HAYES' SOUTHERN POLICY.

Hayes' Southern policy, whatever it is, has become the burden of the telegraph. We are informed by it that "Haves' southern policy is sustained by the Radicals of Raleigh, N.C." Who doubts it ? "The business men of Memphis applaud the course foreshadowed by Hayes." "In view of Hayes' southern policy the Nicholls Legislature has passed a resolution very complimentary in its tone to him." Considering the fact that the aforesaid Hayes had been counted in a whole week, or perhaps ten days, before the above specimens were sent over the wires, it is not very difficult to see that the telegraph and its man. agers are working to create public opinion. We have carefully read the inaugural, and so far as anything said in it is concerned, the policy foreshadowed in regard to the South is just about the same we have had for the past twelve years. What other policy Hayes may have we cannot predict, but if his inaugural is an index to it we may safely conclude that he has no policy, except what will benefit the Republican party, even at the expense of the whole country. For it he is sincere in his utterances he exposes a vast fund of ignorance or silly fanaticism. He speaks of the constitution and laws just as if he did not depend upon the violation of both for his present position; and of "the permanent pacification of the country," just as if we were in the midst of war; he wants, or pretends he wants, every citizen secure in all his constitutional rights; then he might be understood to mean that he did not favor the system of fraud practiced in a few Southern States and upheld by Federal arms to secure Republican majorities and elect fraudulent Presidents, Governors, Senators, Representatives, Legislatures and other officers-but he does not, else he would not contend for the fruits and accept the consequences of such frauds. He intimates that "reconstruction" is not yet complete; "wise, fully enjoyed," he says, and probably hope to divide the Southern Democwill not be, in his estimation, until all the white people bow down and humgoes on to say thus : "But it must not be forgotten that on a local self govcounted him in. A system of usurp ation, force and fraud has been practiced for years in the South, not because there was any real cause for trouble, but for the purpose of manufacturing Radical political capital. and to keep alive sectional hate and local prejudices, and to this system Haves is indebted for the position he occupies to the lasting disgrace of the country. We may truly say if the condition of affairs which Haves thinks an "imperative necessity" had been permitted to exist, he might have long nursed his Southern policy quietly, and at home in Ohio. But the calamities he pretends to deplore made him a usurper, or rather sunk the moral tone of the country so low that such as he could mount to the highest place in defiance of law, cannot expect him to bear good fruit. the will of the people and "a decent respect for the will of mankind." Yet he, the pet of misrule, the nursling of United States, who concentrated isiana before action is taken. fraud, the creation of perfidy, the cli- troops in Washington to aid Hayes in max of infamy, has a Southern policy, his usurpation, forbid the celebration a policy to keep alive discord and of Washington's Birthday by the milistrife, a policy tull of hate and blind tary companies of Charleston and Cofanaticism guided by knavery, so lumbia, South Carolina. The "two races" opposition to the programme would exist in every State of the Union, and have been penned, we are very sure. yet the fact that there are two races The time for celebrating the birthdays is only noticed where the other race of honest men has gone by in this is likely to be a political' power if country. Our patriotism must be reproperly manipulated by villains. If served for the inauguration of usurp- ana. the masses of the people were not ers and the triumphs of fraud. Not fools, or supposed to be by Radical having been a tyrant, a usurper nor a managers, they could see and understand at once that in a country gov Radical party. erned by one constitution and one system of general laws, that there could be no legal policy affecting one State or section that would not affect foundry. policy, we cannot comprehend. Why Haves talks of his policy toward the South and has no policy for the North, shows that he is a political zealot or utterly ignorant of the "letter and spirit" of the constitution of which he prates, of which he has sworn to support and of whose violation he is the most prominent example. If Hayes has any regard for the at the judgment day. Constitution and comprehends a tittle of its meaning, he must know that he can legally do nothing in the South that he cannot do in the North. But R. B. Hayes exposes his policy, rather Hare from the Custom House at Astoria. his hypocrisy, when he says, in substance, that party interests should lose their importance and party lines too long; to dismiss Waters from the United fade into insignificance, if the South States Marehalship and give it to George E. would hope for equality before the law with the North. When the South accepts what Hayes and his party would willingly grant it it will have Northern Governors in every Southern State, negro judges on the bench, negro legislators and returning boards to secure Radical majorities forever. If there were no Democrats in the South Hayes would not be making a feol of himself to perpetuate Radical and negro misrule in one State any more than in another; if he would practice the same policy toward Louisiana that he does toward Ohio, he Philadelphia Times, an "Independent" might exhibit some consistency, if nothing more. But party lines lie heavy upon his mind; he feels himself indebted to fraud and Federal interference and while he would like to apparently remove them from the South, he is anxious that their effects shall remain, to do this he awkwardly straddles the "bloody chasm," denounces intimidation but hugs the intimidator, condemns bulldosing but drags the bulldoser into his Cabinet : he feels that he was honestly (?)elected by the votes which did not elect Stearns, Packard and Chamberlain and his policy-if he has any-is to reconcile the people North and South to the most open and fragrant crimes ever committed in the United States. Haves and his masters now hope to create divisions in the South among Democrats; by drawing away such men as Key, Mosby and Longstreet peaceful local self government is not and giving them Federal offices they > OFFICIAL CHANGES .- Word comes to us from Washington, says the San Francisco Examiner, that Hipple-Mitchell will prevail upon His Eraudulency to remove Coffector and give the place to Dr. Watts, the ineligible elector who hung on to his "post offis" Cole, present postmaster at Portland-who lately married a daughter of Horatio King at the Federal capital-and put H. D. Sanborn, a broken-down merchant of Portland, in the post office. Other changes are contemplated, but it is likely that some of them will fail of accomplishment. Hayes fears too much of that sort of thing when all the imcumbents are Rodicals. Matchell is figuring for a re-election and hence his desire to have the changes made.

A Great Name.

Oregon has lost none of the fame it acquired through electing Mitchell to the Senate. A late issue of the Haves organ, has this :

Mr. J. Hipple Mitchell, or Mr. J. Mitchell Hipple, we don't just now remember which it is, who represents Oregon in the Senate, objected to the admission of Gov. Grover from the same State on the ground that he had bulldozed the Legislature with cash, and had offended the aforesaid Mitchell or Hipple by sundry shocking acts of immor-ality since his election. Painful as were the ality sit alleged infirmities of Gov. Grover to the spotless and unscandalized Senator from Oregon. the Senate became suddenly oblivious to public crimes, and nobody ventured to vote against the admission of Grover, whereapon Mr. Mitchell or Mr. Hipple, as the case may be, forgot to vote against his colleague himself, and Grover was sworn in without a dissenting vote. If Mr. Mitchell could have voted as Mr. Mitchell and then voted again as Mr. Hipple, and hadn't forgot to vote at all, there would have just two votes against Grover ; but as he couldn't vote double, and as he didn't vote at all, Grover's admission was upapimons pecial of the 28th says :

A Way Out of the Louislana Trouble. The Chicago Times' Washington

Senator Cookrell, of Missouri, had an interview with the President yesterday. As regards the Louisiana case, he says there is an impression Lordering on conviction among the President and his cabinet, that Nicholls our Fastard has legally the right to be now ernor of Louisina, be abso the State law requiring the vote for governor and lieutenant governor to be canvassed by the legislature. has not been complied wit,h in either case. that the only legal way out of the trouble was the appointment of a commission to inquire specially into this question. He further thinks this course reasonably clear.
