Marked.

The other day the writer and one of the best known medical practitioners of Leadville were talking over odd episodes in business, when the man of pills and plaster said:

"I think, to tell the truth, I had the most singular experience of my whole professional career, the other day."

"What was it, Doctor?"

"Well, I'll tell you, leaving out all names, for I expect the party will be recognized anyhow. It was just this:

"The middle part of last week one of the best young ladies of Leadville—she's sweet as a peach, too—came to my office in the evening, told me in a great deal of embarrassment that she wanted me to help her out of some trouble."

Well, from her manner, my very worst suspicions were aroused, and I began to question her closely. And what the deuce do you think? Well, the confounded little fool had had the name of the young fellow whom she used to be engaged to tattooed on the calf of her leg. Now, she's just about to get married to quite a different party, and had sense enough to see that the marking would be likely to kick up a big row in the family. She was awfully distressed and ready to submit to almost anything, even a surgical operation, to wipe out the damned spot.

I was puzzled at first, but after studying over it for a little while I happened to remember that I had read somewhere in some old scientific magazine that tattooing may be removed by going over the design with a needle dipped in milk. It was a fool's hope, but I thought I would try it, and, taking her little foot—delicate position, wasn't it, for a married man!—I carefully went over the letters. It must have hurt, but she never whimpered, and when it was all over I took her to go home and come again in a couple of days.

Well, sir, when she came I had the satisfaction of knowing that the letters had faded into an indistinct, pale blue line. The operation is a perfect success, and she is the happiest girl in Leadville. I got $50 for the job. Let's go and have a smoked."—Leadville Chronicle.

A Leap Year Incident.

Not a hundred miles from Thornhill a young lady has been spending the day with a bachelor minister and his sister. The young lady, whose name was Miss Hope, had been very much gratified at the kindly treatment received at the good old Scottish manse, and on leaving expressed her thanks for the kindness of the minister, at the same time making the remark "That she had not heard him in the pulpit; but," she continued, "I will be over Sabbath to hear you." "I shall be very glad to see you, Miss Hope, and under the interesting circumstances you might suggest a 'text' for the occasion, and I will do all the justice to it I can." "I will be glad to do that, sir," replied the lady. "How would this one do—Lay hold of the Hope set before you!"

Democracy and Free Trade.

From the New York World.

We scorn any political association with any protectionist. No protectionist can be a democrat at all. Our hope is in making the democracy an out-and-out, thick and thin, aggressive, intolerant free trade party, subordinating all issues to this, and thereby drawing to itself citizens who have a true appreciation of this grand principle.

George D. Garrett, an unmarried man about forty years old, fell in an apoplectic fit at the Welcome school the Dalles, Friday evening and expired. The fit was caused by excessive drinking. His mother lives in Washington, D. C., and his brother is body servant to Ben Holladay.

Donald Murchison, one of the proprietors of the new foundry at the Dalles, was attacked by paralysis in his left side rendering him unable to continue the business. He is a member of Maumee lodge I. O. F. of Ohio. The Odd Fellows of the Dalles have taken him in charge and are rendering all the assistance needed.

STATE NEWS.

Boats are still running to Salem, but have to load light freight.

Diphtheria has had a short run in McMinnville and is now about subdued.

Wurt Bros., at Salem, butchered a six months' calf that dressed 380 pounds.

A station house will be built by the railroad company at Hillsboro in a short time.

An exchange says the Ellensburg fishery has closed operations, as the run of fish is over.

David Smith and wife of Forest Grove celebrated the 28th anniversary of their marriage last Saturday evening.

The school for deaf mutes a Salem now has 27 pupils. The management of the past year, the Statesman says, will be substantially continued.

About 300 men are at present employed on the locks at the Cascades. They are making way slowly overcoming the obstacles presented with patient labor.

Thomas Conners attempted to steal a pistol from a shop in the Dalles on the 5th inst, for which he was arrested and held to answer before the circuit court in the sum of $1,000.

W. P. Connoway, of the Farmer's warehouse, Independence, purchased 10,500 bushels of wheat from the farmers on last Wednesday. The price paid was 75 cents per bushel.

"Bogus Charley," a Modoc Indian of some renown, died of consumption at La Grande on the 30th ult. A coffin was procured and the body decently interred at the expense of the county.

The Astoria chamber of commerce has just received a copy of the survey of the Columbia river bar made in 1841, some forty years. This map compared with the present map of 1880, also just received, show some remarkable changes.

The climate of the Rogue River valley is admirably adapted for the cultivation of sorghum and sugar cane. Michael Hanley raised three-quarters of an acre of sorghum and made 200 gallons of molasses. Messrs. Wrisley & Walker have manufactured upward of 2000 gallons.

John McCubin, a resident of middle Wallowa valley, had his left arm torn off at the elbow while threshing grain on the 28th ult. The lower part of the arm passed through the thresher, leaving a ragged, torn and bleeding stump. Amputation was performed and the patient is doing well.

Wednesday of last week, says the Marshfield Mail, Reed & Cornwall, who carry the mail from Gardiner to Empire City, found a large whale on the beach, about five miles from the mouth of the Umpqua. It was 68 feet long; the tail was 18 feet across, and the estimated value of the animal is $1,300. A small young whale was found near by.

The advance wagon of the Washington colony reached The Dalles last Saturday. There are 16 teams in this advance, and these will cross the mountain to Puget Sound at once. These emigrants are men of all trades and occupations; thus far they do not seem to be favorably impressed with the new land. The contentment will come in due time.

Jacksonville Sentinel: The Schumpff ledge, situated in the Willow Springs district, has recently been visited by a number of gentlemen, among them two California mining experts who pronounce it among the best if not the best mining property in southern Oregon. There are about 300 tons of rich quartz rock already on the dumps awaiting the crushing process. The machinery for crushing it is now being placed in position near the mouth of the tunnel. The tunnel itself is being dug into the side of the mountain for a distance of two hundred or more feet and it is intended to drain the main shaft from which the quartz is taken. Two sets of men, a night shift and a day shift, are constantly working in the tunnel, and Mr. Schumpff expects to reach the bottom of the main, or 70 foot shaft, by Christmas.
