

THE EUGENE CITY GUARD.

EUGENE CITY, OREGON. SATURDAY, AUG. 10, 1878.

BUSINESS.—Matters of a personal character charged for at regular advertising rates, to be paid invariably in advance.

GRANTISM.

It was supposed by a large majority of the people of all parties when Grant failed in getting the nomination for a third term that he was finally disposed of so far as his pretensions to the Presidency were concerned. It is now very evident that the admirers of Grantism had no idea of relinquishing their favorite theory of the permanent establishment of a "strong" or military government in lieu of a constitutional republic.

We now want statesmen who are wise and honest enough to undo what military rulers have done—to restore prosperity that military rulers have well nigh destroyed.

Between Grantism and Communism there is little choice—the first means a despotic government and the second, no government at all.

The Greenback a Boundless Source of Wealth.

One of the most pathetic as well as ludicrous "signs of the times" is, says the N. Y. Day Book, that large and boisterous crowd that follow Peter Cooper and his "friends" with such touching faith, that their salvation is wrapped up in the greenback and destined to a full fruition of blessedness and beatitude just as soon as the country can rise above the Old World barbarism of a gold standard.

INDIAN SUPERSTITION.—The Indians have a superstitious idea that all the dead Indians are coming to life, about this period, and have held such belief in this section for some time past, both during the Modoc outbreak and the hostilities down the Klamath river in old Klamath county and Humboldt county. They claim that no bullets can harm these resurrected Indians, and that there are more Indians now in the country than white people.

It has long been a subject of uncertainty and conjecture where the Indians obtain their ammunition during hostilities with the whites. A letter received by Secretary Schurz from the United States Commissioner at Salt Lake City, dated July 16th, sheds some light on the subject.

Speaking for Eastern Oregon, the Union Sentinel says: "We present a candidate who is learned, cultivated and accomplished, who has broad views on questions of State and National policy, who, while he will attend to our wants, will be a representative of the whole State."

The faculty with which the newspapers are now nominating candidates for the Presidency is quite remarkable, remarks the Philadelphia Times. It is a very difficult thing, however, to keep any candidate for more than a few weeks without spoiling in this hot weather.

They Cannot Live Together.

The East Oregonian puts the case strongly, but we believe truthfully, in the following regarding the way the Indians will be treated by the people of that country after "peace is restored." We think they will be fully justified in dealing with them in this way: "One thing is now demonstrated, viz: The whites and Indians cannot longer live together in peace. The whites will "break out" as soon as peace is restored, and every Indian found off the Reservation will be killed, and this strife will in this way soon be ended. The Indian Agents may cry peace, peace; but there can never be peace until the last red demon, whose fingers are dripping with the blood of our Coggans, our Jewells, our Nelsons, our McCoys and others, are numbered with the good Indians who have fallen. It will not suffice that after they killed and plundered they return to their allegiance join in the fight against the Snakes. They must die. Scarcely a day passes without some of them being picked off, and thus it will continue till they are all gone or until they are removed from our midst, and every time one of them bites the dust every good citizen will say amen; so be it; bless the Lord! hallelujah!

Indian Thieves.

From the Pendleton Independent.—One day last week, A. W. Nye, of Pendleton, in company with Mr. Gilman, went in search of some stray horses. When six miles from the east side of Wild Horse creek, they saw a large band of horses had crossed the road going north in the direction of the Columbia river.

The faculty with which the newspapers are now nominating candidates for the Presidency is quite remarkable, remarks the Philadelphia Times. It is a very difficult thing, however, to keep any candidate for more than a few weeks without spoiling in this hot weather.

The San Francisco Commercial Advocate strikes the nail on the head when it says that it was a great mistake in congress not to transfer the management of the Indians to the war department.

The officers of the army have a perfect understanding of the hardships to be encountered in hunting after warlike savages and in being hunted by them. For this reason they are slow to ferment unrighteous quarrels. The Indian agent is not troubled by any such restraint. In time of peace he sells the Indians inferior goods and low whiskey at outrageous prices, and makes money by the operation. In time of war he drives a still heavier business in contraband goods for the savages and high-priced supplies for the soldiers, and makes more money than ever. Until such time as the nation ceases to treat the Indian tribes as independent treaty-making powers, the military power of the nation is the only power which can deal with them successfully. It is certainly time that some new method of dealing with them should be adopted. The outrageous management of Indian affairs has been the prime cause of the majority of the Indian raids and outrages recently committed.

A HAZY ITEM.—The Salem Record is authority for the following: "Two of the Hayes electors—so they say—are now interested in the Statesman. The famous postmaster, Watts, and Odell share the fortunes and mistertunes of that hazy concern between them and if Hayes sees through the haze that envelops them, we may look for some sudden preferment to befall one or both of them. Did either of them come from Ohio? If so, there is some possibility that lightning will strike in that direction. Dr. Watts seems to continue in the field, and we knew something was the matter when he couldn't be voted down in the state convention."

An item is going the rounds to the effect that a New York reporter joined the Communists, visited their lodges, inspected their books, and reports in the various sections of that city a little less than 800 men; in Brooklyn, six sections, numbering not more than 500 men. Of the total in both cities nearly 1,000 are Germans, and of these three-fourths, at least, are saloon keepers. There are not more than 100 Americans enrolled. There are only a few dozen Irishmen. The rest, are Frenchmen, mainly refugees of the Paris Commune.

The Globe Democrat, Radical, says:

There is to be no Republican ticket in Delaware this year. Under the sweet influence of the President's policy Republicanism in the South is rapidly becoming a thing of the past. And yet, if it had not been for the votes of States like Delaware, which could not possibly help the electoral strength of the Republican candidate, Hayes would never have had a possible chance of the Cincinnati nomination. He was nominated by carpet-baggers and scalawags.

The New York Sun, through a correspondent, nominates Gen. Joseph E. Johnston as the Democratic candidate for President in 1880, and bases the claims of his nominee on the grounds that he is a Jeffersonian Democrat, a statesman of constitutional knowledge, a refuser of a Cabinet position, and that he was an opponent to the seven-to-eight business.

Ex-Attorney General Williams informs a reporter of the New York Tribune that he thinks General Grant will be renominated by the Republicans, and elected. Old Lardaulet is a specimen brick of Grant's friends, and the fact that such men want him elected is the strongest reason why he should not be.

Dr. J. C. Ayer, who died in Massachusetts a few days ago, left an estate worth from $15,000,000 to $20,000,000. It was all the result of advertising. His medicines may have been very good, but he would have starved to death if he hadn't advertised them.

These are the days when the woman of the house lights down like an apparition in the midst of the domestic garden, swinging a broom, flapping her skirts, kicking sideways with both feet at once, snapping her eyes, humping her back and screeching "Shew there! Shew!" It's hers.

Sulphur-Bathing by means of Gilson's Sulphur Soap in the ordinary bath-tub, has so completely superseded the former method of sulphur baths that they are no longer used. The more recent plan of extemporizing a sulphur bath excels its predecessor on the score of economy, and because its strength can be so graduated as to adapt it more accurately to the gravity of the ailment it is intended to ameliorate. Crittenton's, 77 Sixth Avenue, New York. Sold by druggists everywhere. Hill's Hair and Whisker Dye, black or brown, 50c.

More Horrible Particulars.

Mr. D. C. Calhoun, who was in the battle at Silver creek with Robbins' scouts, says it was one of the most perilous times he ever saw. He says the Indians were there in countless numbers. There were representations from almost every tribe in the Northwest. From what they learned from some old shawas that were captured it was a grand war council. Calhoun says on looking over the camping ground after the hostiles left they found a written pass from Governor Brayman to Buffalo Horn and Egan to visit the Umatilla agency. This pass was given in May, the month before the outbreak, and was endorsed by the Umatilla agent to the effect that Buffalo Horn and Egan had visited that agency.

The object of this visit was to make arrangements to go on the war path and for the Umatilla to join them. The Umatilla met them on John Day's river and helped to run off stock, and kept partially with them and ahead and drove considerable stock across the Columbia river. Some of Moses' Columbia Indians, Yakimas, Nez Percés and others were also engaged in the effort to get the stock across the Columbia. The Umatilla and Columbia Indians had not come out openly, and the failure of the hostiles to win the fight at Cayuse and the agency turned them on the other side, though he thinks they got a good deal of stock across the Columbia river, and many of the Indians from the north tribes left the hostiles and got across the Columbia river at that time. The captured squaws report the hostiles very much broken up at the present time, and that there are none now in the field but the Malheur Indians; that the Bannocks have gone home to their tribes, which stories are not credited. Calhoun says while some have scattered and a few are killed, there are plenty of hostiles in the field and they are liable to continue the war for a long time. Smearage says old Eagle-Eye, Chief of the Weiser Indians, is surely killed. The Umatilla Indians killed him, and Smearage says him after he was dead, and turned him over and took a good look at him and knows it was Eagle-Eye. The captives all say that Buffalo Horn was shot by an Indian scout at the Silver City fight, who went out with the whites. He lived four days and died.

Jack Campbell is very badly wounded, but there is some hope that he will recover. Calhoun and Smearage both say that the march through the John Day valley showed more brutality than they ever heard or read of in any other savages. They cut strips of hide from horses, two to four inches wide the whole length of the body and left them alive. Others they stuck their knives into and ripped them down from the backbone to the belly, and left them walking around with their bowels protruding. They found five Mexican bucks with the lower joint of each leg unjointed, walking around on the stump, with skin and meat peeled up an inch or two above the bone. The tortures to many of the men that they killed were too obscene to describe, and if possible, more brutal in their character than what they practiced on the dumb brutes, only they finally put them to death before they left them.

In hot weather, when there is an itching sensation over the surface of the body, such as itching, or a rash, or a skin eruption, Gilson's Sulphur Soap in the warm bath affords instant relief. The time is coming for such annoyances to present themselves, and it will be a favor for those subjected to them to know that the warm bath and that invaluable soap are unobtainable when all other applications are fruitless. Crittenton's, No. 77 Sixth Avenue, New York. Sold by druggists. Hill's Hair and Whisker Dye, black or brown, 50c.

Fat People Easily "Sunstruck."

Fat people are not only liable to sudden death from heart disease, apoplexy, etc., but statistics show that they are more liable than others to "sunstruck" and affections arising from extreme heat. An extensive experience in the treatment of corpulence has resulted in the introduction of Allan's Anti-Fat, a safe, certain, and speedy remedy for the cure of this terrible condition. It uses a superior reduction of fat, from two to five pounds per week. If corpulent people who are exposed to the rays of the sun value life, and a comfortable existence, let them use Allan's Anti-Fat. Sold by druggists.

The Benefits which a very large class of the population has manifestly derived from the use of sulphur bathing by means of Gilson's Sulphur Soap in warm water, has been very prominent in all vicinities. It will be much marked as soon as that pure and efficacious soap shall have been more generally used among the poorer population. Every method should be employed to bring it into more general notice, and to urge its universal application. Crittenton's No. 77, Sixth Avenue, N. Y. Sold by all druggists. Hill's Hair and Whisker Dye, black or brown, 50c.
