

THE EUGENE CITY GUARD

EUGENE CITY, OREGON

SATURDAY, JULY 10, 1860.

Democratic Ticket.

FOR PRESIDENT:
GEN. WINFIELD S. HANCOCK,
Of New York.

FOR VICE-PRESIDENT:
WILLIAM H. ENGLISH,
Of Indiana.

For Presidential Electors,
J. K. WEATHERFORD, of Lane,
T. G. OWEN, of Coos,
J. G. FULTON, of Wasco.

Fathful Officers.

The county treasurer, Mr. Joe Gray, counted out to the incoming County Court the sum of $6,000 county money, which is now on hand in the county treasury. This is a splendid showing for Lane county. And in view of the extensive improvements made in large bridges in every part of the county, that too on such a small county tax, and the county warrants always at par, good as gold, reflect great credit on the retiring officers, Judge Walton and his associates. Truly our county affairs have been ably and honestly managed for the last four years, and too much praise cannot be given to the retiring officials mentioned. The county is entirely out of debt and plenty of money in the treasury to pay all demands against the county until taxes are collected again. The people should feel proud of the large number of fine bridges—the finest in the State—and all this is the result of Democratic rule.

An Expert Opinion.

New York Sun June 9.

Gen. William W. Belknap, who was Secretary of War in Grant's Cabinet, approached a group of Federal officers and others who were engaged in discussing the nomination in one of the rooms of the United States Post-Office and Custom-House, and said in a hawking tone. "Well, boys, what's the matter? You don't seem very joyful." "No," replied one of the number, "we are wanting to learn something about Garfield. Do you know him, General?"

"Yes. He is the most corrupt man in America. He would steal heaven's livery to serve the devil in." The heavens did not know whether to smile or to look sober.

Gen. Belknap mentioned publicly that one of the Ohio Delegation, who supported Blaine, had telegraphed him as follows. "Conkling has made the greatest effort of his life, and we have nominated Garfield."

Gen. Belknap replied. "Yes. And you have made the greatest mistake of your life."

Compromised To Death.

As regard intelligent capacity, Garfield stands higher than Hayes, the New York Staats Zeitung thinks; but, not having proven as incorruptible as Hayes, it can scarcely be expected that he will make such efforts as Hayes did to keep his Administration clear from corrupt practices. During Grant's Administration, it has been proven that Garfield was bribed by Union Pacific stock by Oakes Ames, and that he was interested in a fraudulent contract of the Shepherd ring. He has thus been compromised too much, and cannot be looked upon as a pure character, and hence it cannot be expected that the moral atmosphere at Washington will be improved by his Administration.

Extract from the report of the Poland investigating committee ordered by the Republican Congress of 1873. "He [Garfield] agreed with Mr. Ames to take ten shares of Credit Mobilier stock, but did not pay for the same. Mr. Ames received the eighty per cent. dividends in bonds and sold them for ninety-seven per cent., and also received the sixty per cent. cash dividend, which, together with the price of the stock and interest, left a balance of $322. This sum was paid over to Mr. Garfield by a check on the Sergeant-at-Arms."

The Democrats are not throwing dirt at Garfield. They are just working the curving comb through it to see what is the color beneath.

Credit Mobilier and Dr. Gulyer.

From the New York Herald, June 14. His, Gen. Garfield's acceptance of the surplus of dividends beyond what was necessary to pay for the stock looked like an acknowledgement that the stock was his. There must be some better explanation than has yet been presented before the country will think otherwise. We are willing and anxious to see a defense which is not as damaging as the original charge. Will any Republican Congressman who has expressed satisfaction with the nominations to newspaper correspondents, privately express their disgust at the outcome?

Getting sick of their condition.

A Washington dispatch to the Pittsburgh Post, June 10th, reads thus: "The Democrats are already making it known that the undersigned have been duly appointed executors of the will and estate of said A. Witness, the Hon. C. W. French, Judge of the County Court of the State of Oregon, for the county of Lane, who signed the seal of the court affixed, this 1st day of July 1860. ATTORNEY: JOEL WADE, Clerk.

Garfield the Warlike.

Gen. Garfield's war record, in brief, reads as follows:

Dec. 14, 1861—Enlisted as Colonel.

Dec. 17, 1861—made brigade commander for gallant services as a politician.

Jan. 14, 1862—Attacked an inferior force under Humphrey Marshall and routed it without loss to either side.

June, 1862—Joined to army of observation before Corinth.

July and August, 1862—Doing hospital duty.

September, 1862—A member of the Fitz John Porter court martial.

Oct. and Nov., 1862—Running for Congress in Ohio.

Jan. to Nov., 1863—Holding a comfortable position on Rosecrans' staff.

Dec. 5, 1863—Resigns.

Dec. 1, 1863—Enters Congress.

One of the Chinese Commission.

The bill of items passed by Congress for the new Commission to China, to negotiate a treaty in place of that known as the Burlingame Treaty foots up a total of $17,000—with details as follows: Regular Minister, $12,000; regular Secretary and Interpreter, $5,000; the two Commissioners, each $10,000; their Secretary, 4,000; their interpreter, $1,500; and for contingent expenses of the Commission, $4,500.

For nearly ten years the business of Eugene has been kept back by the treatment it has received from the railroad company. Every person that wants a bill of goods from Portland has to wait 24 hours longer than necessary, that the company may suit itself in its slow way of doing business. It is a perfect outrage on the business of Eugene that all its freight has to remain over at Junction 24 hours. It might suit some crablike countries, but it is too slow for an American.
