The Fraud's Farewell.

A supposed farewell address from Hayes, published in the New York Sun, among many other clever things and indisputable facts, contains the following:

My fellow citizens of Ohio deeming me an inoffensive sort of person, without sufficient force of character to engender enemies, repeatedly raised me like a wooden image to the place of Governor—an office in that state of no power or influence.

Had I consulted only the promptings of my own heart I would have refused to be a party to the memorable conspiracy which was immediately formed to substitute the candidate rejected by the people for the candidate whom they had elected. So innocent was I of the design subsequently executed that I publicly acknowledged my defeat in a candid address from my own doorstep, and I confess I was profoundly shocked when I saw Mr. Chandler's celebrated dispatch boldly announcing my election, hours after my defeat had been universally known and conceded. But as the plot developed, and only the most agreeable features were communicated to me, while the dark details of crime and corruption were carefully hidden, the scruples, which I soon came to regard as mere personal weaknesses, gradually melted away, and I finally accepted the fruits of conspiracy and forgery with complacency and even with pleasure.

I will not recall the history of my induction into office. I wish, indeed, that it might be erased from the memory of men, and I would cheerfully return to the conscience fund of the Treasury, or make over to my defrauded competitor, all that has been saved from his four year's salary, if that would restore me to that state of innocence I enjoyed while yet the harmless Governor of Ohio.

I loathed in my heart the leproscriminals who had conceived and executed these daring frauds in Louisiana and Florida. But no sooner had I taken the oath of office than I ascertained that my nearest friends and sponsors had promised them not merely protection but high promotion and other rewards; and I was compelled to execute these promises, under penalty of a complete discovery in every shocking detail of a stupendous crime of which I seem to be enjoying the fruits. It is needless to pursue the narrative. It is enough to say that, except one Casenave, who was paid in, they were all—visiting statesmen, returning board knaves, forgers, secret negotiators and counsel before the Electoral Commission—pensioned upon your Treasury. The last of these nominations, that of the notorious Stanley Matthews, for Associate Justice of the Supreme Court, has just but lately been denied confirmation by the Senate.

But there was still a more grievous humiliation to be endured. When I realized my defeat on the day after election, I declared truly that the sharp pang I then felt, arose from my apprehension concerning the fate of the colored Republicans in the contested Southern States. I now learned in order to secure the completion of the fraudulent count, my friends pledged me to abandon those colored Republicans, and hand over those States to the Democrats, who claimed them on precisely the same grounds as Mr. Tilden might have claimed the Presidency. I had no recourse but to comply. This step, however, was only less fatal than would have been a refusal. It lost me—I will not say the respect, for to that I had no claim—but the support of the earnest Republicans, who declared that if I was elected so were Packard and Chamberlain. It was soon plain that they, too, regarded me as a fraud in a different sense.

Messrs. H. Abraham and J. R. Dodge last week sold to John Anderson what is known as the "Allen farm," near Oakland, for $10,000. This is one of the best farms in that section, and contains 2,600 acres of farming land.

Shocking Accident.

Mr. James Jackson, of Wasco county, had been to a neighbor's for grain on the 7th inst. On his way home he stopped at a saloon, bought a bottle of whisky and became intoxicated. He was last seen in that condition near Mr. Wm. Farley's, when he was assisted to cross a ditch, and as he had a gentle team, said he could go home all right. This was about sundown March 7th, and he was then within two miles of where he lived. A short time after dark, Mr. Darius Adams, (at whose house he made his home,) heard the rattle of the wagon, and went to the door, and heard the horses struggling as if in trouble. Mr. Adams and others immediately went to his assistance, and found the wagon turned over, and Mr. Jackson underneath, dead—his neck, one arm, and one leg broken, and otherwise badly bruised. Mr. Jackson was about forty years of age, has a sister living in the valley, and has been here eight or nine years. The Dalles Times says, he was an industrious and good citizen.

Trouble at Prineville.

The Ochoco Pioneer says the owners of the W. M. & C. M. R. Co's land grant are making it exceedingly difficult for settlers on the east side of Main street, in that city, and those occupying ranches adjacent to town. Those who refuse to sign a release of their claims are being sued, and suits has been instituted against Elisha Barnes to recover $4,500 damages for occupancy of the land settled on by him and claimed by the company. Some who have erected costly residences will move their buildings and give up their land without a contest while others propose to hold the fort.

The Killoch Trial.

The Killoch trial in San Francisco has been over one month in progress, and it appears that no effort has been spared by the defense to swear the criminal innocent. If a common laborer were to deliberately enter an office, commence shooting at a man, and continue it until he had accomplished his purpose of murder, a plea of self-defense would not be entertained, and he would be convicted and executed in less time than it has taken to bring to trial the son of San Francisco's political preacher and mountebank Mayor. Public sentiment regards young Killoch as a deliberate murderer.

Douglas county's apportionment of the school fund is $6,816; number of pupils who draw school fund, 3,788; rate per pupil, $1 79.

Is He a Citizen.

The Mercury publishes the following probably sensational item:

Had the decision of Judge Deady, in the case of the United States vs. W. H. Watkins, indicted for illegal voting, been adverse to the interests of their client, it was the intention of his attorneys, Messrs. Durham & Thompson, to demur to the indictment on the ground that the Foreman of the Grand Jury finding the bill, was not a citizen of the United States. The Foreman was J. W. Nesmith, and the line of action marked out was, to prove that the parents of the said Nesmith were Canadians and subjects of Great Britain; that Nesmith was born in the town of New Brunswick, Canada, and that he had never been a naturalized citizen of the United States. This, and more it was intended to prove, Mr. Watkins being ready to sustain the various allegations by a large number of witnesses, who, it is alleged, knew Nesmith's history well. Notwithstanding these assertions, and the rumors in circulation, there will be many inclined to doubt this story from the fact that Mr. Nesmith has been United States Senator and Member of Congress, and has voted at the various elections held in Oregon. They think him a gentleman of too much sense discrimination to risk exposure and punishment had there been the least ground for truth in these accusations. It is probable that an investigation will be held in relation to this matter at no distant day.
