Letter from W. T. Rubell.

Dr. W. H. Rubell, formerly of this city, but now of Dallas, received last week the following from his son Willie, who has been soldiering in India:
MIAN MIR, May 29, 1881.

DEAR FATHER: I have some pretty good news to tell you, as far as it goes. I had my discharge from the British Army in my hand yesterday, but it is of no immediate use to me, as there is a proviso in it. There was also a letter from the commander-in-chief for information. The substance of it was this: In courtesy to the American Minister at St. James, His Royal Highness the Duke of Cambridge, commanding in chief, was pleased to sanction the discharge of the soldier described in the margin as soon as he was in a position to show that he could pay his passage to England. So the case stands like this: When I can deposit 300 rupees in the hands of the Colonel I can go where I wish, either remain in the country or go out of it, and at any time when I want to go I can claim a passage in the mail steamers at the expense of Government. If I go at my own expense, on landing in England I can claim the 300 rupees. There are two ways for me to go cheaply. One is to get billeted in a troop ship (and I can easily do it) costing £7, or $35. The other is to ship in a steamer for London or Liverpool, for which I would get about £12, as seamen are scarce and wages high in Indian ports. If I go straight away I will get a free passage by rail to the seaboard and will there be settled up with and discharged receiving £13, deferred pay. But that is not mine till after discharge, I wish it was, so they will not take it as security for passage. The reason of that is that the soldier may not be destitute on discharge. If you will send the money, 300 rupees, or $150, to the following address, "Officer Commanding 28th, The King's Regiment, Mian Mir Bengal, East Indies, via Southampton," I will undertake to come to Dallas without spending a cent of it. In fact I can make money as far as New York, and then it is only $35 to San Francisco. If you can't send the money let me know as soon as possible, as by binding myself to the railroad company they will go my security.

May 31st.
I went before Col. Groghan yesterday and he told me just what I have told. He says I will be sent to Deolalie at Government expense and placed under care of the Brigade Major of Bombay and will there receive my discharge, deferred pay, and other clearances, and can then sell my regimental kit. If I procure a ship for myself the money will be refunded. If not, the Brigade Major will buy me a ticket, send me on board with an escort and then I am free of the service, or if I prefer it, he will secure a passage in a troopship for me. There is no news here at present. The regiment is pretty healthy. A few men are in hospital with intermittent fever, but it is a bad type. One poor fellow of the Band, died a few days ago with it. It is pretty hot now—110 to 115 inside the bungalow. A piece of metal in the shade is as hot as one likes to hear in the hand. The punkas are going all night and we are literally frizzling. I am enjoying pretty good health at present and hope I may get through the sickly season all right. There may not be any cholera here this year, as there was a good deal in '79, and there is generally a couple of clear years, but there is always a terrible amount of fever in October and November when the cold nights come. I have been waiting anxiously for a letter from home for a long time, but each mail I am disappointed, but I hope to answer your reply to this in person.

Hoping that this will find you all well I close with my love to all.
Your affectionate son,
WILL.

The water supply of the city of Albany consists of eight cisterns, of a capacity of 80,000 gallons, and one hydrant. During the year just closed there has been four fires in that city, and ten alarms sounded. Losses by fires over insurance paid $4427.

STATE NEWS.

The woolen factory at Oregon City still continues to be pushed with work. Last Monday the operatives in the weaving department commenced work at night.

Since the narrow gauge railway reached Woodburn there has been noticeably improvement in the place. Among these is a store and sawmill, and a grist mill is going up.

David Campbell was slashing in the woods near Hillsboro this week, and struck a limb with his ax, and the limb flew up and struck him on the chin, causing him to bite clear through his tongue.

A family reunion took place on the 17th inst. at the residence of Hon. R. C. Geer, of Marion county, the occasion being the return to his old home of L. B. Geer from Walla Walla. There were present 45 members of the family.

The parasitic insect which devastated the apple crops last year is again making its appearance in some of the orchards in Clackamas county, but not so bad as was the case at this time last year.

E. C. Maddock exhibits at Oregon City some fine specimens of oats, their height being over six feet, with heads two feet long. One was counted and found to contain about 700 grains. They were raised on his place in Beaver creek precinct.

Mrs. Sparks, who died recently near Sheridan, Yamhill county, was, in her long life of 98 years, never sick but once, and died while at table eating her dinner. She was the mother of 17 children, 6 girls and 11 boys, 10 of whom are now living. One of her daughters, Mrs. John Lynch living on Mill creek, has had 16 children all living but one. Mrs. Sparks has lived in Oregon since 1851.

A man named C. A. Pickett is in jail at Oregon City, charged with an attempt to outrage a little girl eleven years old, the motherless daughter of a respectable citizen of Eagle creek precinct. The father would have saved the sheriff an arrest and the county the expense of a trial, if his gun had not missed fire. Pickett is well known in Washington county, having resided for a number of years at Hillsboro and Forest Grove.

The indebtedness of Yamhill county as shown by the financial exhibit just published, is $10,456. The contract for building the bridge over the Yamhill at Lafayette, will bring the indebtedness up to nearly $10,000 before another tax levy is made. This will show an amount of indebtedness greater than heretofore at the time of making the tax levy, and will require a somewhat higher tax that last year or the year before. The extra expense is owing to the loss of bridges during the last winter.

A Murderer Turns Highwayman.
David Higgins who murdered O. McClosky at Myrtle Point, Coos county on the 4th is still at large in the mountains between Coos bay and Roseburg. On Thursday last he called at the residence of Mr. Miller, six miles from Dora, near the Coos Bay wagon road and drawing a revolver, said to Miller:

"Give me a hat, coat and a square meal, and I won't trouble you."
Miller, being an old man and unarmed, immediately complied with the request, and Higgins left in the direction of Roseburg. He was tracked to a small wood near the summit which was surrounded in the evening by parties in pursuit and all felt confident of his being captured. He managed to escape, however, and was seen last Wednesday on the Roseburg side of the summit on the Coos Bay Wagon Road. He drew a revolver on a man near the summit and took a coat and three dollars from him. Sheriff Lane has offered a reward of $300 for his arrest and detention. The Coos News gives the following description of Higgins: A young man about 23 years old, height from 6 feet to 6 feet 2 inches, weight 180 to 190 pounds, light complexion, sharp chin, light moustache upper lip binds on teeth, teeth show when smiling, no whisker.
