

THE EUGENE CITY GUARD.

EUGENE CITY, OREGON. SATURDAY, JULY 5, 1879.

Senator Slater's Speech.

Senator Slater's speech in the Senate in favor of his Chinese bill is well timed and furnishes much food for reflection. He certainly is correct, says the Roseburg Independent when he says the United States Government should have the right to regulate its intercourse with other nations, and his assertion that the Chinese should not be permitted to come to this country to the injury of Americans, is endorsed by every citizen on the Pacific Coast. The Senator answered the arguments of those who would have believed we gave to the Chinese no more rights than are allowed by the Chinese government to Americans in China, by showing that while the Chinese in America were permitted to land at any port and go where they pleased then, only eight Chinese ports are open to Americans. This much alone proves that the Chinese holds to the idea of self-protection, and only since the adoption of the new constitution in California has there been the same thought of home in the United States. But the Senator goes further than do those who only argue in favor of prohibiting Chinese immigration; he would have laws prohibiting the employment of Chinese, and in this way compel the heathens to return to China.

Will be Ice-water

The St Louis Republican is sorry for Ewing and Rice. It disapproves them: For fifteen years they have the reputation of gallant Federal soldiers, who did a liberal share of fighting in behalf of the Union cause. They have doubtless rejoiced in the recollections of their patriotic devotion, and felt a just pride in honors achieved under the old flag. They have never regretted their perils, privations and wounds, regarding them as evidences of loyalty which "no age could chill, no rival steal, no falsehood disavow." Long before the campaign closes, Generals Ewing and Rice will be convinced—if Republican assertions can convince them—that either they did not fight at all or fought on the Confederate side. They will be held up as "traitors," denounced as "copperheads," damned as "rebels," and the hottest fire they ever faced on the field of battle, will be ice-water compared with the storm of shot and shell rained on them from Republican batteries. Gen Rice will have to pinch his wooden leg occasionally to satisfy himself that he lost a leg in an interview with "the solid South." Gen Ewing will have reason to regret that he did not, like his competitor, Mr. Foster, bravely stay at home and make his country bleed for him instead of bleeding for his country.

Blackstone on Military at the Polls.

It is suggestive to the citizen who believes in the free exercise of his rights, and especially of the freedom of the ballot, that that which Blackstone laid down as the law of England, over one hundred years ago, in vindication of the franchise, free from military interference, intimidation or coercion, is now flouted by Hayes and the Radicals, as too favorable to the people, and that he and his party insist that he is empowered to use troops at the polls for such purposes. Blackstone declares: "As it is essential to the very well being of Parliament that elections should be absolutely free, therefore all undue influences upon the electors are illegal and strongly prohibited. * * * As soon, therefore, as the time and place of election, either in counties or boroughs, are fixed, all soldiers quartered in the place are to remove at least one day before election to the distance of two miles or more; and not to return till one day after the election is ended."

The Baltimore News says: The idea of several thousand half-breed excursionists assembling on the wharf at San Francisco to greet the ex-President, and hurrah and shout as he lands, is a funny one. And think of the surprise of the traveler as he finds himself the centre of attraction of the excursionists admiring eyes! How the modest man will blush and puff away vigorously at his cigar for courage as the mob presses forward to grasp his hand.

New Events Can Not But His Own Words.

Wm. M. Everts is the Secretary of State of the Fraud Hayes and supports his master in the monstrous doctrine that he has authority to use troops at the polls. At the great indignation meeting in New York, against the military usurpation in Louisiana during Grant's Administration, when Mr. Everts was his own master, he thus declared the true doctrine:

"When men vote, and when their chosen officers meet, and when without violence and without demonstration of insurrection they undertake to conduct the affairs of their political government, no soldiers can interfere. There are two very distinct, firm lines of limitation, which, observed, will protect the machinery of the Government for the people to-day—that is, that the intervention of the Federal power within State authority shall be to suppress violence, and that their office after that shall not assume to go further unless when invited by the supreme authority of the State. What use is it to give the purse and sword to the House of Commons: the King or President by military power can determine what shall be the constitution of the House of Commons or the House of Congress? And that is what they fought for in England. * * * And for this reason the people of the United States are justified in assuming that the supreme civil power shall dominate over the military, and that no merging of them or interference with them shall be permitted."

No Doubt About It.

The great Michiganander, Zachariah Chandler, has got the Presidency in his head. There is no doubt about it. General Boynton, the Washington correspondent of the Cincinnati Gazette, who is good authority for what he says in regard to a member of his own party, announces the fact in the following dispatch: There is no longer any doubt that the friends of Senator Chandler intend to push him persistently from the first opportunity as a Presidential candidate before the next National Convention. They are actively looking over the ground, and some work has already been done, both in the National committee and out of it. It is also understood that the Senator is in the hands of his friends for the pure they have in view. They declare that they claim for him with perfect confidence that he would have an honest Administration, and that in regard to all pending national issues he would give the Union loving people as strong a government as our Constitution will allow. Though has not yet written the conventional private letter on the subject, it may be taken for granted that at an early day Senator Chandler will be on the track.

A Coward's Confession.

In open Senate James G. Blaine has made a beautiful exposition of his fighting qualities, the New York Star asserts. He stated that he had not volunteered, as others did, to join the arms of any time during the war; but when caught in the fangs of the conscription he purchased a substitute to face death in his place, and he remained at home to fill his pocket while professing to represent the people in Congress.

Moreover in open Senate, James G. Blaine had no shame in announcing the fact that he had chosen a substitute to do the duty he was expected to do in the Army, a man who he knew would, like himself, evade that duty. Certainly this was a very efficient and conscientious discharge of his patriotic duty by Senator Blaine, because all that could be expected of a substitute was that he should do as well as the principal himself would have done. It is a pity that Maine does not send to Congress Representatives with less capacious pockets and more courage than Blaine.

The letter purporting to have been written by John Sherman declaring himself a candidate for President, is shrewdly suspected, the New Haven Register alleges, to be the handiwork of Agnes Jenks. Sherman will hardly make a positive denial however, for fear he might be confronted with the original in his own handwriting, or else a photographic copy.

The Chicago Times says Mr. Zach Chandler will rent himself for a fortnight procession during the campaign in 1880.

Hayes has withdrawn the nomination of McCrary, Secretary of War, for the appointment of Judge of the United States Circuit Court, to fill the vacancy occasioned by the resignation of Judge Dillon. As Judge Dillon's resignation does not take effect until September, and as McCrary is still Secretary of War, it was an extraordinary act in Hayes to send in the nomination. Nothing of the kind ever before occurred in the history of the Government. But these innovations of Radicalism are as evidences of what the party would do had it full sway. The Democratic Congress is a safe check, however, and the people will sustain it in their own defence and protection. Secretary of War, McCrary will not be a Circuit Judge. The Democratic Senate will prevent the iniquity.

Republican orators, in their patriotic zeal, conveniently neglect to mention the fact that the preservation of the Union, over which they are now so valiantly battling, was greatly due to the patriotism of northern Democrats, marshaled by Generals who, previous to and since that memorable conflict, have in nearly every instance been constant advocates of Democracy. It is not the fact these doughty warriors desire to arrive at, for a ghastly attempt to create a little cheap capital at the expense of that which is buried, and should be forgotten only too perceptibly manifests itself.

Charles Foster, Republican candidate for Governor of Ohio, remarks the Chicago Times, loved the Union so devotedly that he didn't dare trust himself near the front during the war. He sold dry goods and accumulated legal-tenders. And when the tattered, battered boys in blue came back, he said: "Didn't we just ever tastefully wash 'em? It was just old glory and for myself I'll take such of fices as are going." The party is filled to overflowing with patriots of that kind. And they have managed to grab all the good places. Look at the Federal offices in Chicago. It is the same story everywhere.

The Democrats of Ohio nominated a couple of Brigadiers on their ticket—men who fought on the Union side. If this isn't encroaching upon the "constitution rights" of the Republican party then, remarks the Philadelphia Times, the organs are out of joint.

In 1875 Rhode Island had 42,174 voters, as shown by State's careful census. And yet only 22,254 votes were cast for Governor. Indeed the Providence Journal claims that not more than one-half of the voters vote even at Presidential election.

If the Confederate Senate persists in vetoing Mr McCrary the President should attach him to an Appropriation Bill, suggests the Cleveland Herald.

Horsemen Look to Your Interests!

THE IMPORTED PERCHERON STALLION

GEN. FLEURY.

GEN. FLEURY WILL MAKE THE SEASON, BEGINNING APRIL 7TH AND ending July 15th. At the Livery Stable of R. Holt, Harrisburg, on Mondays, P. M. and Tuesdays, and Wednesdays and Thursdays at the Livery Stable of H. Baughman, Junction City; and Fridays, and Saturdays of each week at the Livery Stable of James Humphrey, Eugene City. It is a well known fact that there never has been a stock of horses that has shown such a marked improvement on the common stock of the country as the Percherons have for farm and team use. Every business man knows that a good, large well formed horse will always bring a good price. GEN. FLEURY was selected in France by Mr. C. Fullington, the party that brought out Lewis Napoleon the first of this stock that came west of the Alleghenies; this horse proved the great value of this breed in our country. Mr. F. then had 24 years experience with this stock when he brought out Gen. Fleury and purchased from one of the best breeders of this race in France. He has proven a No. 1 breeder in this State.
