, W. E. Smith, H. Davis, R. Gilstrap, G. W. Adams, M. Moore, E. B. Aldrich, A. L. Yeiser, C. H. Horner, A. J. Bier, W. L. Sharp, E. Reuter, H. E. Penland.

Of these officers Lieut. and Adj't Noel, Captain Thurston, Second Lieutenants Abrams and Cooper and Sergeants Cooper are with the Oregon volunteers at the Philippine Islands.

In the probable event that they do not return to college at the beginning of the next school year, promotions in order of rank will be made to fill vacancies.

Field and track sports attracted many visitors after the drill. Several former students participated in the racing among them being Fred Colvig of Grants Pass and Brady and Bruce Burnett. A faculty bicycle race between Professors Kent, Edwards, Smith and Heyward was interesting and was won by Heyward, Smith second.

THE PLAY "THESEUS."

Tuesday evening "Theseus," a mythological play, was given at the opera house under the direction of Prof. Helen Crawford, of the department of elocution and Miss K. Bertha Ellis, of the department of music with the following cast:

Theseus, grandson of the King of Trœzene, and son of Ægeas.....Chas. McKnight
Ægeus, King of Athens.....Lucian Tulley
Minos, King of Crete.....R. D. Burgess
Lycus and Iarbas, friends of Theseus.....R. D. Burgess, W. G. Patterson
Dymas, servant to Theseus.....H. A. Scoggins
Pyrrhus, a noble of Athens..W. B. Bruce
1st Noble of Crete,.....J. V. Colt
2d Noble of Crete.....Grant Elgin
Medea, wife Ægeus..Miss Hulda Holden
Ariadne, daughter of Minos.....Miss Maud Russell
Cressa, Elissa and Dorris, friends of Ariadne,.....
Misses Emma Rusk, Mabel and Mildred Johnson
Hippolypta, Queen of the Amazons.....Miss Carrie Danneman
Minerva, Goddess of War and Wisdom.....Miss Ella Caste
Guests, Nobles, Guards, Amazons, Etc.

A more finished amateur presentation of the kind has never been seen in Corvallis. There was a charming smoothness of movement that even the annoying incidents of disappearing lights failed to mar. Grace was suggested in the movements of the choruses and individuals. The singing showed the result of careful and competent training. After the third act Miss Lalia Porter gave with splendid effect, a recitation, "Lureame."

Any stint of praise regarding the whole performance would be unjust. Even the costuming calls for complimentary words. The players and their instructors may feel assured that they have earned the heartiest of plaudits.

COMMENCEMENT DAY.

The class of '98 numbered 29 members. The 12 ladies took the degree of Bachelor of Household Science. Seventeen young men graduated with the affix Bachelor of Science—six in the agricultural course and 11 in the mechanical. The members are Emma D. Beach, Laura B. Cauthorn, Nettie L. Gellatly, Edith Gibson, Mary Edna Groves, Georgia E. Hartless, Hulda E. Holden, Ena M. Kyle, Sarah E. Morrison, Colista M. Murray, Dora P. Porter, Myrtle Shonkwiler, Daniel H. Bodine, Sheldon C. Brown, Wm. J. Gilstrap, Edwin J. Hufford, Lionel A. Johnson, Aaron B. Kilder, Chester T. Colt, John R. Cooley, Frank Crawford, Frank S. Fendall, A. Jesse Tharp, Erwin J. Lea, Chas. F. McKnight, George E. Weaver, George Layton Plummer, Arthur J. Stimpson, Dennis Stovall.

Two members of the class, Arthur Stimpson and Sheldon Brown are at the Philippine Islands. Their chairs were draped with flowers and bunting surmounted with the American flag. Mr. Stimpson was entitled by his grade to deliver an oration and his name was on the program for the graduating exercises. When that place was reached President Gatch made a few touching remarks and then the audience arose and sang America.

Following is the order of exercises:

March—The Peacemaker (H. Zickel), Orchestra.
Prayer.
Overture—Jewel (E. H. Purcell), Orchestra.
Salutatory—Practical Education. William Jasper Gilstrap.
Medley—(Lohengrin), Orchestra.

Presentation of State Teachers Diplomas by Dr. G. M. Irwin, Superintendent of Public Instruction.
Degrees conferred by President Thos. M. Gatch.
Benediction.
Romance—Day Dreams (Balfer), Orchestra.

Mr. Gilstrap was at home with a favorite subject in his oration—Practical Education. His treatment of it and his delivery bespoke earnestness.

Miss Colista Murray fitted well chosen words to good ideas and her oration, Art as an Educational Factor, interested the audience.

M. Lea had an appropriate theme, War and Progress, which he well handled. Mr. Lea has a good presence and he spoke with ease.

Miss Hulda Holden's oration was a very able one and her delivery was excellent. Her valedictory address was one of the neatest ever heard at the O. A. C. commencement.

Prof. Irving M. Glen of the State University delighted the audience with two splendidly rendered baritone solo's.

Editor Irvine in his masterly address to the graduating class dwelt upon the importance of doing right. He cited historical examples to prove that right is might and that might does not make right. Mr. Irvine's was an eloquent and scholarly address and deserves larger mention than the demand upon these columns permit.

THE ALUMNI.

There was a better attendance than usual of members of the alumni society at the business meeting Wednesday afternoon. Among those present was Corporal Robert Golden, of the Washington volunteers, who was up on a 48-hour leave of absence.

Besides other business transacted the following officers were elected: President, George W. Denman; vice president, Mrs. Rose Selling; secretary, Miss Lettie Wicks; treasurer, Miss Mildred Linville.

The reunion was held at Cauthorn hall in the evening. Before the members and their guests sat down to the banquet Prof. Edwards presented the class of '98. Vice President Mrs. Rose Selling received the class with cordial welcome to which Miss Holden responded for the class.

After the excellent menu had been discussed the following toasts were presented, Miss Mildred Linville presiding gracefully as toastmistress "Our Country," Prof. George Denman. "Life As We View It," Miss Hulda Holden. "Life As We Find It," Miss Leon Louis. "The Army and Navy," Brady Burnett, "The Ladies," Prof Shaw. "Our Alma Mater," J. Fred Yates. "Our Boys at Home," Robt. Golden. "Our Boys in War," E. E. Wilson. "Faculty and Regents," C. D. Thompson. "Our Society," H. L. Holgate. "The New Armory," Regent Benton Killin. "Willamette Alumni," Supt. Carter of state blind school.

A delightful hop followed, then America was sung and the commencement exercises of the Oregon Agricultural college for the year 1898 were at an end.

The very excellent and artistic printing displayed in the O. A. C. program work of commencement week have occasioned a great deal of favorable comment. It is due to the clever workmanship of the college printing office, Mr. Geo. Keady and his son, Walter.

The ladies of the Presbyterian church will give an excursion to the Bay next Wednesday, June 29th. Everybody is invited to go along. Bring your dinner and enjoy a grand picnic on the beach. Fare for the round trip, including steamer to Newport, $1.50. Tickets at Racket store.

The annual meeting of the board of regents of the agricultural college occurs next Wednesday. But few changes in the teaching force is expected. The armory question is still unsettled. Not only is there an apparent hitch in the matter of funds, but there was a wide discrepancy between the ideas of the architect and those of the bidders as to the cost of the structure under the plans adopted.

FAIR WAS THE BRIDE.

Prof. Hedrick and Miss Amy Plummer United in Marriage—A Charming Wedding.

The June sun in a cloudless sky smiled pleasant auguries upon a happy couple yesterday—upon a man and maid who will henceforth journey through life together.

The beautiful wedding rites of the Episcopal church united in marriage Prof. U. P. Hedrick of the Utah Agricultural College, and Miss Amy Willis Plummer, daughter of the rector of St. David Church, Corvallis.

The wedding occurred at the church which was an Eden of flowers and palms. The bride, lovely in her gown of purest white, was supported by her maid of honor, Miss Elsie Failing of Portland and her bridesmaids, Miss Alice Strong and Miss Hattie Friendly of Portland and Misses Carrie and Amy Lyford. Mr. Herbert Condon of Eugene accompanied the groom.

Dr. Plummer performed the ceremony and Mr. Layton Plummer gave his sister into the care of her future mate. The scene was one of beauty, becoming the marriage of one of Corvallis' fairest young ladies. Leaving the church, the children of Mr. and Mrs. Geo. Armstrong scattered blossoms before the bride and groom as they repaired to the rectory. A delicious repast was served. Those partaking, besides the newly married couple, their attendants and the bride's family, were Mrs. Snell, Mrs. Lyford, Miss Olive Hamilton, Lulu Barnett, Dorothea Nash, Genevieve Lyford and Alice Birch.

Mr. and Mrs. Hedrick took the train for Newport where they will spend several honeymoon days. After a brief visit at other Oregon points they will leave for their home in Utah.
