A special dispatch to the Baltimore Gazette, dated Washington, February 1st, says:

Ex-Consul Farrell to-day testified before the Committee of Expenditures of the State Department to the effect that for three years while Consul at Cadiz he refused to sign invoices which he knew were undervalued, and for his integrity was highly complimented by Secretary Seward, who protected him. He had furnished the treasury officials information which led to the seizure of immense stocks of sherry, and in one case the particular Machine, at least examine the Howe because of the covered $100,000 in compromising a suit in Boston. Returning to Washington Farrell was informed by General Dent, then on duty at the White House, that he had been the means of Farrell's removal. Having served under General Grant in the army of the Tennessee, the ex Consul sought a reason for the summary removal, reminding the President of his army friendship, war record and the State Department testimonials, to all of which Grant replied, "O, pshaw!" and the interview ended. The moral to this statement, sustained by documentary evidence, is that the attention of the treasury will be called to a "wine ring" which has been carrying on the most high handed robbery of the revenue tor nearly seven years, during which time Mr. Duffie has been and still is Consul at Cadiz, and during which time not a seizure has been made of the exports of that port. It is also known that a large invoice of sherry was passed the New York

Cheeky.

About the cheekiest performance that we know of is that of the committee appointed by the Republican State Central Committee to draft a call for the State Convention, when they advise the people to select men tor office who will work for the interests of the people and against "rings" and cliques. The bare idea of Dr. Watts, W. H. Odell and J. N. Dolph advising the people to work against rings and cliques is cheeky .-Independent.
