London, Dec. 20. - William T. Stead. writing to the Associated Press, says; "I have seen the czar. I have heard his heart that something practical should be done; and that quickly, to divert to the service of humanity some the initiative in summoning the conference. He is prepared to give an earnest of his sincerity by arresting the future increase of Russian armament.

But unless he is supported by the peoples who detest militarism as well as by those who groan under its burdens, his well-meant endeavor will fail. 'The American people can, if they will, prevent so fatal a catastrophe. As the greatest and latest born of the world's powers, they can, if they choose, save this supreme opportunity of the century from being sacrificed by the skeptical apathy of the governments. But to do this, it will be neces ary to act, and to act at once. What is hoped of those friends of peace and enemies of militarism who turn their eager eyes to the great republic of the New World, is that between now and the end of January, the citizens of the United States will, by public demonstrations, formal resolutions and by other methods by which a democratic people gives expression to its convic-tions and its aspirations, have manifest-ed to the world their determination to help the czar to put this thing through. "In England, where the difficulties are much greater owing to the sense le prejudice against Russia, which has been the baleful legacy of the Crimean war, such a national committee is already in course of formation.
