Five Millions to pay, Perhaps.

[Memphis Avalanche.]

In terecasting the possible powers of Memphis to build a system of expensive public works by taxation, is is as well to bear in mind that suits are pending in the Supreme Court to compet the payment of the indebted-ness of the late city of Memphis. If these suits are decided against the city, the future payment of over $5,000,000 must be provided for. To pay that debt now will be impossi-ble. It would require more than one-third of all the real property in the city to pay it. But an arrange-ment must be made to pay it in the fiture, and the interest must be paid. And a portion of the debt must be paid immediately. The mouey that must be raised by taxation, if these suit sare decided adversely to the go.
