The Venerable Fraud.

S. F. Chronicle.

A lady proceeding along Folsom street yesterday morning observed a tall elderly gentleman of dignified aspect hastening across the street. "Madame," he said, impressively, "I would like to say just three words to you as a gentleman. Will you be kind enough to tell me what way I should go to take the Oakland Ferry boat; I have to go across the bay." "Right down Second street to Market, and straight down Market to the ferry," was the response, to which the questioner paid little attention. "Madame, I would like to say one word more." He put his hand in his pocket and drew out a nickel and half dime. "There is all the money I have got in the world, and you will see it takes five cents more to buy a ferry ticket. I am no beggar!"—he drew himself up proudly—"but if you would, in your kindness of heart, give me just half a dime, I shall be under countless obligations to you."

The lady hesitated, but the amount seemed so small that she drew it forth from her portmanteau, saying: "I will give you the money, but I know you have been drinking. I can smell liquor." "Madame," said the old gentleman, solemnly, "I will not deny that I do chew tobacco," holding up a plug for her inspection, "but I have not been drinking. You are mistaken," and the old fellow moved on with an injured look. At this juncture a respectable citizen came up out of breath. "It is too bad, too bad, ma'am! I hurried as fast as I could to tell you that fellow is one of the worst old frauds in the city. He goes all over town working on people's sympathies that way, and I thought I should be able to stop him. Confound the hummer; I'd rather have given you a dollar than had you give him that five cents! Such men keep the deserving poor from receiving help they need. Don't get taken in again, ma'am. Good-bay!" Later in the day she encountered the old vagabond on Washington street. He approached her with the same appealing broken-down gentlemanly look, but on recognizing her changed his tactics. "Ah, it is the very same lady. Bless your kind heart, my child." "I have no time to stop." "Yes, but I want to pay you your money back. If you will just call at the Washburn house and ask for C. A. P. teher, room 53, you shall have your car fare back," he said, evidently forgetting that he had requested the sum for a different purpose. The lady has no immediate intention of calling, but her big brother intends to interview the venerable beggar.

The fruit crop of Southern Oregon is good.

The population of Jacksonville is steadily increasing.

Many potato fields in Southern Oregon are afflicted with rot.

Six houses are being built at Linkville. The town was never so prosperous.

Many families are coming in wagons from California and will settle in Southern Oregon.

Two or three fine fields of sweet potatoes have been raised this season in Southern Oregon.

The dagger cockle burr has made its appearance in Jackson county, and the county authorities are active in attempts to eradicate it.

James McDonough, of Jackson county, lost four fine young horses last week by poison. They are supposed to have eaten wild parsnip.

Three men, Frank Mercer, Sam Jones and James Henry, were arrested at Heppner recently on a charge of gambling, fined $25 each, and in default of payment, committed to jail.

There is some talk of establishing an academy at the Dalles. The Empire says that Wasco county spends an average of $6000 a year in the valley towns for education of a higher order, which might as well be provided at home.

Taffy for the Judge.

He was pretty tight when he was brought in, but yet he knew what the blotter was, and refused to give any name.

"Put me down as the man I'm Shackson," was all the reply he could make, and when he came before the court he was greeted with:

"You man from Jackson, you ought to be ashamed to come here and get yourself into our House of Correction when you have a great big state prison at home!"

"Judge, it is blessed to forgive," earnestly replied the prisoner.

"But this isn't a case of elopement, bank defalcation, or any such sentimental thing, sir. It is a case of drunkenness—not a hilarious birthday festival, but a stupid guzzle. You poured down a lot of whisky, waited for it to take effect, and then carefully lay down on the sidewalk, and expected to draw a crowd and become a hero."

"Judge, let me go."

"I can't!"

"Judge, listen to me. I am penniless and far from home, I'm the worse for a clean shirt, and my hair needs combing. But the day may come, Judge, when I'll be a railroad conductor, wear a diamond cross, have a necktie for every day in the week, and run the Pacific Express between Detroit and Chicago. You may come aboard of my train, bound to Chicago, to see your mother-in-law since her will in your favor, and then die. A well-eyed young man may pick your pocket of money and ticket, and when I come along gathering up the pastebords you will be dishd. I will look down into your benign countenance, pull down my vest, and instead of dropping you off in Wildcat Marsh, I'll give you two beds in the best Pullman, and play the harp while you sleep. Do you hear me, judge?"

"Man from Jackson, it wasn't a bad case of drunk-ness—you can go," softly whispered the court. And he slid.—Detroit Free Press.

Summons.

In the Circuit Court of the State of Oregon in and for the county of Lane.

Emeline Wallace and Matthew Wallace, her husband, plaintiffs;
vs.
Thomas Garstide and Ann Garstide, his wife, defendants.

Suit in equity to foreclose mortgage on real property.

To Thomas Garstide and Ann Garstide, his wife, the above named defendants:

IN THE NAME OF THE STATE OF Oregon, you and each of you, are hereby summoned to appear in said court and answer the complaint of the plaintiffs filed herein on or before Monday, the third day of November, 1879, that being the first day of the term of court following the time prescribed in the order for publication of summons, or plaintiff will apply to the court for the relief demanded therein, namely, a judgment for the sum of five thousand dollars in gold coin of the United States with interest thereon at one per cent per month, since October 12th, 1876, and a decree for the sale of the following described real property, in Lane county, Oregon, to-wit: North 47.80 chs., thence East 3.65 chs., thence South 47.80 chs. to the place of beginning, on said 17th, 46 acres of land and for such other and further relief as to the court may seem equitable and just.

It is ordered by the court the Honorable J. F. Watson, Judge, dated September 12th, 1879, that service of summons be made on you by publication in the Eugene City Guard, a newspaper published in said county, for six consecutive weeks.

G. E. DORRIS,

Out West.

A Nevada girl is bound to get on in the world. A Gold Hill lass married a man who had worked steadily at his trade for ten years, and yet had nothing to show for his labor, for at the end of every month he would invariably lose at the gambling table all he had earned. Knowing her husband's weakness, she determined to turn it to good account for the advantage of the family. Her plan was to start a larder bank. Accordingly, she procured a lay out, box, case keeper and the necessary checks. At this point her greatest difficulty was encountered. She had no capital. Going to an experienced gambler and stating the case to him, she was able to borrow $200. The preliminaries being arranged, the husband readily agreed to play against his wife's bank, provided she would agree to "bring the bell" for the drinks once in awhile. The fair dealer acquiesced, and the game began. At the end of an hour and a half she had possession of the month's wages. The next month the same experience was repeated. In a short time the $200 had been repaid the gambler, and a fine embroidered lay out was made by the thrifty wife. Soon after she began to buy diamonds and to invest in stocks. The next stroke was to build an elegant mansion; then she kept her own carriage, and finally made a tour of the world, accompanied by her husband and three children.

A Curious Industry.

The principal industry of the town of West Falmouth, Mass., is tying business tags with bits of strings, by which the tags may be attached to articles which require to be labeled. A correspondent writing from that village says: "These tags are cut elsewhere and sent in bulk to West Falmouth. The string is also sent in skeins. The business here is to cut the string in suitable lengths, tie one into each tag, and return it to the manufacturer in Boston. This sounds simple enough, and small enough, and yet it furnishes occupation to between three hundred and four hundred persons, and involves an elaborate system of bookkeeping. The business has been carried on by a woman for the last twenty years. The orders which were once filled in a bushel basket now require large freight boxes, and amount to an aggregate of forty millions of tags in a year. The little pink strings are recycled off and cut in given lengths and bunches, each bunch having 101 strings. The strings are given out by the 1010, together with the corresponding number of tags, to people coming to the office for them, and are paid for at the rate of 12 to 17 cents a thousand. Young children tie with their mothers, and even old men, and it is a great source of pin money in the community."

NO CHINESE AT LEADVILLE.

Custer City, Idaho, has followed the example of Leadville, and refuses to allow Chinamen in their midst. Our city young though it is, has already accomplished a marvelous part in the work of developing the great West. It has poured out the millions of its exhaustless wealth, revived the drooping interests of a State which is destined to play an important part in the coming years of our country's history and called it from despair to high purpose. This has been gr at work, but Leadville can point with pride to one even greater. She has in refusing to admit Chinamen, set an example which, if followed by the other great cities of the land, will soon solve the most vexed and most serious problem of the hour.—Leadville Eclipse.

"JOINED THE GANG."

A man was arrested for stealing chickens, and was brought before our court. The case was given to the jury, who brought him in guilty, and the judge sentenced him to three months imprisonment in our county jail. Captain Hall-ck, the jailer, was a jovial man, fond of a smile, and feeling particularly good on that particular day felt insulted at once when the prisoner looked around his cell and told him it was dirty, and a fit for a hog to be put in. One word brought on another, and finally Captain H. told the prisoner that if he did not behave himself he would put him out, to which the prisoner replied, "Captain H. Heck, I will give you to understand I have as good a right here as you have!"

Comparative Value.

A widow, whose husband, a mechanic, had been killed in a railway accident, obtains a judgment of $5,000 damages against the railway company. The same court gives a verdict for $15,000 to a man who had lost a leg in the same smash-up. The widow of the mechanic thereupon goes to the Judge and protests against the injustice of his decision. "Is a leg," she asks, "worth three times as much as a whole man?" And the Judge responds: "The decision is perfectly equitable. A man who has lost a leg cannot replace it with another as good, even for $15,000; but a woman with $5,000 can easily get a new husband."

After the service.
