Too Much Method.

Judging from the following letter to an Ohio Republican politician, there is method in the mandess of the Okolona weekly firebrand: OFFICE OF THE "SOUTHERN STATES,"

The Oregonian, before the veto by the President of the army bill was known, volunteered some information that the average Pacific Coaster would characterize as false. It says: "Should be veto it he will almost certainly put his objections on unassailable grounds, a thing he has always done heretofere when it has become necessary to take position in antagonism to congress."
