One day he refused to enter his cell, and while being forced was thrown against the cell door, the fall injuring his abdomen and finally causing his death. He was sent to the penitentiary for stealing a watch from Gaiety Matthews at Cresswell.

DISGRACEFUL.—Two young men, who should have acted better, conducted themselves disgracefully a few evenings since, by getting too much stimulus aboard and carrying a lot of chickens and pigeons into Mrs Crapper's restaurant, and there turning them loose to remain during the night. One of the parties appeared before the recorder and was fined $10 and costs. The other left for his home in the country. STATE UNIVERSITY.

A column devoted to the interests of the Laurean and Eutaxian Literary Societies, and the State University. EDITORS: C. A. WOOLLEY, MAGGIE SERGEANT. Again, in the history of our columns, it is necessary for a new pen to be called into use, and a new name to be placed at its head. It is not our purpose to apologize for undertaking the work which devolves on the Editor of this column; nor do we intend to offer any promise further than, "Measures, not men, shall always be our mark." Our thanks are due the retiring Editor, Mr. Hill, for his benediction of good wishes. To the Laureans we say, send us your best thoughts; let the column have the cream of your best moments. C. A. WOOLLEY.

Observations.

The receipts of the young ladies Leap year party were expended in purchasing two volumes for the library.

The Eutaxians have accepted the use of a column in the Journal, and elected Miss Rubie Spiller, editor.

The last session of the Eutaxian Society was a complete relaxation from the labors of the week, and, although such sessions are excusable once in a while, they are becoming too frequent to be beneficial.

The President of the Eutaxians has decided that we have rhetorical enough in school, so that hereafter they will be discontinued in the Society, and we will have a debate every week.

One great obstacle, which the Eutaxian Society has to contend with, is the hour which it meets. This is just after the work of the week, and no one feels like entering upon the duties of the Society with much enthusiasm. If we had a few hours in which to recover our exhausted energies, the Society would be more interesting on many occasions.

"Junior" Notes.

The rhetorical exercises of the Junior class last Friday were very interesting. Prof. Gatch always adds variety to his exercises, which prevents their becoming monotonous. On this occasion there were two written discussions, one, "Resolved, That mountains are more beneficial than plains;" the other, "Ambition; 'tis a glorious cheat." Each also had a quotation from his favorite author. The five Juniors, whose enviable lot it is to have their name beginning with the first letters of the alphabet, were assigned to duty in the auditorium on Dec. 17th. The Juniors will deeply feel the loss of Prof. Gatch. GRETCHEN.

Laurean Notes.

Last Friday evening was the regular time for the inauguration of officers, chosen for the ensuing term. The retiring President, Mr C A Woolley, made a few appropriate remarks, conducted the brief inaugural ceremonies, and then declared the officers duly inaugurated. Hearty applause greeted Mr W T Slater as he took his seat in the Presidential chair. When quiet was restored he addressed the Society in a few well chosen words, expressing his thanks for the honor conferred upon him, his anxious solicitude for the welfare and prosperity of the Society, and his hopes for the future. He then appointed the following standing committees: Finance—A L Frazier, G W Hill and J D Fenton. General Programme—G M Hoyt, J M Neville and H H Hendricks. The Vice President, Mr G E Bushnell, will always render any needed assistance to the President. We are led to believe by his efficiency as assistant during the past term, that Mr Whitney will ably discharge the duties of Secretary. The other officers are well chosen, viz: Assistant Secretary, E M Bailey; Censor, A C Woodcock; Editor, C A Woolley; Treasurer, L F Woolley; Sergeant-at-Arms, R F Reasoner. Upon the whole we have reason to hope that the coming term will be a prosperous one with the Laureans. JUAN.

The following new books have been received in the past few days: Byron's Poems, "Familiar Quotations," and Land Laws of the United States. The Seniors will study during the next term, Geology, Astronomy and Mental Philosophy. Examinations next week. The Eutaxians. Friday afternoon, Dec. 3d, the Eutaxians held an open session, that is, open to those who were invited, and these were the members of the faculty, their wives (and children), Board of Regents, Laureans and others. The hall was filled with what might be justly called the learned and would-be learned of Eugene. But the audience was not so attractive as the members and officers of the society. The President, Miss Whiteaker, performs the duties of the office with her usual admirable tact. The business coming before the meeting was promptly disposed of in a way that showed careful study of parliamentary rules. The literary exercises consisted of an essay by Miss Cornelius, a recitation by Miss K Smith, and a reading by Miss McDaniel. These were all good. The debate was on the following question: "Resolved, That there is more to approve, than condemn, in the character of Oliver Cromwell." Miss Spiller opened the discussion followed by Miss Roberts on the negative. The following persons spoke on the alternate sides: Misses Maggie Sergeant, Mary McCornack, Mary Dorris, Alice Dorris, Alwida Dunn, and Anna Penger. The speakers all acquitted themselves well, making the debate fresh and interesting. We have it in mind to say many nice complimentary things, but lest they might be misunderstood, we shall refrain. We will say, however, that it is a current saying by those who have attended both societies, that the Eutaxians always succeed in making their open meetings more entertaining and interesting than the Laureans do their open sessions. Look well to your laurels, Laureans, or the "well ordered" will win them from you. E. P.
