Amended Assessment Law.

The following amendment to the assessment law of the State was enacted by the Legislature at the last session of that body:

SECTION 1. Section 16 of title 3 of chapter 57, the miscellaneous laws of Oregon, relating to the assessment of property and the levy and collection of taxes, shall be amended so as to read as follows:

Sec. 16. The Assessor after qualifying, as prescribed by law, shall immediately procure from the County Clerk a blank assessment roll and forthwith proceed and assess all taxable property within his county, and shall return to such County Clerk on or before the first Monday in September next following, such assessment roll, with a full and complete assessment of such taxable property entered thereon, including a full and precise description of the lands or lots so owned by each person therein named, which description shall correspond with the plan or plot of any town laid out or recorded, and said land or town lots shall be valued at their true cash value, taking into consideration the improvements on the land, and in the surrounding country, the quality of soil, its conveniences to transportation lines, public roads mills and other advantages. True cash value shall be held and taken to mean the amount such property would sell for at a voluntary sale made in the ordinary course of business, and not what it would bring at public auction or forced sale. The County Court of any county, may, if necessary, by order made before the first Monday in September extend the time for returning the assessment roll until the first Monday in October following. It shall be the duty of the Assessor to deduct the amount of his or her indebtedness, within the State, of any person assessed, from the amount of his or her taxable property, but no indebtedness shall in any case be deducted unless it is real bona fide indebtedness due from the person assessed as principal debtor, and not on account of any contingent liability, as surety, endorser or otherwise, and in case two or more parties as principal debtors are jointly or severally liable for the payment of any such indebtedness, neither of them shall be entitled to the deduction of any portion of it than the proportion each debtor bears to the whole number of such debtors to the effect that only the amount of indebtedness shall be deducted in favor of all such debtors, nor shall a deduction be made in favor of any person assessed unless he or she delivers to the Assessor a written statement duly sworn to, specifying the name and residence of the creditor, the nature of the debt, the names of other parties, if any, who are liable therefor, and what statement shall show that the debt, or portion thereof, sought to be deducted, has not been deducted in any other county or place in the State from the assessment of such person for that year; and in case such statement shall be found to be false to the knowledge of the party who made it, or that such party has willfully or recklessly made a false statement in such case for the purpose of obtaining a deduction of indebtedness, such party shall be deemed guilty of perjury, and shall be liable to the pains and penalties therefor.

Approved October 25, 1880.

A collection of stuffed birds and animals, made by Mr. Peacock, of Albany, valued at $200 was raffled and won by W. H. Allen.

The Albany Register says: We learn that a Government Engineer is at Newport, awaiting orders to proceed with the work of removing the reef of rocks that obstruct the mouth of Yaquina Bay.

It is rumored that the narrow gauge intends to remove its track from its present location, about a quarter of mile from Scio, to the direct route, some two miles away from that city. The new route is on higher ground, not liable to overflow, and a mile and a quarter shorter. Considerable excitement exists in Scio over the matter.

A Perilous Ride.

On Tuesday last, says the Standard of January 25, Mr. Henry Thielson, Assistant Engineer of the railroad division of the Oregon Railway and Navigation Company with a party of four men, left the mouth of the John Days river for the purpose of going down to Celilo. Shortly after starting a dense fog appeared on the river which rendered it impossible for the men in the boat to distinguish the shore line, and the increased swiftness of the current of the river carried the boat along at a speed not realized by the occupants until the harsh, dull roar of the water as it dashed over the head of the cascades below Celilo was heard, and an awful fate seemed inevitable. It was useless to endeavor to bring the boat out of the whirling eddies that now encircled it but playing with the frail bark, as every moment it was drawn nearer and nearer to an almost certain doom, while the wild roaring of the waters as they dashed down into the seething abyss below seemed to hiss and sputter and laugh in a perfect carnival of terror as the terrified inmates of the boat approached the fatal spot. Like a flash, the boat suddenly darted out of the eddies straight to the fall—one minute and the boat would be dashed to pieces, but as if guided by the hands of Providence the boat caught on a sunken rock just on the verge of the fall, and laying there swinging with the motion of the waters but leaving the men powerless, facing death, and while saved from it, still unable to escape. It was at this moment that a new danger and one that made the certainty of being carried over the falls inevitable now presented itself. Coming down the river and almost on top of the boat was discovered an immense flow of ice. The almost certainty of death either by being carried over the rocks or else crushed to pieces in the ice was only left to choose, and before the engineer and his party could realize it the ice was upon them, and one immense cake had shot under the boat, lifted it over the sunken rock and ice, and men were carried over the falls down into the chasm below and not a soul injured. It was a fearful experience an event that not one of the party will ever forget though they live to be numbered with the centenarians of future years. Once in the basin below, the party reached the shore and reached their destination by overland route.

Through to Galveston.

A conference was held at San Francisco on the 12th of January between a committee of directors of the Oregonian Railway Company and President Stanford and a committee of directors of the Central Pacific, the object being to arrange as to the point of connection and the terms on which the same were to be made of these two railroads in Southeastern Oregon. At this meeting a satisfactory arrangement was concluded. But the Oregonian directors were much surprised when President Stanford informed them that his company had made arrangements to carry the wheat trade of Eastern Oregon and Eastern Washington to Galveston or other points in Texas for shipment to Liverpool, instead of by way of Portland, as at present. He also stated that his company, the Southern Pacific, would carry the wheat of California via the Gulf of Mexico to England.

The Southern Pacific will reach Galveston or a gulf port within one year. In 1881 they will immediately thereafter build a line from a point on the Central Pacific, 50 miles east or west of Winnemucca, up into Oregon by way of Malheur reservation—from which latter point the line will fork; a north-easterly branch on or near to Walla Walla and thence to the Palouse country to a connection on the Northern Pacific's main line with a northwesterly branch from the Malheur through the Ochoco country and the John Day river to the Dalles. When these roads are connected to the Central Pacific the Southern Pacific will carry the wheat of Eastern Oregon and Eastern Washington straight through in cars to Galveston at freight of $11 and $12 per ton, and say they have made arrangements with the White Star line and Atlantic steamers and another steamship line to carry wheat from the Gulf of Mexico to Liverpool direct for two dollars per ton making a through freight from Eastern Oregon to Liverpool at $14 per ton at most. They also intend to carry passengers from Great Britain via Galveston to Oregon for $50 to $60 each through rates.

They propose, after their Oregon extension to the Palouse country is completed, to continue that line southerly across the Central Pacific's main line in Arizona, at or near Maricopa Wells. This line will make the distance between Galveston and Central and Eastern Oregon nearly as short as between Galveston and San Francisco. President Stanford stated that his company had now no intentions of ever extending their California and Oregon line from Redding into southern Oregon, but would be pleased to make connections with the Oregonian Railway Company's line if it was extended to southeastern Oregon, as the Central Pacific had no intention of going to Portland or of making extensions to western Oregon or the Willamette valley except by connecting with other lines meeting them in Eastern Oregon or at the Central Pacific main line.

Albany Democrat: Sometime last October or November, a young man named George Anderson, sold an order for $40 on Henry C. Dunn, of Corvallis, to James Gilmour of this city. A few days afterwards it was found out that the order was forged, and a warrant for the arrest of Anderson was issued and placed in the hands of constable Monteith. His whereabouts were not ascertained until last week, when he was found at Oregon City and brought up here by Monteith. He was examined last Tuesday before Justice Haven and bound over in $300 bonds, in default of which he went to jail. He acknowledges the crime, but says that he was under the influence of liquor when he committed it.
