More Moral Lessons of the Campaign.

NORWICH, Conn., Nov. 22, 1880.

To the EDITOR OF THE NATION:

Sir. As a further contribution to the moral history of the recent political campaign I desire to call attention to the following publication, which in the form of a card was issued from the Republican National Headquarters in New York City, Brooklyn, and probably other places during the week prior to election:

From a Pamphlet issued by

THE FREE TRADE CLUB OF LONDON.

"Let it be understood once for all that the salvation of England depends upon the destruction of American manufacturers, and that the only possible way in which American manufacturers can be destroyed is by free-trade. This can only come through Democracy and Democracy can only secure control of this Republic by the votes of Irishmen. How England must laugh in her sleeve as she sees the men who left their homes vowing vengeance serve her interests by working for a party which if it gets control of the country, will inevitably carry out the policy she most desires."

It seems hardly necessary to assert that this alleged extract was never extracted from anything, and that the whole publication was a fraud, and as such a forgery as the Chinese letter attributed to General Garfield. The intrinsic evidence to this effect is alone sufficient to establish the truth of this assertion, for no person or paper favoring free-trade would ever be foolish enough to indulge in utterances so stupid and untrue, and likely to be used to prejudice the very object which it was desired to promote. But apart from this the direct evidence is complete, for there is no organization publicly known as the "Free Trade Club of London," and what does not exist, and never has existed of course could not have issued any pamphlets. If the author of the forgery meant in using the term, "Free Trade Club of London" to designate thereby (as he probably did) the Cobden Club of England (which, by the way, is not exclusively devoted to the advocacy of free trade), then I simply deny that this organization has ever made or authorized any such publication, or that there is anything in any of the numerous economic essays which it has published that it is characterized in even the remotest degree by sentiments akin to those expressed in the card in question.

Under these circumstances it is somewhat difficult to see wherein the wrong and immorality of this forgery differ in either kind or degree from those involved in the forged Chinese letter, which the whole community is very justly called upon to reprobate and punish. The animus in both cases was the same—namely, to deceive intentionally with the expectation of influencing votes—with this difference: that the Chinese letter forgery was probably the work of men who would scorn to be characterized as other than gentlemen. Furthermore, there is ever reason to believe that ten voters were influenced by the latter fraud where one was imposed upon by the former. But it makes an amazing amount of difference in politics as well as in farming whose bull does the goring.

DAVID A. WELLS.

Of the five new trustees recently elected, to preside over the corporate interests of Hillsboro, but two are willing to serve. License and anti-license is what divides the people of that town, and the muddle in which the question has involved them has temporarily blocked the wheels of local government.

A nine month's old daughter of L. Prosser, a German resident of Hillsboro, died recently from being poisoned by tobacco, she having eaten as is supposed the stump of a cigar. The little one was taken very suddenly ill and died in spasms, after three or four days suffering.

The late J. H. Moores was an exempt fireman, having served seven years in the Salem company. During the funeral procession Saturday, the fire bell was tolled and the flags over the engine houses placed at half-mast.

STATE NEWS.

The old Eads Farm, containing 200 acres about a mile from Sheridan, was sold recently for $6,000.

Ben Brown, of Woodburn, killed twelve hogs last week that weighed 3,241 pounds, the heaviest weighing 406 pounds in weight.

Edward Murphy, the murderer of French, will be hung at Pendleton, January 5th. He is feigning insanity, but thus far without obvious effect on his keepers.

The Umatilla County Woman Suffrage Association was organized at Pendleton on the 13th inst., with Mrs. N. E. Despain president and Miss Josie Lee, secretary.

The proprietors of the Ashland woolen mills intend putting in and about the mill $1,500 worth of new machinery soon. They find it impossible to fill their large orders and so run day and night.

The people of Hillsboro have subscribed liberally in provisions, clothing and money for the relief of Levi Fanning's family, who lost everything they possessed by the burning of Dr. Bailey's farm house which they occupied.

Newton Miller and N. Harris, started to the Rock Creek store, a distance of about seven miles on the 4th inst., lost their way and remained out on the snow storm all night. They found their way in the morning with their feet badly frozen.

LaGrande Gazette: Saturday night two weeks ago the horses attached to the stage running between Heppner and Pendleton became frightened, when near the mouth of Star canyon, about eight miles south of Pilot Rock, and ran off the road. The stage was merely a wagon bed attached to bob-sleds, and the ground of the road being rugged and covered with rocks, it was not long before driver, wagon bed and U. S. mail were piled up together in the snow and left to take care of themselves, while the horses and bobs took a trip on their own account. Fortunately the snow was soft and the driver escaped uninjured, and a couple of men with a wagon passing soon afterwards conveyed him and the mail to Pilot Rock. Search was immediately instituted for the horses, and after two days they were found within three miles of the place where the accident happened, without a scratch and still attached to the sleds.

A Civil Marriage in Georgia.

The Walker County (Ga.) Messenger says: "A newly elected justice of the peace in this region who has been used to drawing deeds and wills and little else was called upon, as his first official act, to marry a couple who came into his office very hurriedly and told him their purpose. He lost no time in removing his hat and remarked:

"Hats off in the presence of the court." All being uncovered, he said: "Hold up your right hands. You, John Marvin, do solemnly swear that to the best of your knowledge and belief you take this your woman, ter, have an ter hold for yerself, yer heirs, exekyeters, administrators and assigns, for your an' their use an' behoof for ever?"

"I do," answered the groom.

"You, Alice Ewer, take this yer man for your husband, ter hev an' ter hold for ever; an' you do further swear that you are lawfully seized in fee simple, are free from all incumbrances, an' hev good right to sell, bargain and convey to the said guarantee yerself, yer heirs, administrators and assigns?"

"I do," said the bride, rather doubtfully.

"Well, John, that'll be about a dollar'n' fifty cents."

"Are we married?" asked the bride.

"Yes, when the fee comes in." After some fumbling it was produced and handed to the "court," who pocketed it and continued: "Know all men by these presents that I, being in good health and of disposin' mind, in consideration of a dollar'n' fifty cents, to me in hand paid, the receipt whereof is hereby acknowledged, do and by these presents have declared you man and wife during behavior and until otherwise ordered by the courts."
