Of New York.

Beecher and Garfield.

New York Sun.

"I ask through you, Theodora Tilton's forgiveness, and I humble myself before him as I do before my God."

So spoke Henry Ward Beecher out of the anguish of his remorse and terror, on New Year's day, 1871.

James A. Garfield did not tell the late Oakes Ames, so far as appears, that he humbled himself before him as he did his God. But he humbled himself to the extent of asking Ames to prop up perjury with another perjury.

Here is a part of the account given under oath by Ames:

"He wanted to have it go as a loan. "Q.—Did he claim that it was in fact a loan."

"A.—No sir I do not think he did. No he did not.

"State all you know in reference to it. A.—I told him he knew very well it was a dividend. I made out a statement and showed it to him at the time. In one conversation he admitted it."

That is, having lied under oath, Garfield asked Ames to lie under oath also, and get him out of the scrape. Ames however, being a truthful witness, decided to tell the truth, regardless of the other hearts that would ache. And he told it.

The resultant ache at the time was nothing to the ache that is now hurting the Republican managers and editors who find the party handicapped, in a close and doubtful race, with a tainted candidate.

Enthusiasm for Hancock.

From the New York Herald.

As heretofore stated, there has been a remarkable increase in Gen. Hancock's correspondence since his nomination. It was of course natural there should be, and particularly that the soldiers serving under him during the war should express their delight at his prospective elevation to the Presidency. The Herald reporter was allowed yesterday the privilege of glancing over these letters. They come from various sources. Life-long Democrats, Republicans who propose to cast a Democratic vote for Gen. Hancock, Confederate and Union soldiers, colored voters—all are equally anxious for the General's success.

Mr. GARFIELD must show that he took the Credit Mobilier stock from Oakes Ames and paid for it in the regular way before he can relieve himself of the charges against him. The records show that Mr. Garfield never paid a cent for that stock; he took it as a bribe to secure his influence against legislation hostile to the construction company building the Union Pacific Railway.

Just as the prospect for holding on to official places recedes and darkens the "ring" bosses grow petulant and cross, and many of them seem to have lost their heads. Their flag is the bloody shirt, and their appeal for continued power rises no higher than hate and the revival of all the bad blood unkindled during the war. If this fails their power has departed.

The phrase which greets the eye in every Republican organ now is, "The mission of the Republican party is not yet fulfilled." The party wants "a few more years of good-stealing," and then it will want an extension of its "mission" again. The Democratic party will sit down on that "mission" in November.

Take the first letter from the name of James A. Garfield, and we have Ames A. Garfield. Appropriate, if not significant.

Garfield Oath.

[Poland Report, page 139.]

I never owned, received or agreed to receive, any stock of the Credit Mobilier, or of the Union Pacific Railroad, nor any dividends or profits arising from either of them."

COMMITTEE'S REPORT.

"He agreed with Mr. Ames to take ten shares of Credit Mobilier stock, but did not pay for the same. Mr. Ames received the 80 per cent dividend in bonds, and sold them for 97 per cent, and also received the 80 per cent cash dividend, which, together paid the price of the stock and interest and left a balance of $329. This sum was paid over to Mr. Garfield by a check on the Sergeant-at-Arms, and Mr. Garfield then understood this sum was the balance of dividends after paying for the same."

Has Tempted Him.

Boston Herald, Independent Republican.

Garfield's anxiety to be elected has tempted him to lower his tone, lest he offend the "machine" element of the party. We think he has made a mistake. He was sure of the "machine" votes in any event. They always go for the party candidate. He needed to excite enthusiasm in the great body of independent, thinking voters who were disposed to think well of him, but who will not become enthusiastic or much interested in the prospect of an Administration perfectly satisfactory to the spoilsmen. It would be better to be defeated representing the best than to be elected by a concession to the worst element. It would be exceedingly disagreeable after letting down.

Unfortunately.

How many roses might be substituted for thorns in the path of the Republican candidate, the Pittsburg Post suggests, if he had stolen a few moments from his canal mule in youth, to read and profit by the advice of Wolsey to Cromwell, wherein the Cardinal said, regarding the aims that the truly good should have in life, that they should "be thy Country's, thy God's and Truth's; then if thou fallest, O, Cromwell, thou fallest a blessed martyr." Unfortunately for himself Garfield's aims on certain notable occasions were Oakes Ames and Credit Mobilier profits.

The London "Times" on the Nominees.

According to the Oil City Derrick the London Times, having read the editorials in the New York World and the New York Tribune, says; "The two great parties of America have made very poor nominations this year. Mr. Garcock, the Republican nominee, served ten years in the penitentiary for attempting to kidnap Mr. Oakes Ames' daughter, Miss Credit Mobilier Ames, while Mr. Hanfield, the Democratic nominee, was sentenced to be hanged for murdering a woman, and was deprived while on his way to the gallows. He has been out of prison only four days.

What a Team.

Jacksonville Times.

For President of the United States: Salary Grabber, 8-to-7, DeGolyer, Credit Mobilier Garfield, of Ohio.

For Vice President. Custom House, Chester Aurora Arthur, of New York.

The man who can swallow such a ticket can be set down as being an iron clad Republican; but there are scores of honest Republican who say they will not do it.

GARFIELD says his Credit Mobilier stock was a "loan" from Ames. Ames says the money handed to Garfield was not a loan and was never repaid. Mr. Garfield has never produced any evidence that it was a loan. The records indicate that it was "slush."
