Sharon and His Servant.

On Thursday the Post received the astounding information that the "Silver Senator," Sharon, of Nevada, was at the Arlington. The very remarkable circumstance of his being in Washington while the Senate is in session developed a desire to ascertain the cause thereof, and a reporter was sent prancing up to the hotel to find out all about it. Senator William was at dinner when our office shortly afterward, and requested to be excused that evening, as he was going out. The reporter remarked that he would call around the next day. The next day Mr Sharon wasn't going out, but was out, and made a definite advance engagement for Sabbath afternoon. A second call discovered the fact that he was at dinner.

After waiting an hour and a half for him to get through this famous breeding experiment, the reporter ventured to send up a card. A coolie valet came down and only advanced the information that the eminent Republican statesman a-d Great American

Ala-neece was going out.

"Is he ever coming in?" suavely inquired the Post.

"Dunno," said the heathen, "he is goin' out."

"Well," said the Post, "I imagine you will do as well as the Senator after all. What do you think of Grant's a possible Republican candidate?"

"Dunno."

"Did you see him in California?"

"Glant. Yes."

"Considerable of a demonstration over him there, wasn't there?"

"Dunno."

"Did you get a whiff of the incense of royalty that is said to be clinging to his garments?"

"Mus' go up."

"Can you give a specific description of the aroma? Is it like the color of onions, limburger, or other delicate essences of that character

"Never seed any."

"Is it true that the report of a silver mine being discovered in Georgetown was the only incentive that induced Senator Sharon to visit Washington?"

"Mu' go up."

"Have you heard the story that the Secretary of the Senate has refused to pay him any salary for he wasn't there, and the gaunt and hungry wolf will, in consequence, howl at his door?"

"Senator goin' out."

The Post went on.

One Prerogative of an American Citizen.

Detroit Free Press.

One would imagine that the office of the Water Board would be a good place to secure variety but such is far from the case. Outside of the people who pay rates when due and have no words about it, there is only another class. The man who has waited until notified that the water will be shut off if he does not come to time walks into the office with a look of awful dignity on his brow and says:

"Going to shut off my water, eh?"

Silence on the part of the clerk.

"I would like to see you try it, I would! If this Water Board imag-

Murder at Monmouth.

Salem Statesman, Feb. 4th.

From Mr William Graves, who arrived from Independence last evening we learn that a murder was committed at Monmouth yesterday after noon under the following circumstances: A rather notorious character named Dick Johnson, who resides somewhere on the Luckimite, came to Independence with his wife to do some trading, and while there fell in company with a young man named Crosserly and the three left Independence and got as far as Monmouth on their way home, when Johnson and Crosserly had some bitter words and a fight was imminent, and as Crosserly raised his hand as if to strike, Johnson drew a revolver and shot him, the ball taking effect in the breast just below the left nipple and causing death almost instantly. Johnson then took a horse that he had tied to the hind end of the wagon and rode back to Independence—leaving his wife sitting alone in the wagon. After arriving at Independence he hurriedly transacted some business with his brother-in-law named Butler, he again mounted his horse and left for parts unknown.

The sheriff and a posse of men started out a few minutes later in search of the murderer, but at the time our informant left no tidings had been received. Monmouth is wild with excitement over the affair, as Crosserly was well known there and liked by
