Who Will Vote for Garfield.

The Boston Post takes up the cry of a Republican organ which goes on to say that Wade Hampton and all the "ex-Confederate Brigadiers" will vote for Hancock, and pays off the Republicans in their own coin, to this overwhelming purport:

Mosby, the guerilla chieftain, the most bloodthirsty and heartless of the men who hunted down Union soldiers, will vote for Garfield.

Eph. Holland, the notorious jail bird, thug and ballot box stuffer, will vote for Garfield.

Boss McMane will vote for Garfield.

Boss Shepherd will vote for Garfield.

Joyce, the convicted whisky thief, will vote for Garfield.

Will Kernan, the blatherskite, drunkard and hired slanderer, will vote for Garfield.

"The" Alien will vote for Garfield.

Secor Robeson will vote for Garfield.

David M. Key, the Rebel Brigadier, will vote for Garfield.

Every swindling scoundrel that was engaged in robbing the people of millions of money through the nest of "ring" frauds under Grant, will vote for Garfield.

All of the Credit Mobilier-stained "statesmen," including Colfax and Patterson, long since driven from public life by an outraged people, will vote for Garfield.

Dick Harrington, the safe burglar, will vote for Garfield.

Bob Ingersoll, the blasphemer, will vote for Garfield.

Henry Ward Beecher, ——— will vote for Garfield.

Chase, Hathaway, Pond, and their associates, now in the penitentiary at Concord, would vote for Garfield if they could.

Jake Rehm will vote for Garfield.

Moses, the carpet-bag thief, will vote for Garfield.

Old Mad. Wells and his gang of forgers and Returning Board rascals will vote for Garfield.

Longstreet, the man who led on the rebel army, which tried to kill Hancock and capture Philadelphia, will vote for Garfield.

Belknap, who robbed Union soldiers' graves of their head stones, and fled from the Capital in disgrace, will vote for Garfield.

And last, but not least, the seven men, who, aided by Garfield, voted to legalize the most stupendous fraud on record, and stole the Presidency, will vote for Garfield.

A Connecticut Curiosity

From the N. Y. Sun.

NORWICH, CONN., Aug. 22.—The following remarkable statement has been jureneying through the Connecticut press: "Now it is a Yankee, Mr. Sam Bromley, of Mystic River, in the State of Connecticut, who announces his intention to live for ten hours with his nose and mouth hermetically sealed. Who is the thing to stop?" The individual referred to above is the popular hero of Mystic, a little village on the Sound between New London and Wat Hill. He has a unique office in the main street of that delightful hamlet and is well known along the coast. "Fat Sam." Those acquainted with him see no reason why he should not be able to accomplish what is coupled with his name, for he is able to breathe a time without the use of mouth or nostrils, communication between his lungs and the outside world being kept up through his ears. When smoking a cigar he often exhales the smoke through the same extraordinary channels, to the profound astonishment of those who are unaware of this freak of nature. Many persons who have seen the jettish cigar smoke creeping out of his ears are willing to testify to the truthfulness of "Fat Sam's" assertion. Though not particularly fond of notoriety, Sam thinks he can establish his ability to live practically "hermetically sealed for ten days.

Correcting the Census.

Washington Corr., Statesman.

The tedium at the census office among the galley slaves of the government, has been somewhat varied of late, by a correspondence with the auditor of the territory of Montana, which was conducted on the part of the census bureau in a style worthy of the circumlocution office. It seems that, from the reports received as to the wealth, etc., of Montana, there were but two goats reported as being in that vast mountainous region of our common country and the census office thought there must be something wrong about this, so they wrote to the auditor of the territory to look it up. He did so, and answered that the reports of the enumerators showed only two. He gave the names of the farms they were on and of their owners, two hundred and fifty or three hundred miles apart. The census clerks concluded that that the auditor was prevaricating, and, as a clincher, they wrote and asked him how it was one goat was put down as worth $10, while the other was assessed at only $5, and suggesting him to make a special inquiry, and that possibly he had overlooked the existence of other goats in the territory. The answer of the auditor showed that he was considerably "ripped." He said the goats were assessed at the prices named because each was worth only the amount at which it was assessed, and furthermore that he didn't want to be bothered any more about those "two damned goats." Although the letter was plainly written, the clerk could make out every word except the word "damned," which the whole force in the office unanimously read "hundred," making it appear that there were "two hundred goats in the territory, which was more in consonance with their ideas of the resources of that mountainous region. Accordingly government stationery was again brought into requisition, and the auditor was requested to state particularly whether there were two hundred goats in Montana, and if so, what counties they were in, and return the facts to the census officer without delay. The answer was anxiously looked for, and in due time it came. All doubt was removed. It read: "I am a democrat with a big D, and only recognize the Union with a big U. There are but two goats in Montana. I have come to the conclusion that the whole damned crowd in the census office are crazy, and I want nothing more to do with them." This emphatic epistle closed the correspondence, and the returns from Montana were "perfected," and filed away, doubtless to the great relief of the auditor aforesaid.

Useless Campaign Material.

WASHINGTON, August 31.—The Charleston News and Courier publishes an attested statement which its correspondent obtained from Robert Hanna of Kingstree, S. C. the ex-Confederate who recently applied for a pension. His statement shows to what extent the Republican party is reduced to obtain campaign material. Hanna is a poor white, uneducated, and just able to spell out and write his name. Last November he saw an advertisement of a Washington pension agent which said that "any wound or injury, however slight the disability entitles a soldier of the late war to a pension." Hanna was a soldier of the late war, although he fought on the Confederate side. Being entirely ignorant of the law which grants pensions only to Union soldiers, he forwarded his application for a pension stating he served in the rebel army. He was told by persons to whom he applied for advice that it would be useless for him to apply for a pension, but in his ignorance he persisted in forwarding his application. The pension agent preserved the document and gave it to the Republican Committee for campaign uses.
