TESTIMONIAL.
Independence, Oregon, December 13, 1879
Both myself and wife have been for some years afflicted with disease of the Kidneys, and had tried many remedies without obtaining any permanent relief. About three months ago we were induced to try a package apparently entirely cured both of us, as since taking it two weeks we have felt no symptoms of the disease. We can heartily recommend it to others similarly afflicted, as we believe it will do all that is claimed for it.
M. L. WHITE,
Astoria, Oregon, December 28, 1879.
I take great pleasure in testifying to the fact that three years I have been suffering from kidney troubles, and during the time have tried nearly every kind of kidney medicine in the market, almost without any result. Having heard that the Oregon Kidney Tea possessed wonderful properties, I purchased a package and from the first dose obtained relief, and by the use of the one package feel completely cured.

Garfield's Letter of Acceptance
AS IT SHOULD HAVE BEEN.
To the Hon. George Frisbie Hoar and other, Committee of the National Convention:

Gentlemen: My nomination by your convention at Chicago was unexpected. I did not desire it; I had not even contemplated the possibilities of its being made. A very distinct recollection of events in my own public career left no room in my mind for the supposition that the political party with which I am acting could, under any circumstance, risk its supremacy upon my candidature. After the moment of weakness in which I consented to allow my name to go before the delegates, my first impulse was to withdraw. That impulse has recurred with augmented strength at various times during the past five weeks. It is still strong within me. Nevertheless, it having been represented to me that withdrawal is impossible, I have reluctantly decided to accept the nomination of the republican party to be President of the United States, I expressly disclaim responsibility for the result if unfavorable to the party.

Having candidly defined my position in regard to the canvass, it becomes proper for me to touch, with equal candor, upon the leading issues that will engage the attention of the people during the next few months.
In June, 1868, as is shown by the record, and is declared by the report of the Republican investigating committee known as the Poland Committee. I received from Mr. Oakes Ames a check for three hundred and twenty-nine dollars, being a dividend on stock held by me in the Credit Mobilier of America. In the confusion of a trying season, I swore that I had never owned such stock and never received such dividend. When it was shown that the money in question had been paid me, beyond the possibility of a doubt, I requested Mr. Oakes Ames to consider in a loan. I now respectfully ask the voters to take this view of the transaction and let it go as a loan.
On the 12th of July, 1872—by interesting coincidence just eight years ago to-day—I received from a firm of contractors interested in procuring an appropriation by the Committee of which I was chairman, a check for $5,000. When this transaction was investigated five years later by a committee of Congress, I swore that the $5,000 was not a bribe but a fee. The fact that I had never rendered to this firm of contractors any service of legal character is one in which my opinion it is neither just nor generous to bring up after all this lapse of time. I therefore respectfully request the voters of the United States to adopt my views of the five thousand dollar transaction and let it go as a fee.
In February and March I was largely instrumental in effecting the passage of an appropriation of about $2,000,000 for the back pay of Congressmen. I considered the amount which came into my hands a welcome addition to my slender income; but when I found that the measure was odious to the country and likely to effect the political future of the Congressman concerned in it, I made haste to cover the entire sum into the Treasury. I was one of the first half dozen to refund. I now respectfully ask the voters of the U. S. to take my view of the restoration of the people's money and let it go as a virtuous act.

There is no doubt on other questions affecting my personal character which will come before the country: those which I have specified seem to me to be among the most important. My earnest desire is that whatever course political questions may take between now and November we may be spared a campaign of calumny.
On the other hand, if culture and classical attainments are to have any weight in the campaign just opening, it, as has been recently suggested in the speech of a distinguished Massachusetts senator, the schoolmaster is to be given a hearing—I can promise, that like the Blind Tyrtacus at the terrible pass of Salamis opposing the Athenian old guard by combing out his long locks in the presence of Egyptian hosts, I shall be found at the front of republican columns in the confidence of the hearts of voters by the coolness with which in the hottest of the fight I shall stand firm from time to time some of the treasures of a cultivated mind.

Facts in Fasting.

The craving of the public appetite for spiced and piquant food is being abnormally pandered to by the insane desire for publicity which has taken possession of the now notorious Dr. Tanner. This individual's fast, even if it ceases ere the expiration of the time named by him for its continuance, has already lasted for a period which strikes the uninitiated with awe and bewilderment, the profession with astonishment and perplexity. We believe this to be a harmful fast, nor do we in any way discredit the warranty of the gentlemen who keep "ghostly and dismal watch" over the eccentric and chameleon like physician. We do not envy Dr. Tanner, and we have no sympathy with his devoted body guard even though their self imposed labors be in the interest of science.
In the belief of Dr. Tanner's honesty we are more or less fortified by cases of wonderful fasts that have from time to time occurred, and all of which, during their continuance, excited sensations akin to that which now engrosses public attention. If we go back to the Middle Ages, we have Joseph of Copertino, who for five years neither ate of bread nor drank of wine, but subsisted upon dried fruits and bitter herbs, and who was wont to fast for forty days seven times in every year. Nicolas of Flue abstained from food altogether, and when compelled to swallow a morsel of bread his stomach rejected it. Liduine of Schiedam fell ill in 1395, and remained in that state for thirty-three years or to her death. During the first nine years she partook of nothing daily but a single wafer of apple and one mouthful of beer or milk. Later on she rejected the apple in favor of water, and after nineteen years she refused even the water. According to her own confession, for eight years her lips were sealed to food and drink. The case of Eve Fliegen, of Meurs, excited considerable attention. It is stated that for the space of fourteen consecutive years—from the twenty-second to the thirty-sixth years of her age—she refused nourishment of every description, "and this we have confirmed by the magistrates of the town of Meurs, as also by the minister, who made trial of her in his house thirteen days together by all the means he could devise, but could detect no imposition." The Welsh fasting, Sarah Jacobs, is a very familiar case of modern abstention. At the age of ten, this girl suffered from spasms, attended with loss of consciousness, loss of muscular power and other symptoms of a hysterical character. She frequently vomited her food, which was taken in continually decreasing quantities. By the beginning of October, 1867, her daily food was a pill of bread administered by a teaspoon; on the 10th of October a solemn declaration was made that she ceased to partake any food whatsoever. This absolute fast, it is alleged continued until December 17th, 1869, the day upon which she died, or a period of two years, two months and one week. This case so excited the public mind that four nurses from Guy's hospital, in London were sent down to watch the girl. The watch commenced on the ninth of December. On the 16th, "she was looking very pale and anxious, her eyes were sunk and her nose was pinched," and the "starvation smell" told the nurses that she was sinking. She died on the 17th. In Philadelphia an insane Irishman in the Pennsylvania Asylum refused all food and drink for forty-six days, because his daily allowance of food, which was four times in excess of that allowed to any other patient, was cut short. On the forty sixth day of his self imposed fast he was asked if he would have something to eat—every stratagem had been used to compel him to partake of food, but without success—"give me something to eat," he said. Meat was given to him, but his stomach was too weak to hold food, and he died two days afterwards, his fast having lasted forty-eight days.

Numerous other cases of wonderful fasts might be cited to prop up belief in this unwise effort of Dr. Tanner. That he may accomplish his feat is within the bounds of possibility, that he will aid science is open to a question, but that he is playing a very desperate game goes without saying.—Frank Leslie's Illustrated Newspaper.

FACTS ABOUT JAMES A. GARFIELD.

MOSES W. FIELD, REPUBLICAN REPRESENTATIVE IN CONGRESS FROM MICHIGAN, IS THUS REPRESENTED BY A DETROIT INTERVIEWER.
"You know Garfield personally; he is a rich man now, is he not?"
"Yes, he is. When he went to congress they got up what they call in the Campbellite Church, a 'donation' party to raise means to pay his way to Washington. He is now accounted a very wealthy man. I lived plainly but comfortably in Washington, and my salary as a Congressman just paid my house rent and fuel, and I was obliged to draw checks on my banker here every month to meet my bills. I do not see how Garfield can be possibly elected. He worked like a beaver against the bill to equalize soldier's bounties, and asked me to vote against it in the House of Representatives. I refused and he voted 'no.' When he found the Bill carried by an overwhelming majority he went to the Clerk's desk and in my hearing asked the Clerk to have his vote changed to yes. He is a rich man now; so is John Sherman, who, when he came to Washington from Mansfield, O., was possessed only of a law library worth about $90."

"How about the De Golyer case?"
"It was proven before an investigating Committee that Garfield, Chairman of the Appropriation Committee, took $5,000 as an attorney's fee for which he rendered no service whatever. Garfield as an 'attorney' phaw! I wouldn't trust him with a case before a country justice of the peace."

STATE NEWS.

R. H. Fay has received his commission as agent for the Umatilla Indians.
Two panthers were lately killed on Cow creek, one of which measured 8 1/2 feet.
Much of the wheat between Fifteen mile and Tygh Valley, Wasco county, has been cut for hay.
Roseburg has contributed $350 cash and 1700 pounds of flour to the relief of the Gardiner sufferers.
Reliable information from Gardiner says there are 12 families there who are homeless and absolutely destitute.
The firm of B. Herman shipped out of the Coquille river about 10 tons of wool by the last trip of the schooner to San Francisco.
Biddle & Manning will erect a large new store building at Canyonville this fall to meet the requirements of the growing business of the place.
Jas Clark of Silver Creek, was found dead in his claim one morning last week. His death was supposed to have resulted from heart disease.
The county court of [redacted] let the following bridge contracts last week: One across the Umpqua near Canyonville; contract was let for the sum of $4,985. One across Myrtle Creek near the town of Myrtle Creek for $360. A bridge across Elk creek at Elkton for $4,000. And one between Elkton and Drain for the same price, $4,500; making a total sum of $13,345 for all the bids. A S. Miller & Son will have charge of the work.

Sadly Failed.

Springfield Republican.
Some of the brethren complain that the Republican was too critical of Gen. Garfield's letter. Not at all. The sober judgment of the best independent sentiment of the country agrees that the Republican candidate sadly failed to furnish the inspiration which his campaign has need, and to vindicate the true purpose of such a letter. Says one of the ablest Republicans in the country, a warm and personal friend of General Garfield: "I did not find in the letter what I had hoped to. I fear those consultations with Congressmen just for information! Garfield could afford defeat under a declaration of his best self." Courage is always honorable; it commands respect, and wins votes. Could General Garfield afford defeat as he stands to-day? He has not lifted the uncertainty of a doubtful canvass into the enthusiasm which presages victory.
