The State Convention.

The Democratic State Convention which met at Salem on Wednesday proceeded to dispose of all the business to come before a Convention this year. While the call for a State Convention was only for the purpose of nominating judicial officers, we had no doubt but that the whole work would be disposed of. The people east of the mountains have a long, tedious and expensive trip to make to reach Salem, and it was understood that they would insist on making one trip answer the purpose. There was really no necessity for a State Convention at this time, as district Conventions could have been made the judicial nominations without going to Salem to do it. But the Convention has probably done its work as well as it could have done. The objection that candidates for electors should not have been put in the field until they know who they were to vote for, is of no particular force. It is supposed that the St. Louis Convention will nominate a Democrat and adopt a Democratic platform; this being done and the candidates for electors being well-known Democrats, there can be no difference which comes first in the field. The choice of the convention in this respect is a good one.

As concerns the nomination of Congressman we are well satisfied with the selection, and there is no doubt of the re-election of Mr. Lane. His course and the ability he has displayed in the present House have drawn him closer to his political friends, and those among his own party who were opposed to him last fall have felt their misgivings and doubts give way until there is no longer any dissatisfaction at his first nomination. And here we may say that both parties in Oregon have heretofore made a mistake in never returning a man to Congress for a second term, no matter how honest or capable he may have been. It is well known that no man can go to Washington and accomplish wonders in one term. He must have time in which to become acquainted with his fellow members and the routine of business. Mr. Lane has proved an apt scholar and an honor to our State. By returning him we shall do ourselves still further honor, and be enabled to reap benefits that cannot be obtained by sending a new man. Our opponents will find that they have not the same prejudices to aid them that they had at the time of Mr. Lane's former candidacy.

As to nominations for this, Judicial district, they are probably the best that could have been made. While as an individual the editor of this paper has been openly opposed to the nomination of Mr. Thompson, we have confidence in the judgment of the delegates who went from this county, and who placed him in nomination. They were men of age and experience and went to Salem determined to do their best to put in nomination the strongest man, without regard to personal preferences. Mr. Thompson is a man of ability, a deep thinker and one whose conclusions are generally correct.

Mr. Hazard, the candidate for Prosecuting Attorney is a resident of Coos county and is said to be well qualified to fill the position.

The Republican Convention. On Wednesday evening when the Republican delegates began to come in they were in exceedingly good spirits; they had seen wherein the Democrats erred in making nominations, and they proposed to profit by these errors when their convention should meet on Thursday. But on Thursday morning they were not altogether so jubilant, their cheerfulness was ebbing out. Their caucus of the night before had demonstrated to them that if the Democratic party had made blunders, they were not in a position to take that advantage that the case required. After dinner and before reassembling they held another caucus, and came in looking rather disconsolate. Nominations were proceeded with, and if the ticket produced is superior to that of the Democratic Convention in any respect we fail to see it. The Democratic party have a "soft thing" so far as most of the nominations go. The idea of J. H. McClung attempting to debate the issues of the day with Gov. Whiteaker makes us laugh.

For brazen-faced recklessness and an unblinking disregard for facts, there is probably nothing extant that rivals the Republican platform of New York, adopted at Syracuse, March 22d. It says: "We are for thorough retrenchment and reform; for the unsparing pursuit, exposure and punishment of public frauds and official dishonesty; (why not dishonest officials?) for the elevation of the public service and pure and efficient government; for maintaining untarnished the national credit and honor." All this virtue was conceived and brought forth in twenty days after Belknap had been exposed at Washington, and if a people were even mocked with more shameless effrontery or tantalized with more bitter sarcasm, it must have been by some other Radical platform. Again it says: "We charge the Democratic party with thwarting the ends of justice by its partisan mismanagement and obstruction of investigation through four months of its ascendancy in the lower house of Congress." These expressions, we are informed, elicited "applause," just as if one Democratic Congress in four months could pursue, expose and punish all the Radical thieves who have been at work for fifteen years. The Republican idea of justice is manifested in Belknap's bribes, Marsh's stealings, Babcock's trial, the Tombstone contract, Post-traders' contract, the Navy Yards' management and—but it is useless to recount, as that platform praises Grant "for protecting the public treasury and punishing public offenders"—Whew!!

The Washington correspondent of that virtuous (?) and high toned (?) sheet, the San Francisco Post, says that Belknap was impeached because Mrs. Marsh refused to associate with Mrs. Marsh, in Europe, on account of Mrs. Marsh's intimacy with a Frenchman. Mrs. Marsh, to spite Mrs. Belknap, concocted the charges against Belknap for the Democratic Executive Committee of New York, and Marsh was paid $20,000 to go to Washington to testify. This, in the light of subsequent events, is a plausible statement (?) Mrs. Marsh, in her efforts to entangle Pendleton in Belknap's affairs, testified that she always talked to Mrs. Belknap as freely as to a sister. It is to be hoped that the Post will yet tell us who paid Marsh that $20,000; also what Democratic member of Congress has fled to Europe, and what for, and how many "stuffed Democratic jackals" were involved with Belknap, Babcock, Hanscom and the other Radical offenders, whose stench "smells to heaven?"

The third party, the Blair family, is advising the Democracy to follow up its Greeley blunder of 1872. We are of the opinion that the advice of Montgomery Blair, who exulted all the Democratic papers in Oregon from the mails in 1862, will not be very acceptable to Democrats, to say nothing of his blowout at Cincinnati in 1872. Mr. Blair was a zealous Radical and an average "Liberal," but up to this time his Democracy is imperceptible—his idea of a good Democrat was filled by Horace Greeley, and is now satisfied with Mr. Blair.

Making His Mark.

Hon. Lafayette Lane, member of Congress from this State, and one of the youngest members of the House, is making his mark in that body. There are few older men who would care to openly attack Sunset Cox, whose satirical style of speaking has given him a name throughout the land, but Mr. Lane seems to have come out of the contest unscathed. A Washington dispatch of the 22d says:

One of the most eloquent and effective speeches in advocacy of the transfer of the Indian bureau to the war department, was that of Representative Lane, of Oregon. He argued that the transfer to army management would tend to maintain peace, secure additional protection to the lives and property of our citizens, reduce the expenses of government, and in no wise injuriously affect, even if it did not improve, the condition of Indians. While discussing the question of economy, he dexterously called attention to the vast amount of good which a portion of the money thus saved could effect by opening the navigation of the Columbia and improving the harbors of the coast, so as to develop the natural wealth and manifold resources of Oregon. He administered a severe rebuke to Cox, of New York, for aspersing the character of frontier men. He eulogized their gallantry, magnanimity and intelligence, vividly depicted the horrors of Indian barbarities in Oregon and Utah, and showed the justness of the complaints against the present system of Indian management. Lane also showered ridicule on Cox's account of his observations of the French policy at Algeria, and his sentimentality concerning the noble red men of the forest, and attributed it to a studious perusal of Cooper's romances and his experience as a Tammany chieftain. This witty and forcible extemporaneous speech has given Lane high rank among the debaters of the House.

Luttrell, of California, followed Lane with an able speech in advocacy of the bill. Every member of the Pacific coast delegation, except Page, of California, supported the bill, which passed the House by a vote of 139 to 97.

WASHINGTON GOSSIP.

WASHINGTON, April 10, 1876. The disclosures of the last week, while they are not so startling as the Belknap affair, are of much greater importance. Before Mr. Clymer's committee it has been proven that President Grant himself sent a spy to St. Louis to prevent the conviction of Babcock. The witness Bell, who was the spy, tried to protect Grant, his old commander, but his testimony and that of Babcock, Luckey, Bradley and Pierpont of Washington, and of Mr. Dyer and Col. Broadhead, the prosecuting lawyers in the whiskey cases, leaves very little doubt in the minds of those who have read the testimony, that it was the intention of the President to do all in his power to protect his guilty secretary, and he did this after his spy had informed him that there was no doubt of Babcock's guilt. A spy was even kept in the grand jury room and Grant was informed of all that was done there, so that from the beginning he could not have been in doubt as to Babcock's connection with the whiskey ring.

The moral committee have taken an immense amount of testimony and have unearthed such a show of corruption in the manner of conducting that department, that the country will stand absolutely appalled when it is made public. Secretary Robeson has not only diverted the public funds from their legitimate use, but he used millions of the government money and risked its loss to sustain the sinking fortunes of the house of Jay Cooke, McCulloch & Co. of London, when he knew that house to be virtually bankrupt. Large amounts will be lost by his criminal conduct. The navy yards everywhere were used as political machines to forward the election of Radicals and the funds that should have been expended in building ships was used to secure votes. Robeson's friend, Cattell, was paid five per cent. on all contracts, and so on desiring to sell anything to the navy department could do so without submitting to this black mail.

But the Indian committee have demonstrated even more of rascality than could be found in the navy department, in the treatment of the Indians. Every species of venality that could be devised and the execution of a rig which permeated every department of the government and even penetrated into the very committee room where the examination was being made. Congressman Page of California is on the Indian committee and was one of the sub-committee over which Wilshire of Arkansas presided. Wilshire has been most industrious in hunting up frauds. He is a good lawyer and understands how to extract the truth from even an unwilling witness. Page was continually in the habit of brow beating witnesses before the committee and had to be removed more than once for his conduct. It finally came out that he had a reason for his action, as one of the witnesses, Mr. Meeker, a correspondent of the Herald, swore that he had been informed that Page was himself a member of the Indian ring. Meeker refused to give the name of his informant, and Page blustered about having him taken before the house and compelled to answer, but he has not done so nor does he intend to. Scates and Wilshire of Arkansas deserve credit for the manner in which they have conducted this investigation.

The post office committee have also proven that contracts were bought in the most shameful manner, from the highest officials in the department. Some of the paid employees of the contractors being in the very room of the Postmaster-General and another being assistant P. M. General. Every day new revelations are being made—new investigations ordered, but the business of Congress is not neglected on this account. The House sits daily from noon until five or six p. m., and has three night meetings per week. The discussion on the Legislative, Executive and Judicial bill is prolonged as the Republicans are using every effort to defeat the proposed saving of six millions of dollars made by the bill as reported by the committee, but it will finally pass about as originally reported. It is said that the Texas and Pacific bill will be reported next week as the only opposition to it now comes from the Union and Central Pacific railroads which do not want their monopoly broken down.

Col. James O. Broadhead of St. Louis, who is most favorably spoken of as a compromise candidate before the St. Louis convention, is in Washington to testify in the whiskey trials. No name presented to the convention is entitled to higher respect than that of Col. Broadhead. He is a gentleman of unimpeachable integrity, has never been mixed up with any disreputable transactions, was a union man and a war Democrat, and is the peer of any man in the country in ability. Sayard, Judge Davis and Hendricks are much talked of, but it is too soon to even conjecture who will be either the St. Louis or the Cincinnati nominee. Blaine seems to still be ahead of all the other radicals, the New York Tribune which is strongly for Bristow, admitting that Blaine will get the largest vote on the first ballot. The executive committee is working well as the result in Connecticut shows, and the exposures being made here are beginning to tell. If properly handled, and they will be, the people will surely repudiate Radicalism this fall.

The revolution in Mexico is still progressing favorably for Diaz. The government papers admit that there are 10,000 men in the field and railroad communication between Vera Cruz and the City of Mexico has been interrupted. The Emperor of Brazil and his wife will arrive at New York in a few days. They will spend some months in the country. The home exhibitors should hurry up their articles for the Centennial, as the buildings are about ready and it is desired to have everything in place before the 10th of May.

Symptoms of Catarrh.

Dull, heavy headache, obstruction of the nasal passages, discharge falling into the throat, sometimes purulent, watery, acrid, thick and tenacious mucus, purulent, mucopurulent, bloody, profuse, etc. In others, a dryness, dry, watery, weak or inflamed eyes, rising in tears, heaviness, huskiness and coughing to clear the throat, ulcerations, scabs from ulcers, voice altered, nasal twang, offensive breath, impaired smell and taste, dizziness, mental depression, tickling cough, etc. Only a few of the above symptoms are likely to be present in any case at one time.

When applied with Dr. Pierce's Nasal Ducho, and accompanied with Dr. Pierce's Golden Medical Discovery as constitutional treatment, Dr. Sage's Catarrh Remedy produces perfect cures of the worst cases of Catarrh and Ozena of many years standing. This thorough course of medication constitutes the only scientific, rational, safe, and successful manner of treating this odious disease that has ever been offered to the afflicted.

The leaders of the Radical party are the men who have corrupted the ballot-box wherever money would buy votes or bayonets could control them. It has been proven that the crooked whiskey stills of the country were set running to raise a campaign fund, and that tens of thousands of dollars were collected from the post traders and corrupt government contractors for the same purpose.
