So many conflicting stories have been going the sunds of the press beyond a doubt that the sound of a only president Taylor was probably the between Gen. Sherman and his wife, growing out of the announcement of the announcemen Tom's determination to enter the priesthool, that we feel it nothing buzzled scratch their heads is, that the public should know they excite certain nerves which are us from the most reliable sources.

Gen. Sherman's ambition was that his son should enter the legal profession; Mrs. Sherman, from his early childhood had consecrated him to the priesthood. At eight years old he began, under his mother's guidance and counsel, to prepare for his avoca-tion. But a'l this was carefully kept from the General, who, Mrs. Sherman had every reason to believe, would be opposed to the project.

Last Summer, in accordance with Sherman entered into negotiations with a St. Louis firm, whereby upon for his son. The step was taken expected, with the full knowledge of Mrs. Sherman and his son, neither of them interposing an objection although knowing all the time the plan would inevitably fail.

Then came the blow to the Gen eral's dearest prospects, from which he will never recover while life lasts, and which during three months past has created a wide gulf between him and his immediate family.

Gen. Sherman charges his wife with systematic Jesuitism, with a deliberate plan of deception practiced upon him and his children, dating back to the infancy of his son, Mis. Sherman denies that this has been the case, but those familiar with her entire course feel that the demal is but a part of her scheme. It is widely known that in all matters pertaining to her religion she is wildly fanatical, and an ex tremist upon every point and dogma; but the General until now, has been quite willing to take his own course, leaving his wife to go her way, taking her children with her.
