"You fellows around here don't fairly appreciate the gait at which the march of improvement has been jogging along," said a strapped printer in quest of a job, as he stowed away in his merciless mouth the contents of a tobacco-box reclessly exposed by one of the 'regulars." "Here you have all the latest and best facilities for slashing out work in a hurry, and never stop to think what a deace of a time some of them poor devils of country editors out west have in getting out a paper in an office that might almost be carried in a good sized gripsack. I remember a couple of years ago I was on a tramp out through Kansas, and coming into a little oneherse town that had a printing office, I meandered in and struck for a job, It was the sickest looking concern you ever saw, boys-it was, for a fact. The old man promised me work for a couple of days, but when I asked for a case he said he hadn't any but the onehe was working on himself. There's a pile of cigar boxes over there in the corner, though,' said he. 'You can range 'em out on the floor and make yourself a case, I reckon.' And so I spread 'em out and commenced work on a fat piece of copy. I pulled out strong for three days, but I hope to die dead broke it I didn't wear out a that I had made a race or to the loots town, and only got up two thousand, at 20 cents a thousand. You don't half appreciate your privileges, boys -you don't that." - Cincinnati Breakfast Tuble.

The Story is going about that General Grant says that be is tired of public life. It would be uncivil as well as altogether too easy to refort that public life is tired of Grant. The New York Post prefers to say that some of the men who fastened them-selves upon him during his term of office, and who are again using his name to further their own interests, might well make Grant feel the weariness of which he complains.

Their sale in the United States alone exceeds one million dollars per annum, while the amount exported foots up to several hundred thousand more. ROCKFORT, MASS., April 2, 1877.

Mr. Editors:—Having read in your paper reports of the remarkable cures of catarrh, I am induced to tell "what I know about catarrh," and I fancy the "snuff" and "inhailing-tule" makers (mere dollar grabbers) would be glad if they could emblazon a similar cure in the papers. For 26 years I suffered with catarrh. The meal passages became completely closed. "Snuff" "dust," "ashes," "inhailing-tules, and "sticks," wouldn's work though at intervals I would suiff up the so-called catarrh snuff until I became a valuable tester for such needicines. I gradually graw worse, and no one can know how much I suffered or what a miscrable being I was. My head ached over my eyes so that I was confined to my bed for many successive days, suffering the most intense pain, which at one time lasted continuously for 168 hours. This Sarsaparilla is a combination of vegetable alteratives - Stillingia, Mandrake, Yellow Dock - with the Iodides of Potassium and Iron, and is the most efficacious medicine yet known for the diseases it is intended to cure.

Its ingredients are so skilfully combined, that the full alterative effect of each is assured, and while it is so mild as to be harmless even to children, it is still so effectual as to purge out from the system those impurities and correptions which develop into loathsome disease.

The reputation it enjoys is derived from its cures, and the confidence which prominent physicians all over the country repose in it, prove their experience of its usefulness.
