The "Herald" on the Radicals.

The New York Herald thus states its opinion of the situation: "In the last six months the Republicans in Congress have pertinaciously struggled to put the country back four years. This has been the single and clearly conceived object of a series of operations which they have carried on with remarkable industry, audacity and ingenuity. No party in this country, not even the Democratic party in 1858-59, was ever more contemptuous toward its opponents, or more skillful in attacking their weak points and covering its own. No party, not even the Democratic party in 1858-59, ever showed a keener alarm at any proposition for reform, or presented a more solid and audacious front against everything which looked to wholesome legislation for the legitimate interests of the country. No party in its decadence, enervated and corrupted by too long possession of power, ever more vigorously fought back new issues and real questions, or more energetically and persistently brought back debate to old and dead issues."

The Herald proceeds to show that the Radicals have made the South, which was in its opinion about to divide politically, once more solidly Democratic. "To that end," says the Herald, "they have devoted almost every day of the protected session, and in order that they might keep the country in alarm with the spectre of a solid South, they have unceasingly appealed to the worst passions and used the basest arts." It further shows that nobody can be surprised that the South is so strongly Democratic. "The Republican leaders," it observes, "have by unceasing insult and misrepresentation, since last December, done all they could to create and perpetuate a new solid South. Before the people trust the Republican party with power again they have a right to demand, and prudence requires that they should demand, the retirement of its present leaders in Congress and the substitution of better men and a wiser and more national policy." The change in Radical leadership and policy which the New York paper advocates can be effected only in case the party loses its present hold on the Government. No party has ever reformed its own abuses while dominant. The primary and indispensable condition for reform in the Government as well as in the Radical organization, is the expulsion of that party from power.

Hon. John Whiteaker of Oregon.

The following complimentary notice of Representative Whiteaker appeared in the San Francisco Examiner, of July 17th: "By overland train which arrived here Saturday evening, the Hon. John Whiteaker, ex-Governor of Oregon and present Representative in Congress from that State, came passenger. He is stopping at the Palace Hotel, and will depart for his home by steamship Oregon on Wednesday. Governor Whiteaker has served his party and his State in Congress, during the special session, with fidelity and firmness. He is a Democrat of the most sturdy mould, and has never swerved from or failed in the strict line of duty to the pure Democratic faith of the Fathers. As the first Governor of Oregon, upon the admission of that State into the Union, he developed superior ability in statesmanship, and never has a better Executive sat in the Chair of that farthest north-west member of the Union."

Mr. "Chawley" Foster of Postoria, remarks the New York World we see, has "arranged his business affairs so as to give his entire time to the campaign." We do not remember that when the Union was in peril Mr. "Chawley" Foster of Postoria so "arranged his business affairs as to give his entire time to the campaign," though Messrs. Ewing and Rice did so arrange theirs.

Professor Edison proposes to furnish any one with capital to work mines of platinum who have not means of their own to work them. This metal resembles the black sand used in iron molding, and is more valuable than gold. There is no doubt that large deposits are to be found in the mountain ranges of this State.

The Veto Power.

That the veto power, lodged in the Constitution for wise purposes, has been employed by President Hayes solely in the interest of party, will not be questioned, the Louisville Courier-Journal asserts, by any intelligent, fair-minded man. That he has widely departed from the doctrines loudly proclaimed by his great leader, Henry Clay, will not be denied after the perusal of the following extract from one of Mr. Clay's speeches on the veto of the Bank Bill by General Jackson in 1832: "The veto is an extraordinary power, which, though tolerated by the Constitution, was not expected by the Convention to be used in ordinary cases. It was designed for instances of precipitate legislation, in unguarded moments. * * * The veto is hardly reconcilable with the genius of our Government. It is totally irreconcilable with it if it is to be frequently employed in respect to the expediency of measures, as well as their constitutionality. It is a feature of our Government borrowed from a prerogative of the British King. And it is remarkable that in England it has grown obsolete, not having been used for upward of a century. * * * Ought the opinion of one man to overrule that of a legislative body twice deliberately expressed?"

The Kind of Man McCreary is.

The Burlington Hawkeye is the chief Radical organ of Iowa. Its publisher is chairman of the Radical State Committee. It tells three facts on George W. McCreary, Hayes' Secretary of War, whom he purposes to place on the Bench, unless the Senate shall prevent him, as it is hoped and expected, the Democrats in that body will: McCreary began with getting A. J. Zwart a bank clerk at his Keokuk home, appointed to sell revenue stamps at that point. Revenue Agent Kinney, while looking over the Collection District last Winter, found out that Zwart was being paid a salary of $500 to collect $700, though larger places in the District had no stamp-deputy, and recommended that the Keokuk man be dispensed with as a sinecure. Instead of this, McCreary paid another political debt by having the county made a separate Collection District, with his friend Rothen as its $1,500 deputy. Zwart being still retained as Keokuk's stamp collector, but with his salary reduced to $100. This man, in the eyes of Hayes, is the one of all others in the Northwest to administer the law and uphold the dignity and character of the United States Bench.

What Congress Accomplished.

The special session of Congress did not close without the accomplishment of much good, after all that the Radicals says of it in derision and ridicule of the Democratic majority. They brought Hayes at last to relinquish his abuse of employing troops at the polls, and they abolished the jurors' test oath law by which white citizens were excluded from serving on grand or petit juries. No more will the army be used to intimidate and disfranchise voters. No longer can corrupt Federal Judges and Marshal's pack juries in the South to give verdicts dictated by themselves so as to rob or imprison white citizens. And, besides the repeal of these two odious laws, the infamous Supervisor of Election and Deputy Marshal law is rendered comparatively harmless. A pretty good showing this, for the special session, on the Democratic side.

A Radical on Conkling and Lamar.

In relation to the late passage of ugly words between Senators Lamar and Conkling, the Springfield Republican remarks: It is not easy to apportion the blame of the unseemly exchange of compliments in the Senate between Messrs. Conkling and Lamar. But the Mississippi Senator's words bear the stamp of an honest indignation that forget the formality of parliamentary propriety, while the retort of New York's "favorite son," framed in the prescribed limits, was an example of vulgar brow beating worthy of a bar-room. The fiction that marks it "parliamentary" to say that outside of the Senate the speaker would call his antagonist sundry names is one of those devices that disgrace debate. Mr. Conkling shows more and more the deterioration that springs from a loss of self respect.

STATE NEWS.

Dr. T. C. Mackey of Empire City has been appointed coroner of Coos county. The Reckland ferryboat has been equipped with a new steering apparatus by John Holland, of the O. S. N. Co., by which rudders are placed at each end, which are thrown out of water when not in use. This arrangement is said to be much better than the common pivoted rudder.

Hillsboro Independent: Married, July 13, 1879, at Auburn, Columbia county, Oregon, by Rev. Plowman, Mr. Judson Weed and Miss Emeline, daughter of Van Blaricom, and born on the same date and the same place, a daughter to the bride's mother. Creeps in Oregon never fail.

Polk county Itemizer: We learn through Judge Collins, who has it from Headquarters, that Geo. Revett, Esq., the receiver of the D. S. & G. R. R. Co., has obtained an order from Judge Deady authorizing him, as such receiver, to borrow money to put the narrow gauge road in good repair, and also to extend the same to Dallas.

The Enterprise: Mr. Ah Let, a pig tailed Asian, was nicely trapped by Indian Jim on Tuesday. Ah Let let Jim have a bottle of Chinese fire-water, and Jim intermed on him. In telling the marshal, Jim said: "Phew! Chinamen sell opium Boston boys, make 'em drunk; me catch 'em, nab-witka; me say, here six bits, one bit the whisky." Phew! He say, 'Ah! light!' Phew!" Ah Let was lit into goal.

The Chicago Times says: Of all the degrading and humiliating spectacles in American politics, the most disgusting as well as degrading is presented whenever some political inquiry opens a view into the unspeakable corruption and personal mendacity of the creature known as the Louisiana politician.

Ladies' Attention. Berlin Fashion Patterns at Dunn & Stratton's.

IF PERSUADED BY AN Egyptian, use Glenn's Sulphur Soap, the ruling specific for diseases, irritation and abrasions of the skin, and a most salutary beautifier of the complexion. This admirable article is an inexpensive substitute for sulphur baths, and is equally as effective in banishing cutaneous maladies, and relieving the pains of rheumatism and neuralgia. Redness and roughness, hair, freckles, pimples, and indeed every imperfection of the cuticle is entirely removed by it. It is avouched by ladies who have used it, to be the most effective means of clarifying and softening the skin that they have ever employed; its health promoting properties are widely recognized by medical men, and evidence in its behalf, emanating from other and equally respectable sources, precludes any reasonable doubt as to the genuineness of its claims to public confidence. Clothing and linen from the sick room are disinfected by it, and it prevents contagion when the hands of chronic diseases has been incurred by contact, sores and ulcers, that resist the operation of salves and lotions, are healed by it, and it soon relieves the swelling and pain caused by bruises and sprains. The opening of the pores, resulting from the whole some stimulation of the superficial blood vessels, that it produces, is a most salutary effect in the case of the circulation when overstrained, and carry off those offensive emanations which disfigure the cuticle and render existence a state of martyrdom while they remain. Eruptions, ailments that ointments will not cure, are entirely eradicated by Glenn's Sulphur Soap. Sold by druggists. Price, 25c. per cake. 1 box (3 cakes) 75c., sent by mail, prepaid, on receipt of price. C. N. Crittenton, Prop'r, Sixth avenue, New York. Hill's hair and whisker dye, black or brown, 50c.
