

CITY AND COUNTY

BRIEF MENTION.

Valentine's Day next Monday. The City Council meets next Monday evening. If you wish to buy goods cheap call at S H Friendly's. Charles Whiteaker went to Portland Wednesday. Ladies' dress goods for sale cheap at Rosenblatt & Co's. Call and see that large stock of goods for sale at Friendly's. Col John Lane, Sheriff of Coos county, was in our city last week. For good dentistry at reasonable figures go to Dr. Davis, over Grange store. Silver Plated Ware—A complete assortment; ALL NEW STYLES, at Crain Bros. S H Friendly sells cheap for cash boots, shoes clothing, hats, caps fancy goods, etc. The gentleman inquiring for Carp can be accommodated by calling on the Eugene Carp Company. A scaffold on Abrams' new brick building fell with the workmen Thursday morning. No one injured. George Fletcher has been appointed chief of the commissary department of the Oregon State Penitentiary. We are under obligations to Mr S W Mieser for a basketful of fine apples. He has plenty more of good quality. Mr S H Friendly will pay the highest cash market price for wheat. Give him a call before selling your grain elsewhere. Hats, caps, boots, shoes, clothing, ladies dress goods, notions, etc, for sale at auction prices by Rosenblatt & Co. They are closing out and must sell. It is rumored that one of the belles of the city, a Jewess, has made arrangements for a change of name and home. Portland is her prospective residence. Go and see that large stock of goods just received at Hendrick's before purchasing elsewhere. The best stock of mens clothing and furnishing goods at prices to suit the times. Business men should not forget that blank notes, bill-heads, statements, letter-heads, and every description of commercial printing are neatly and promptly executed at the GUARD office. Don't you forget that all who have tried the Durkee Woven Wire Mattress accord it the highest praise. Perfectly clean, noiseless, and durable. E J McClanahan is the sole agent for Lane county. The Bridge. The County Commissioners Court met Monday, for the purpose of taking action about the bridge across the Willamette at this place. There is some diversity of opinion about what should be done. Some claim that a new span should be built on the north end, at a probable cost of $5,000, while others favor placing the bridge and approach as it was before, and building a crib at the head of the chute to keep back the drift and current. We understand that W T Campbell proposed to repair the bridge in the manner last referred to, and warrant it for five years for $3,000. Whatever is done we believe it is necessary and important that the new chute should be cribbed. Should the county expend $3,000 more on the bridge and leave it so that another flood might change the channel of the river, the current would set almost directly against the middle of the pier, striking it at an angle, thus endangering the entire structure. The court in order to consider more fully the different plans adjourned till Monday, when it is to be expected that some definite action will be taken. CONTRACTS LET.—The McKenzie Wagon Road Co. has let two contracts, one for building a bridge on the site of the one recently carried away, and the other for grading Crib Point. The new bridge will be a substantial truss span 120 feet long exclusive of approaches. The contract has been let to Mr L N Roney of this city at a contract price of $1,670. It is expected that the bridge will be built in time to accommodate the Spring travel. The contract to build a grade around Crib Point was let to Mr Wm Gibhart at the figure of $300. SURPRISE PARTY.—Quite an enjoyable supper party was held in town, among the members and friends of the Christian Church on Tuesday evening. A purse of money was made up and handed to their preacher, Mr. Hubbard, who returned thanks in a nice little speech. After music and singing the company broke up, and all felt as if they had been well repaid for going. DIED.—Mr James Watkins died at his residence in this city Tuesday night of paralysis, by which he had been afflicted for several weeks past. The funeral took place at one o'clock, Friday afternoon. The deceased leaves a wife, and four children arrived at maturity, to mourn his loss. MARRIED.—At the residence of the bride's father, N L Strange, in Whitman county, Jan 13, 1881, by P G Lemley, J P, Mr W M Clutter, of Whitman county, and Miss Mahalia Strange, formerly of Eugene City, Oregon. WHEAT.—There is almost no market for wheat. Buyers cannot offer any reasonable figure, and the wheat still remains in first hands. We have heard of a small lot being sold for 50 cents per bushel. LEVEL MEETING.—The Fire Company had rather a lively time Monday evening. The Secretary was "fired" and three applicants for membership rejected. Mr J M Hendricks was elected Secretary. DIED.—Jan. 28, 1881, at the residence of her parents, in Coberg, of inflammation of the stomach, Bertie Bell, daughter of Mr and Mrs N S Todd, aged 2 years and nine days.

DROWNED!

Minor Felch Drowned in Trout Creek, Wasco County, Or.

The sad news has been brought here, that Mr. Minor Felch met his death by drowning, during a freshet in Trout Creek, Wasco county, Jan 15th. From the Dalles Times of a recent date we take the following account of the melancholy occurrence: "Mr. Minor Felch had stopped over night on Jan. 14th at the residence of Mr J M Friend, a half mile lower down the creek than his own residence. Early on the morning of the 15th, after breakfast, Mr Felch started home, in order to do which he had to cross Trout Creek, which had become so swollen by the flood that it was a raging torrent. This was the last seen of Mr. Felch. The horse which he rode, in about an hour returned to the barn, having been in the water, as he was dripping wet. Immediate search was made for Mr. Felch, but the only sign of his fate which could be found were his footprints leading to the creek and up and down it a considerable distance, as though he had been hunting for a ford and then back to the barn. Here Mr. F. procured a horse and proceeded to the stream, as the tracks could be plainly discerned in the light covering of snow. The place where the horse entered the creek could be readily seen, and also where he floundered out and returned to the barn. Nothing was seen of Mr. Felch until Monday evening following, when his dead body was found lodged against the bank about a half mile from the place where the horse entered the stream. Our informant stopped with the corpse Monday night, but he left the next morning before the inquest was held. The facts he related to us are all which is known of the sad fate of the young man, and a coroner's inquest would elicit nothing further regarding his death, as none but the dumb animal was a witness of his last struggle." Mr. Minor Felch was about 28 years of age, unmarried, and came to Oregon from Wisconsin, where his parents and three sisters still reside. He came to Eugene about seven years ago, and had since resided here until last summer, when he moved to the vicinity where he was engaged in sheep raising. He had purchased a ranch and built a cabin, but had not yet purchased any stock. In 1876 he was appointed night watch of this city, and for three years faithfully performed the duties incident to that position; but his health becoming bad from night work he retired, and for over a year studied telegraphy with Mr J G Adley, agent of the O & C R R in the Spring of 1880 he concluded to revisit his old home in Wisconsin, where his near relatives viewed him for the last time. He was noted for honor and fidelity, and had few in this city heard of his sad end without a pang of regret and pity. His upright and noble should be set out whole yet in the prime and vigor of manhood. He was a member in good standing of Eugene Lodge, No 11, A F & A M. From a letter to Mr B C Van Honten we learn that the remains were kindly taken in charge by Mr Chas Van Honten, who lives near the scene of the drowning, and decently deposited in the grave. Would it not be a kindly act for the people of this city, and the Lodge of which he was an honored member, to remove his remains from the sage brush plains of Wasco to the cemetery adjoining our city?

Junction City Items.

[FROM OUR SPECIAL CORRESPONDENT.] JUNCTION, Feb. 10, 1881. Prof Clayton is teaching writing at this place. He has a large class. Wm Driskill, blacksmith, was closed out by his creditors a few days ago. The last freshet did but little damage here. A small amount of sidewalk was washed away. In the country some fencing was destroyed. Marshal Castell has a force of men engaged in repairing sidewalks and bridges, and the city will resume its wonted appearance in a few days. Mr J W Wright is at present confined to his room with sickness. As with his illness is not of a dangerous character he expects to be out again in a few days. The Railroad Company's pile driver has been at work on the trestle work between Junction and Harrisburg for some time. It is here at present on account of a lack of material. Mr and Mrs John Wortman gave their many friends a reception Wednesday evening, at Berry's Hotel. After partaking of an excellent supper prepared by "mine host" Major Berry, and a few hours of congratulations and social converse, the entire company repaired to Barber's Hall and indulged in dancing until a late hour. It was a very enjoyable affair throughout. Shooting Match. The members of the Lane County Sportsmen Club will indulge in a glass ball match next Saturday at 1 o'clock. The following named gentlemen have been chosen on the two sides: Geo Kincaid, Capt, S Meek, Jas Huddleston, C Hodes, J Anderson, John Gray, Chas Woods. H Huddleston, Capt, M M Davis, Jasper Stevens, J E Beishaw, Horace Crain, J H McClung, Geo Smith.

Seven balls for each contestant will be thrown from a Cards rotary trap screened, 18 yards rise, Bogardus rules. Each man will deposit fifty cents, and all left after paying expenses, will be divided into two purses to be presented to the first and second best scores on either side. If any man fails to shoot, the side making the best average will be declared winner.

STATE UNIVERSITY.

A column devoted to the interests of the Laureau and Eutaxian Literary Societies, and the State University.

EDITORS: C. A. WOODDY, RUFIE P. SPILLER.

MR. EDITORS.—In your last issue I said something about man being continually troubled, or followed with the monosyllable why. I need not say that I believe that to have been a true statement of the case; for that, I think, you will grant. But, this being true, you will not be surprised at my asking a further consideration of the interrogation, why? The question this time is, Why the Laureau Society? I mean, by this not only why was such a society organized, but why does it continue in existence? I think the first part of the question may best be answered by recalling part of the Preamble to the Constitution which was adopted in the early days of the society, "Growth and development of mind being the result of the investigation and free discussion of all questions that may come before us we the undersigned do hereby agree to form a society for the purpose, and for its government do adopt &c." The design of its founders, was then to secure in their minds growth and development. They proposed to secure this by debating freely whatever questions should be chosen by them after investigation. The idea in their minds seemed to be, choose a question, fully investigate it, then debate it. I do not know they fully carried out this plan, but from the ability of a great majority of the members, when I first knew the society, I have great reason to think that it was very closely adhered to. In those days it was a pleasure for me to attend your Society and listen to the debating. It seemed to me that each member was emulous to surpass his fellows. He had carefully studied his points, so that they were clear in his own mind. His definitions were concise and unquestionable. When he rose to speak it was a pleasure to see the question open as he went from point to point and established them. When the members met before the society began its sessions they spent the time in friendly converse talking of the Society, and how to make its session more beneficial to themselves and the University. But a change comes over the spirit of my dream, I am in great doubt how to answer the second part of my interrogation,—why does the society continue to exist? As has already been intimated, the only argument for its existence is that its members may improve themselves; that their minds may grow and develop. If this is not the purpose of each member, then for him there is no use of such an organization. If every young man does not have this object in view when he makes application for membership he wrongs himself, and the society more. And if he purposes to do the right thing, on finding that he no longer desires to make this his work as a student, he will promptly withdraw from the society. Let us look in on the Laureau, in the possession of their last meeting and see if the course of things as we are here, argues that the society should continue to live. Imagine yourself seated in your hall. Before the hour for meeting quite a number of the members arrive—some of them have evidently come without any investigation of the subject to be discussed. But on the other hand, they have brought with them a deck of cards and must needs indulge in a little game while the rest of the members are assembling. The President being called away by other duties, the Vice President calls the meeting to order. It is true he has had but little experience as a presiding officer, but he has learned how to conduct himself, with propriety, and with the helpful support of the society can conduct the business well. But there are some members of the society who either have never learned the purposes of the society or have forgotten them, for the first idea that seems to possess them, is to annoy the President, see how often they can trip him up with some point of order, real or imaginary. They seem to think that the absence of the President is a signal to them to see how much confusion their puny power can stir up. I do not know that they mean to do anything very bad, I am inclined to think, on the contrary, that all they mean is to have a "good time," as they call it. Such members are forgetful of the purpose of the society. They forget that the tendency of such a course of action is to weaken the society and make it less powerful for good in the cultivation of literary ability. Another class of members, when the time for debate comes, are on the "qui vive" for all sentences that may have a double meaning or that can, by a little stretch of the imagination, be tortured into something smutty, or even worse. They are quick to catch anything of this kind, and are loud in their demonstrations of approval. Then there are those, few in number I hope, who are willing to ponder to the tastes of such in order to secure a following on the principle that a poor loaf is better than no loaf. Then there is one other kind of members that I will mention; those who, from a disgust, or some other like feeling, absent themselves continually from the meetings of the society. They seem to think that the best way to save a drowning man is to let him drown. There are, of course, good and true members of your society who are here for the purposes set forth in the preamble to the Constitution; and I have written these lines that they may be led to set about securing a reform at once. And to suggest what kind of work is before you. Forgive me, Mr. Editor, for using so much of your space.

"After the Battle."

A most able and exhaustive article on the public debate appears in our last, but as it was rather premature, we would add a few remarks from a feminine point of view. Mr H E Courtney opened a debate, and dwelt with much feeling on the Irish troubles, and showed himself acquainted with the subject in all its forms. He was sustained by Messrs J H Hendricks and G W Hill, who were firmly established the truths of Ireland's oppression. Mr G M Hoyt, in his usual polished and effective manner, led the negative. He was ably supported by W H Cardwell and G A Dorris. Mr Dorris compared the rebellions in Ireland with American strikes, and constructed thereon a most original and ingenious argument; but Mr Courtney was on his native heath, and, at the strictures upon the Irish, waxed both earnest and eloquent and tore down all opposition. The President decided the question in favor of the affirmative. Messrs Neville, Slater, Richards and Woodcock made good impromptu speeches. Among the visitors, Prof and Mrs Bailey, Mr and Mrs J H McClung, Mr B F Dorris and Mrs Collier made graceful and pleasant responses to the call for remarks. The question was one of vital and present interest; and we confess, the discussion of the evening added greatly to our knowledge of the subject. The disputants, one and all, did themselves great credit, and we consider it one of the most pleasant open sessions we have ever attended. Thus auspiciously closed the reign of W T Slater, as President of the Laureau; and now we turn from the setting to behold the rising sun of the new administration. Long may the light of prosperity and harmony gild the banner of our brother Laureans. R. P. S. Commissioners Court.

Monday, Feb. 7, 1881, the court met pursuant to adjournment.

Present—Hon C W Fitch, County Judge; J M Spores and J A McMahon, Commissioners.

At this time the court appointed first supervisors for the year ending the first Monday in January, 1882, as follows: District No 61—G H Hale. 43—W S Hall. 19—P F Davis. 5—P Wilcox. 7—J W McBee. 22—John Tait. 36—J C Yates. 34—J F Inman. 45—J M Howard. 24—Geo W Orment. 26—J Wheeler.

At this time the court ordered that S D Coats be and is hereby appointed Inspector of Sheep in and for Lane county, State of Oregon.

Whereupon the court adjourned till Monday, Feb. 14, 1881, at 10 o'clock A. M.

The Public School.

On Tuesday morning, in company with Directors R B Cochran and F B Dunn, we paid a short visit to the Eugene public school. Good order prevailed in the different departments and all seemed earnestly engaged in work. The recitations were as prompt and thorough as could be expected, no lagging or shirking being noticeable. The rooms are kept neat and clean and well warmed, and no reason exists why all the children of the district should not attend. Prof. Richter informed us that the number enrolled exceeded 300 but the average attendance for the past month was below that, principally on account of the high water and stormy weather. The school is undoubtedly prospering under the present teachers and management for which they should receive due credit and more encouragement from their patrons.

Lost Valley Items.

LOST VALLEY, Feb. 6, 1881. Rain and wind in abundance. George Washington H. did it again with his little hatchet, and now carries his hand in a sling. A very pleasant surprise party was given at J M Parker's last week. Clemy was of age, less four years. The many friends of Mr and Mrs Parvin, assembled at their residence, to-day, to celebrate the nuptials of their eldest daughter, Miss M A Parvin, to Mr William Williams, Squire Bridges officiating. After enjoying themselves with vocal and instrumental music, and doing full justice to the good things provided on such occasions, they bid the happy couple adieu. Mr Parvin and his better half were married 27 years ago yesterday. M. A. S.

ARRESTED.—Mr A D B Dutton, of Springfield precinct, was arrested Tuesday, charged with malicious injury to property, by cutting away a levee that held the drainage on his land. The case came up before J B Alexander, J P, Thursday, and continued till Friday noon. At the time of going to press, Friday evening, the jury was still out.

MAILS AGAIN.—The trains resumed regular trips Wednesday after a failure to connect or carry mails for six days. We hope that no further interruption will occur this year.

MARRIED.—At the St. Charles Hotel, Tuesday evening, Feb. 8, 1881, by Rev. McLaflerty, Mr John Wortman to Miss Ella Washburna. Both of Junction.

GONE EAST.—Mr James Eristow and wife, Mrs A Matthews, and Mr Sam Baughman, all of Pleasant Hill, started Friday on a visit to the East.
